Insull Gives Up and Asks Protection From Foes

Extradition Plans Are Speeded Here

President May Deputize Resident in Istanbul to Make Arrest.

Istanbul, Turkey, April 3 (AP).—Samuel Insull, beaten in his long fight against extradition to the United States, expressed his readiness tonight to return to America if he could be assured he would not be persecuted by his "enemies."

Jurists declared he could not appeal from a decision of a penal court on which Turkey's decision to send back the fugitive was based; the government kept him in jail and considered his case closed; and American officials prepared to come and get him.

Disconsolate in the drab surroundings of a prison hospital room and depressed because of the latest developments in his dramatic fight against three governments, Insull cabled his London representative for funds. It is generally believed that the former millionaire, financier and patron of the arts is comparatively poor.

Fears Enemies.

During a conversation with an attorney, the white-haired, 74-year-old man said he would not hesitate to return to the United States and even to surrender himself to Skinner immediately but for the fact that he feared "the influence his enemies in America might have."

The first American boat to leave Istanbul sails April 10, and it appeared likely tonight that Insull will be aboard it if Turko-American extradition proceedings are completed by that time.

The next steamer for the United States sails April 24.

At the American embassy it was announced the Washington Government was considering several ways of handling Insull's return to the United States, but that no decision had been sent here. It was said no agent of the United States Department of Justice now is in Europe.

Mobilizes Lawyers.

Earlier today Insull had mobilized a battery of Greek and Turkish lawyers for a last stand in his 18-months' battle against American demands for his extradition to face larceny and embezzlement charges based on the crash of the Insull utilities firm.

Turkish officials and jurists, however, mindful of his protracted

Boy on Bicycle Hits Auto, Dies

Mother of Sidney Katz, 13, Collapses; Is Treated at Hospital.

Sidney Katz, 13, of the 1100 block of Staples street northeast, was killed yesterday when the bicycle he was riding collided with an automobile at Fourteenth street and Maryland avenue northeast.

Paul Buck, 65, a Government accountant, of Landover, Md., told police he had just started across the intersection when he saw the boy pedaling toward his car. Buck, according to police, said he was driving slowly.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Rebecca Katz, upon learning that her son was dead, collapsed and was treated at Casualty Hospital. His father, Louis Katz, is a truck driver.

The boy is also survived by four sisters.

Spring Now Here, Lewis Doffs Spats

Senate's Infallible Sign, Really Marks Arrival.

April brings out poet and peasant alike to seek the first sign of spring.

Spring in Washington depends entirely on Senator J. Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, noted for his correct apparel and immaculate appearance.

Mary H. Ward Quits Democratic Committee

Miss Mary H. Ward has resigned as Democratic National Committeewoman from Massachusetts, it was learned yesterday. Her resignation was submitted when she took the position of commissioner of immigration last September.

D. C. Man Kills Girl And Self in Maryland

Former Dry Agent Wanted Her Daughter to Return to Capital, Mother Tells, After Finding Bodies in Hagerstown Home.

Hagerstown, Md., April 3 (Spl.). Because she would not accompany him back to the National Capital, this afternoon fatally shot Miss Charlotte Hudson, 17, and then killed himself with a bullet through the head. Hall was a former prohibition agent here.

The murder and suicide took place in the apartment of the girl's mother, Mrs. Maud Hudson, who had stepped from the room a moment before. She heard the shots and rushed back to find her daughter lying on the floor and Hall slumped on a couch, the revolver clutched in his hand.

Police, after questioning Mrs. Hudson, said it was a clear case of murder and suicide.

Hall was married, with his wife and two children said to be living in Elizabethtown, Tenn. He resided here until released by the Prohibition Enforcement Department in August, 1933. Since then he had lived in Washington.

Police said Hall had been attentive to Miss Hudson for some months. A letter, postmarked March 18 and written to the girl by Hall, was found by the police. In it Hall asked her to come to Washington, and said he would see that she obtained employment. Hall further said in the letter, police said, that if she did not come to Washington he might kill himself.

Hall arrived here last night and visited her daughter during the evening, Mrs. Hudson said. He returned to the apartment this afternoon.

Mrs. Hudson told police that Hall was trying to induce her daughter to return to Washington, that she refused and a quarrel started. The mother said she was on her way to summon the police when she heard two shots.

Hall stopped at police headquarters this morning and talked with several officers. They said he appeared depressed because he had been unable to obtain regular employment. Authorities said no inquest would be held.

CWA Bribery Probe Opens In New York

Miss Perkins Orders Quiz Following Charge of Political Rule.

New York, April 3 (AP).—Charges that the National Reemployment Service practiced political favoritism in distributing CWA jobs in New York City were taken up by local officials today after Secretary of Labor Perkins ordered an investigation from Washington. Miss Perkins promised "appropriate action" if the charges were borne out.

William H. Lange, State director of the National Reemployment Service, designated by Secretary Perkins to look into the charges, conferred with Col. Walter A. Delamater, city CWA administrator, who said an investigator on his staff had submitted a memorandum outlining alleged abuses.

The memorandum, unsigned, declared "favoritism, political interference, dishonesty and inefficiency have characterized the reemployment service from its inception." Col. Delamater turned the report over to Mayor LaGuardia and Frederick I. Daniels, executive directors of the temporary Emergency Relief Administration.

The reemployment service is the agency through which most of the Civil Works Administration employes were hired. Delamater charged that men who registered for work never heard from their registrations and when they inquired again their cards had been lost.

He also charged men with notes from politicians were given preference and presented with his report a photostatic copy of a business card of a New York attorney on which had been written a note by

Steer in Brooklyn Friskes on Street

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 3 (AP).—Office-bound Brooklyn residents clapped their hats on their heads and fled this morning as a young steer tore down Myrtle avenue.

Lured by spring sunlight, the steer broke out of a slaughter house and headed for the new grass in Fort Greene Park. It raced down sidewalks and streets for eight minutes before a radio patrol car drew alongside. Two shots fired by patrolmen finally felled the fugitive.

Hope of PWA Hospital Aid Here Is Slight

Hopes for construction of a new District tuberculosis sanatorium by the Public Works Administration are practically nonexistent, it was disclosed yesterday.

At the same time, it was determined that a $15,705,000 PWA program for the District, including a sewage disposal plant and a unit of the proposed municipal center, submitted by the Commissioners, will not be authorized because of lack of Federal PWA funds.

A program calling for construction of four District projects was submitted to the Public Works Administration a few days ago by the Commissioners. Considerably reduced from the elaborate program submitted in July, the new program called for construction of the first unit of the proposed municipal center at a cost of $4,900,000; new Zoo buildings, $850,000; a tuberculosis sanatorium at Buena Vista, Md., $2,000,000, and a sewage disposal plant, $8,000,000.

Committee Lacks Funds.

Asked about the tuberculosis sanatorium yesterday, Secretary Ickes, the Public Works Administrator, said: "It's impossible. We have no funds."

Asked if that statement went for the rest of the District's program, the Secretary said that it did.

The original appropriation of $3,300,000,000 for the PWA was exhausted some time ago. Lately,

Five Trapped Miners Saved

Men Held Prisoners in Blazing Shaft Are Not Injured.

Switz City, Ind., April 3 (AP).—Five men trapped in the pit of the Sinclair mine since early afternoon by a fire that destroyed the surface buildings were rescued alive tonight.

The five miners were brought out at 6:45 p. m. by rescue crews that had worked furiously since 1:30 p. m. when the blaze was first discovered in the pump room.

The men were unharmed. A crowd of 1,500 persons cheered as they were brought to the surface in an improvised cage.

Classes Closed—5,700 Pupils Go to School for Sake of Lunch

Hunger drove 5,700 Washington children to school yesterday.

With the exception of a few hundred in Catholic parochial schools, which reopened yesterday, these children did not have to go to school, because Easter holidays were still on.

During the normal school period, approximately 7,000 children are given free lunches. This means that only 1,300 children entitled to receive the lunches did not take advantage of the service yesterday. Of these, some, it is feared, could not go because of lack of clothing.

Of the 5,700 lunches, 3,200 were prepared by the central school lunch kitchen under the direction of Mrs. Katharine McF. Ansley and 2,500 by Earl E. Harrington, restaurateur, who handled the entire lunch program until the central kitchen was placed in operation, and who has continued to take care of the surplus children since then.

The Central School lunch kitchen is being operated during the Easter holidays as an experiment to see just how many children will come to school when they don't have to. If the response justifies it, District officials have indicated they will order continuation of the program during the summer vacation.

The holiday service began on Good Friday. The attendance was comparatively small then. Saturday was eliminated as it is the normal holiday. Likewise was Sunday. On Monday, the attendance was still small because of the Easter egg rolling at the White House, the majority of children apparently preferring to go hungry in order to join in the festivities.

But yesterday, with the approach of noon, streets to school buildings all over the city were thronged with children without books.

How much the majority of these children had had to eat during the long week-end was problematical. Many of them confessed when they sat down to the long tables in the schools that they were "mighty hungry." Some said they had eaten graham crackers and water most of the time. Yesterday they had steaming plates of vegetables and meat.

Plane Probe Report Hits Gen. Foulois

Rogers Committee Bares Names of Firms in "Closed" System.

Woodring Upheld for Demanding Changes in Procurement.

By Frank Getty.

Actions of Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of Air Corps, in connection with procurement of Army aircraft, are "in no way approved" in a report adopted unanimously yesterday by the special House Military Affairs Investigating Committee.

The committee, of which Representative Rogers (Democrat), New Hampshire, is chairman, also expressed unanimous belief that "every action" of Assistant Secretary of War Woodring relating to the proposed purchase of $7,500,000 worth of new planes with PWA funds was "fully justified."

The report strongly condemns Gen. Foulois and aids for ignoring the intent of Congress and acting "in violation of the law," in insisting upon procurement of aircraft through negotiated contracts. It names, for the first time, the firms with which the Air Corps sought to deal privately in purchasing the new PWA planes.

Emphasis is laid upon the fact that "whereas the Assistant Secretary of War wanted full and open competitive bidding on contracts for the new airplanes," Gen. Foulois, Brig. Gen. H. Conger Pratt and other Air Corps officers attempted to enforce the old system and purchase from special companies without competitive bids.

Business Held Illegal.

The result was, the report says, that on March 5, 1934, the Judge Advocate General found the entire business illegal.

"We are now attempting to aid in obtaining a proper and legal expenditure of this money," the committee reports.

It is considered significant that the report of the Rogers committee will be made public shortly before the Senate acts upon recommendations for promotion of certain of Gen. Foulois' Air Corps aids. Two of the latter, recommended for promotion to the rank of brigadier general, appeared as witnesses before the committee last month.

The report reveals the plan whereby the Air Corps hoped to spend the $7,500,000 of PWA funds with three favored companies, which are named as follows:

Northrup Corporation, 35 attack planes.

Boeing Airplane Co., 30 pursuit planes.

Glenn Martin Co., 55 bombing planes.

At this juncture, the committee will advise the House, Woodring,

First Lady Pours Tea for Prophet Of Her Position

Here's a prophet who achieved honor in his own country. He is Herman W. Fechner, conductor of a commutation train running into New York, and his prophecy was honored yesterday when he and his family were guests at tea at the White House.

Several years ago Fechner said to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt: "Some day you'll be riding the other way on my train. You'll be mistress of the Governor's Mansion at Albany. More than that, I'll predict you'll be the First Lady of the land."

Mrs. Roosevelt's reply was: "Well, Herman, if I ever am, you must come to Washington and see me and bring your family."

Child Found Drowned In Three-Foot Hole

Leesburg, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—The body of her 3-year-old son was found by Mrs. Bruce French this afternoon shortly after the mother discovered the child to be missing from the yard. The child was drowned in a 3-foot hole, filled with water that had been dug for a gasoline tank.

In addition to his mother, the child is survived by his father, an employe of the Washington & Old Dominion Railroad, and two brothers and one sister.

50 Million in Bonds Sold by New York

Albany, N. Y., April 3 (AP).—New York today sold a $50,000,000 bond issue to the City Company of New York City. The major part of the issue, largest in 20 years, will be used for unemployment relief. The interest rate was the lowest in the State's history. It was 2.8866 per cent.

There was only one other bidder, the Chase National Bank of New York. Its bid was 2.9397 per cent. Never before have State securities gone for less than 3 per cent.

Johnson to Let NRA Licensing Power Lapse; Wirt's Charges Stir Bitter Debate in Senate

Democrats Leading Way to Ruin, Claim

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Allegations of communism in the "brain trust" ridicule of the Wirt charges about a plot to put a Stalin in the White House, sharp attacks on the processing taxes and Democratic expenditures and wails over the diminishing powers of Congress yesterday were ingredients of a spirited debate which bubbled and boiled over the Senate for almost three hours.

It was one of those old-fashioned running debates in which a half-dozen or more Senators participated with partisan politics crackling throughout the chamber. Since the advent of the "New Deal" inspired Senators to be serious and almost unanimous in their support of the President, such affairs have been few in the Senate.

It was started by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, who arose to protest against a processing tax on jute, but remained standing to laugh at the impotence of Congress to do anything about such taxes since the power had been given the Secretary of Agriculture.

"Ruin" Is Predicted.

From that point the debate moved on to the alleged failure of processing taxes to approximate by $500,000,000 the AAA expenditures. Within a few minutes the Senate was hearing excerpts read from a book by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell, chief "brain truster."

Senator L. J. Dickinson (Republican), of Iowa, contended these excerpts showed clearly that Tugwell was favorably inclined toward such Soviet Russian ideas as "economic planning" and "public ownership" and "collectivized farms." He predicted the Democrats were carrying the country to "ruin" and that apparently nothing short of a "financial catastrophe" would halt them.

In a sharply vindictive speech, attacking but not answering the Iowan, Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas, brought up the name of Dr. William A. Wirt, the Gary educator, whose charges that the brain trust was plotting to replace President Roosevelt with a Stalin will be investigated by the House.

When Senator Dickinson objected he had not mentioned Wirt, the Texan said: "Oh, no, but as the Senator talked I saw Dr. Wirt's views forming a halo around his silvery locks." He called Wirt a "cheap publicity seeker" and "just a sensation monger," whose story of the revolutionary plot was "moonshine." He said the Senate rules prevented him from giving his real opinion about the educator's charges.

Cites Recovery.

"If to put the country back on the high level of prosperity is revolution, if to open the banks of the country and give the people a new faith in themselves is revolution,

Raskob, Roosevelt Campaign Enemy, On NRA Board

John J. Raskob, once chairman of the Democratic National committee and a leader of the party's conservative wing which sought to prevent Franklin D. Roosevelt's nomination, has been quietly serving for a month as a member of NRA's Industrial Advisory Board, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Raskob draws $25 a day for three or four days a week he spends in Washington. He owes the fact that he has been able to remain unobserved in the press to the NRA practice of not announcing changes in the Industrial Board's setup.

The board, as originally conceived, was operated on a revolving membership basis, with leading industrialists serving for periods of four months at a time.

'Feels Swell,' Son Asserts Of President

Elliott Roosevelt Will Visit Mother After Seeing Father.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Miami, Fla., April 3 — Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, tonight brought the first direct word back from the Astor yacht Nourmahal concerning his father's fishing trip in the Bahamas.

"He's really just beginning to get the best out of the trip," young Roosevelt declared, adding that fishing had been good except for the last two or three days.

Elliott and the eldest Roosevelt son, James, made the 180-mile trip to the Nourmahal, now off Elbow Key, in a Navy plane and found him busy with the rod close to shore.

Clad as others of the Astor party in white hat and trousers and skirt "that once were white" the President fished all day, Elliott said, and didn't catch a thing.

Young Elliott paid only a brief visit to the yacht, returning to Miami on the Navy plane early tonight. James remained with the party and plans to stay out the trip, which the President has now extended to the latter part of next week.

"He's Feeling Swell."

Elliott declared with emphasis: "He's feeling swell."

Elliott Roosevelt, who arrived yesterday by plane from Shreveport, La., will leave at 5:30 a. m. tomorrow for Washington to visit his mother at the White House before returning to Fort Worth, Tex. He plans to be in the Capital two or three days.

Asked what manner of fish the President is catching, Young Roosevelt knew only that he had landed a number of groupers. In fact, he added, the party has caught so many of them, the destroyer Ellis, which is accompanying the Nourmahal, is complaining of having grouper chowder for every meal.

Although the President might not

70 Million "Steal" Laid To Bankers

(Associated Press.)

Charges of a $70,000,000 bankers' "steal" by the process of a forced receivership were referred to the Senate's special Bankruptcy Committee yesterday and its chairman declared lack of funds prevented a full investigation.

The allegations were made before the Senate Banking Committee by Edward L. Backus, former president of the Minnesota & Ontario Paper Co., and were directed at the Chase National Bank and the First National Bank of Boston.

The "trail of evil," he said, also ran through the International Paper & Power Co., Halsey Stuart & Co., and Bond & Goodwin. In addition, he asserted, Federal Judge Molyneaux at Minneapolis "signed on the dotted line."

Forced to Quit, He Says.

His story briefly was that after pledging financial support to the Minnesota & Ontario Paper Co., the bankers told him the "only solution" was a receivership. The company, he contended, was solvent, but said that "under duress" he agreed and was named receiver.

Later, he continued, he was forced to resign as receiver and was succeeded by R. H. M. Robinson and C. T. Jaffray, under whose management, he said, there had been a "most deplorable campaign of mismanagement, extravagance, waste and sacrifice of cash and other assets," resulting in losses of $12,000,000.

The objective of the bankers, Backus asserted, was to acquire the company for $5,000,000, whereas, under normal conditions, its value was estimated at $75,000,000.

At the conclusion of his testimony, Chairman Fletcher referred the case to the bankruptcy committee, asserting that in view of the charges made a full investigation should be made that "those guilty of con-

(Associated Press.)

An entanglement over a five-minute speech yesterday reduced the House to the complete helplessness of a legless man at a kicking match.

So involved did the situation become that it took hard work by the presiding officer, Representative Sabath, of Illinois, and the parliamentarian, Lou Deschler, to adjourn.

The whole point at issue was: Should Representative Foulkes (Democrat), Michigan, make a five-minute speech?

Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, asked for unanimous consent for Foulkes' speech and also asked for five minutes to reply.

Representative Hollister (Republican), Ohio, objected.

"Very well, very well," said the Texan, "there is no quorum present and the clerk will have to call the roll."

Out of that grew two roll calls; about 100 cries of "I object"; miscellaneous cries, shouts and yells; a dozen brief speeches by Blanton; two dozen speeches in reply; half dozen standing votes; 23 pauses, and finally confusion.

The House had been trying to quit for half an hour but apparently it had forgotten how.

"It is apparent," Cullen said blandly, "that the House is in no mood to conduct business. I move we adjourn."

There was a loud chorus of "noes" and a comparatively weak round of "ayes." Somebody wanted a standing vote. And then a teller vote and the House by a vote of 75 to 70—so Sabath reported—had managed to quit work.

Representative Foulkes has yet to make his speech, but Representative Blanton intends to see he is given the opportunity.

President's "Club" Over Industry to Expire on June 16.

Will Forego Any Extension Plea

Administrator Denies Harriman Selection as Successor.

By Felix Bruner.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, said yesterday that he will not ask Congress to renew the licensing provision of the National industrial recovery act.

This provision, which expires June 16, one year after the law was enacted, gives the President power to license any industry not complying with NRA provisions and to revoke such licenses. President Roosevelt has indicated that he was willing to ask for renewal of this provision.

In announcing that he preferred to let the licensing provision lapse, Johnson said he was not opposed to it but that he preferred not to reopen legislation affecting NRA.

"Let's give the law as it stands a chance," he said. "If we open it, there is no telling what will come in."

Last Resort.

The licensing section of the recovery act constitutes its "last resort" enforcement provision. Under this provision an industry could virtually be taken over and operated by the Government. There has been no attempt at any time to invoke this section, but the possibility that it could be enforced has been a "big stick" over industry and a threat that could be used to keep any recalcitrant concerns or industries in line with NRA provisions.

Johnson asserted he is preparing to answer the recent report of the Federal Trade Commission which declared the steel code encourages monopoly and price fixing.

"Many facts in the steel code were overlooked by the commission," he said. "We were not consulted before the report was made. If another Government department makes a report concerning us we intend to answer it."

Johnson made it plain at the same time that he was not altogether satisfied with the steel code.

He reiterated his belief that recovery can not be complete until there is more activity in building and in the durable goods industries. He said the NRA will take over

9 Die as Flood Sweeps Towns

Property Damage Is Heavy in Wisconsin, Eastern Minnesota Floods.

St. Paul, Minn., April 3 (AP).—Fed by a heavy April downpour, raging floods took nine lives and caused a heavy property loss in Western Wisconsin and Eastern Minnesota today.

The precipitation ranged from 2 to 4 inches in a territory which had generally one of the driest winter seasons in several years.

Wisconsin communities were hardest hit as rivers and creeks bursting over their banks swept away bridges, dams, railroad tracks, communication lines and small buildings. Traffic in several sections was paralyzed and many home owners and workers were marooned.

Three trainmen of the Chicago, Minneapolis & Omaha line were crushed to death at Hudson, Wis., when a freight train hit a spot on the right of way where flood waters had washed away 15 feet of track.

Near Whitehall, Wis., Oscar Franson, 45, his wife and Mrs. Alfred Franson were drowned when a wagon carrying seven persons to an election overturned on a flooded highway.

Near Eau Claire, Wis., Myrtle Rowe, 21, one of a party of Stout Institute students returning to school at Menomonie, Wis., drowned when their automobile skidded into the surging waters of Elk Creek.

George Wold, 42, of Eau Claire, drowned when he stepped into a deep hole in the yard of the company where he was employed. Leonard Apel, farmer, drowned near Spring Valley, Wis., when he attempted to cross a swollen creek.

Schools were closed in many communities, washouts on rail lines reported from a dozen points, and the still rising waters alarmed residents particularly near Ellsworth, New Richmond, Wheeler and Glenwood, Wis. A heavy loss of live stock throughout the area was incurred.

Nazi Court Hits Catholic Press; May Widen Rift

But German Leaders Say Pope's Message Not "Aimed at Us."

Berlin, April 3 (AP).—A Nazi tribunal in Duisburg, today held that the so-called Catholic press is superfluous," as government spokesman here said "we do not consider Pope Pius' Easter message to Catholic youth in Germany as being directed against us."

The two developments were viewed as opening up new phases in the differences between the state and church.

The Duisburg court sharply criticized the Catholic newspapers when the magistrate refused to grant an injunction against alleged unfair competition, sought by Catholic newspaper complaints against the Essen National Zeitung, owned by Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia. The complainants alleged Goering's newspaper solicited subscription under threats.

Pope's Message Studied.

As the decision was announced, Catholic Germany and government officials were considering the Easter message of the Pope, who promised aid to the German Catholic youth organization, which has had an uncertain status under Nazi rule.

Official circles indicated that the Central Government believes the message, if conceivably directed at Chancellor Adolf Hitler's policies, to be a case of fighting a mutually owned windmill.

A government spokesman declared Hitler is as much interested in fighting anti-Christian activities as the Pope.

"We do not consider the message to be aimed at us," the spokesman said, "the Pope's fight is also our fight.

Disavows Religious War.

"Past proof of this is our suppression of Godless associations in Germany and our war against the Social Democrats who have supported this movement.

"Our war against the Center party is a political one, but we are not on the warpath against Catholicism, Protestantism or the Jewish faith. We do not make any distinction between these religions, especially between the evangelical and the Catholic church.

"We are for positive Christianity."

The Easter message of Pope Pius praised the Catholic youth for perseverance in "the face of propaganda working with allurement and pressure for new ways for looking at life which points away from Christ and back into paganism."

Church May Defy Bishop.

Elders of the Dahlem Lutheran congregation declined today to reveal how they plan to meet a new move by Reich Bishop Ludwig Mueller to replace their pastor, the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, next Sunday.

The Reichsbishop forced the long issue between himself and the Dahlem parish into the open by appointing the Rev. Mr. Scharfenberg, of Coepenick, special commissioner in chrage of the congregation.

Church elders said they considered the move as an infringement on the freedom of worship and congregational self-determination.

Former Fiscal Agent Indicted

Hoover Appointee Faces 42 Counts Charging Corrupt Acts.

New Orleans, April 3 (AP).—The Federal Grand Jury today returned an indictment against Lawrence A. Merrigan, former collector of Internal revenue for Louisiana, charging him with violation of the corrupt practices act.

Merrigan recently retired from the internal revenue office here in favor of D. D. Moore, whose nomination as collector is being contested in Washington by Senator Huey P. Long.

Merrigan was an appointee of President Hoover and was registered as a Republican at the time he took office May 2, 1932. Registration records here showed he reaffiliated with the Democratic party in June last year.

There were 42 counts in the 38-page indictment, charging him with collecting from his office employes contributions for boosting the 1932 Republican Presidential campaign fund. The indictment said the money, ranging in sums from $50 for women employes to $100 for men, were remitted to J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican National Campaign Committee in Washington.

Federal Judge Wayne G. Borah authorized the issuance of a warrant for Merrigan and set the bond in his case at $2,000.

Director Married Sally Eilers To Help Career, Actress Says

Los Angeles, April 3 (AP).—Testimony was given in court today that Harry Joe Brown, film director, said before he married Sally Eilers, blonde actress, that he was "going around with her" because she could help him "get ahead" in the movies.

Marjorie Whiteis, actress who is suing Brown for $100,000 on charges that he broke a promise to marry her, gave the testimony.

Miss Eilers sat bold upright and looked hard at Miss Whiteis, known on the screen as Marjorie Gay.

Miss Whiteis said published reports linked the name of Brown with that of Miss Eilers as the latter two returned from Europe last summer, and on his return here she, Miss Whiteis, "asked him to explain about that woman."

"Well, he told me he was going around with her because she had certain connections that would help him get ahead," Miss Whiteis said. "He said he wanted to leave the studio he was with and get connected with another organization and that Miss Eilers could help him."

Miss Eilers and Brown were married last September. Miss Whiteis said Brown asked her in October, 1929, to marry him.

Tammany Aid, Farley, Is Dead

"Tin Box" of Sheriff Was Bared by Seabury Gotham Probe.

New York, April 3 (AP).—Former Sheriff Thomas M. Farley, 44, who coined the "tin box" explanation of mysterious wealth during the legislative investigation of the city government, died in a hospital today.

Farley, who was removed from office on February 14, 1932, by Gov. Roosevelt after the tin box episode, underwent an appendicitis operation three weeks ago.

A big man, bluff and genial, "Big" Tom Farley exemplified the old school of Tammany politicians. He was tremendously popular among the rank and file of his Yorkville District, where he had been planning to attempt a comeback.

His name blosomed on the Nation's front pages as "Tin Box" Farley, the man shown by Samuel Seabury to have banked $360,660 in less than seven years. When asked the source of his wealth, Farley had said it came from two "wonderful boxes" which had qualities comparable to those of Aladdin's lamp.

Farley was tried on a grand larceny charge which grew out of his custom of pocketing the interest accruing on money intrusted to his custody by litigants, but was acquitted.

Farley worked for a department store before becoming a delegate of the Cement Workers' Union, which was his stepping stone to politics. He was elected alderman in 1915, and five years later became district leader.

The widow and four children survive.

Rum Chase Killing To Be Investigated

Wife Slain as Deputies Fire at Fleeing Auto.

Lafayette, Ala., April 3 (AP).—Circumstances surrounding the slaying of Mrs. Raymond Murphy, 24, by deputies sheriff seeking a rum car, will be presented to the grand jury "if the facts warrant it," Bob Wallace, chamber county solicitor, said today. Mrs. Murphy was wounded fatally Friday night by officers, who had blocked the highway to halt a suspected rum car.

Dillinger Plot Quiz Names 2

Woman Sheriff Is Held "Careless;" Prosecutor Is Scored.

Crown Point, Ind., April 3 (AP).—A grand jury report today blamed many persons for John Dillinger's escape from the Crown Point Jail March 3, but attributed criminal responsibility only to Ernest Blunk and Sam Cahoon.

Blunk, the jail's finger print expert, and Cahoon, a trusty entrusted with the duties of turnkey, were indicted on the charge of committing a felony by aiding in Dillinger's escape.

The grand jury censured State officials, Judge William J. Murray, of the Lake County Criminal Court, other Lake County officials and jail guards.

The woman sheriff, Lillian Holley, was criticized for "careless" administration of the jail, but the grand jurors upheld Mrs. Holley, Prosecuting Attorney Robert G. Estill, and Estill's assistant, John Underwood, for their attempts to take Dillinger to the Michigan City prison for safe keeping.

Judge Murray and William Schroeder, president of the county council, were blamed by the grand jurors for the decision to hold the desperado in jail here pending his trial on a charge of slaying Patrick O'Malley, a police officer, during the holdup of an East Chicago bank.

Mention was also made in the report of the photograph given wide publication which showed Prosecutor Estill posing with his arm on Dillinger's should after the desperado's return from Tucson, Ariz. The pose was attributed to carelessness on the part of the prosecutor.

Dowling's 'Kidnap' Version Awaited

Says Mrs. Crawford Went With Him Voluntary.

Los Angeles, April 3 (AP).—The first-hand story of R. C. Dowling, movie dancer, on his return home from Yuma, Ariz., was awaited today to determine whether charges will be filed against him on complaint of Marjorie Crawford, actress-flier, that he forcibly took her to Yuma and tried to marry her.

Dowling was released from jail and agreed to return to Los Angeles.

He emphatically denied Mrs. Crawford's charges, insisting she came to Yuma volutarily.

(Associated Press.)

A change in present laws to forbid deportation of aliens for mere belief in communism or anarchy was recommended yesterday to Secretary Perkins by a special committee she appointed to study immigration statutes.

Active participation in an attempt to overthrow the Government should be required, the committee said.

It consisted of 48 men and women under the chairmanship of Carlton Palmer of New York. The report will be sent to Congress for its information.

"In view of the fact," the report said, "that the United States has always stood for the principle of freedom of conscience and belief there would seem no reason why an alien as a 'person' within the meaning of the American Constitution should not be entitled to the same freedom of belief which is accorded other persons in the community as long as he does not preach that belief in a way that would incite violence.

Proof Is Difficult.

"Furthermore, mere belief unless followed by expression of that belief or action in regard to it is difficult to establish and has caused many difficulties for the Immigration Service and for the courts."

As the result of many instances in which families were broken up through deportation proceedings, the committee advocated that the Secretary of Labor be empowered to cancel deportations unless the person is a criminal, anarchist or immoral.

A number of other changes were recommended which Miss Perkins said were intended for the "humanization" of the deportation laws.

They included a provision that no alien brought into this country under the age of 15 and who has lived here five years shall be deported unless accompanied by a parent who also is deported.

Deportation of Youths.

Another recommendation was for deportation of "any alien who within five years after entry becomes a public charge from causes shown to have existed prior to landing * * *."

Still another, intended to remedy a condition existing along the Canadian and Mexican borders, would read:

"A temporary absence from the country of an alien who has been legally admitted shall not be held to constitute an entry within the meaning of the deportation laws provided he has a return permit or a non-quota immigration visa or otherwise readmitted as a returning resident alien."

Now a native of Mexico or Canada who crosses the border for a day's visit must be listed as having reentered the country and in many instances is technically subject to deportation.

It's a proud family, too, all because the baby is getting ready to quit its "perambulator." He's 11 months old, but so far has ridden around in his mother's pouch, as shown here.

Oil Code Violation Hearing Monday

61 to Be Arraigned on California Indictments.

Los Angeles, April 3 (AP).—The Federal District Attorney said today the 61 officers and directors of oil companies indicted for violation of the industry's code of fair competition would be arraigned next Monday.

Arraignment of 22 officers and directors of the Standard Oil Co. of California and the Signal Oil Co. will be in Federal Judge William P. Games' court. Fifteen others of the Shell and Guardian Companies will be arraigned in Judge Cosgrave's court, and the rest, involving the Associated and Seaside Companies, will appear in Judge Harry Hollzer's court.

Gen. Foulois Hit By Plane Inquiry

"who fully intended to comply with the spirit of the act of July 2, 1926," learned of the plan and intervened. He demanded that competitive bids be sought.

Specifications were drawn by the Air Corps and proposals submitted to the aircraft industry for bids, but on March 5, the Judge Advocate General ruled the proposals were illegal, as they did not assure competitive bidding.

Refers to "Change" Incident.

In its report, the Rogers committee refers to Gen. Foulois' testimony regarding these specifications, pointing out he told a House appropriations subcommittee that "a change was made" by the assistant Secretary of War. Gen. Foulois later told the Rogers committee the "change" to which he referred was merely one in method of procurement.

Attaching copies of the testimony, the committee contends itself with saying that "the actions of Gen. Foulois are in no way approved".

The committee has received Woodring's assurance that new contracts for the $7,500,000 worth of planes, which, it is hoped, will be arranged shrotly after the report is rendered, will be let on a strictly competitive basis.

When the committee began its inquiry int othis phase of War Department procurement, Chairman Rogers said frankly he was not satisfied that the competition for the PWA plane contracts had been "as truly competitive as the Act intended". The committee now is satisfied, he said yesterday, that this was not Woodring's fault, but that the blame lay with the Air Corps.

Among changes which the committee will recommend to the House as a result of its investigation will be one to give the Comptroller General the right to supervise Army and Navy airplane and engine contracts.

It was over vain protests of Comptroller General McCarl that the Army, from mid-1926 until last January, had been buying virtually all its planes and motors through negotiated contracts with certain companies.

Question "Independents."

The committee, in executive session, yesterday questioned officials of "independent" airplane companies as to what changes they would propose in the basic law to give them a chance to sell aircraft to the Government.

The phase of its investigation covered by the committee's present report is merely concerned with the proposed expenditure of the $7,500,000 PWA allotment.

Investigation of procurement of other material by the War Department before and after Woodring became Assistant Secretary of War is proceeding.

It was explained the committee desired to report at this time on the $7,506,000 transaction, so that other arrangements could be made to buy the planes. The War Department, at the moment, is attempting to draw new proposals which will permit open bidding.

U. S. to Rush New Embassy For Moscow

Architect Will Study Site; $1,165,000 Is Appropriated.

By Kendall Foss.

With $1,165,000 in hand and an architect picked, the State Department is going ahead full speed with plans to erect an embassy building in Moscow.

Harry T. Lindeberg, well known New York architect, has been assigned to the job. He plans to sail for Moscow the middle of the month to study the site, a big plot on the banks of the River Moskva.

A structure which shall be truly representative of the best traditions in American architecture is the aim. Colonial is the choice, providing Lindeberg does not find it unsuitable upon arrival. Since Moscow boasts a large number of Italian and French renaissance buildings, low, sweeping, with pillars and broad porticos, it is believed American colonial will prove harmonious.

Design Variation Slated.

But owing to Moscow's extremely cold winters, the Northern version of colonial architecture will have to be drawn on more heavily than the Southern counterpart, as represented, for instance, in the University of Virginia buildings.

Tentatively the intention is to use the new Yale Divinity School, itself based on the University of Virginia but adapted to a colder climate, as the model.

The site is a sloping piece of ground on the upstream side of the town. The house will be built well back from the river, fairly near the street. It will face both ways, presenting a proper facade to the street yet serving as a fitting background for the lawn which will run down to the water's edge. A broad lawn is an essential part of the colonial style.

With wings on either side, the building will be designed to house the whole staff, embassy and consular, and to provide office space for all. The housing shortage in Moscow makes it imperative to erect one big building so as to be free of the harassing problem of continually shifting quarters.

At present Ambassador Bullitt and his ranking staff members are living in the palace of a former merchant prince. The rest of the staff are quartered in the Savoy Hotel. The temporary embassy is scheduled to be ready for occupancy May 1. It will house the offices and the staff members now at the Savoy. It is in the center of town, next door to the National Hotel, Moscow's No. 1 hostelry.

Will Submit Plans Soon.

Lindeberg is due to submit his preliminary plans as soon after his return from Moscow as possible. They will be studied by the Committee on Foreign Buildings. If approved, detailed plans should be ready late in the summer when construction can begin.

The committee is composed of two Senators, two Representatives and the Secretaries of State, Treasury and Commerce. Funds totaling $1,165,000 were included in the current State Department budget. Most of the money will be used in Moscow, it is understood, though a little of it will probably have to go for upkeep on other foreign buildings.

With the Moscow Embassy out of the way this year, attention will then swing to 'improving foreign service quarters in other parts of the world. Some of them are understood to be in pretty bad shape. The legation in Prague is one. The roof leaks, the plaster is falling off, the heating is inadequate. There are others, particularly quarters for consuls in out-of-the-way places, which badly need renovating.

Formerly it was the policy of this Government to let foreign service men find their own quarters and offices. In recent years, however, proper embassies have been either built or acquired in several important capitals.

The economy wave has checked the program, but the realization is apparently still there that adequate housing is part of the business of representation. No matter how well an Ambassador or Minister conducts himself he can hardly command the proper respect if his roof leaks.

The British and other nations own their foreign buildings outright. They find it cheaper than paying rent whether that rent be paid outright or in the form of living allowances to representatives.

Indications are this government is coming round to this point of view. The Mosocw plans are a case in point.

Mitchell Bares Profit Sharing

Certificate Holders Not Consulted on Bonus, Banker Says.

New York, April 3 (AP).—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank and its securities affiliate, the National City Co., testified today that resolutions of the affiliated board by which officers and directors shared in the profits never were submitted to certificate holders.

His testimony was offered in trial of a suit by which stockholders seek accounting of $70,000,000, alleged to have been lost through mismanagement.

Mitchell was acquitted nearly a year ago of a charge of income tax evasion. He said a management fund was established in 1921 as a profit-sharing arrangement for officers. Eight per cent was deducted from profits as dividend, he said, and one-fifth of the balance was reserved for the profit-sharing. The remaining four-fifths went to certificate holders.

$100,000 in Diamonds Stolen.

Omaha, April 3 (AP).—Theft of diamonds valued at between $100,000 and $150,000 wholesale, was reported to Omaha police today by Herbert L. Gardner, of New York, a salesman for the L. & M. Kahn Co., of New York on his arrival from Kansas City.

Bitter Senate Fight Stirred By Wirt Radicalism Charge

then we are in the midst of a revolution," shouted Senator Connally.

Senator Simeon D. Fess (Republican), Ohio, challenged his contention that the country had been returned to prosperity. He said a recent statement by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to the effect that 11,670,000 persons remain unemployed should be embarrassing to the Texan when claiming prosperity.

Meanwhile, the House waited for the return of Speaker Rainey from the funeral of Representative Edward W. Pou to name a committee to question Dr. Wirt. Whether others will be called, as demanded Monday by Representative McGugin (Republican), of Kansas, had not been decided. Secretary of the Interior Ickes, one of four McGugin thought should be called, announced he was ready to appear, although he did not know "what I am accused of."

Denies Communism.

Representative George Foulkes (Democrat), of Michigan, after unsuccessful efforts to get the House floor to assail Dr. Wirt, issued a formal statement, contending that "what the people want is not less radicalism, but more." He denied, however, that there is Socialism, "much less any Communism," in the Roosevelt Administration.

In another part of town, AAA officials contended that when former Senator Smith Brookhart, in a recent speech at a private dinner, suggested America might learn from the Soviet experiment, he was expresing his personal views. Brookhart now is a foreign trade adviser in the AAA.

On his own behalf, Brookhart made public a letter to Dickinson, taking the latter to task for asserting that the former Iowa Senator should be divorced from the Government pay roll because of his views. Brookhart told Dickinson he was a "tool of Wall street."

The Senate debate got under way when Senator Borah explained the Secretary of Agriculture had imposed a processing tax on jute bags, used principally for carrying such farm products as grains, potatoes, onions, and the like. He said he supposed the theory behind the tax was that jute bags competed with use of cotton bags. But they did not, he said, explaining a cotton bag could not take the place of a jute bag.

Cites Loss of Power.

Pointing out that the jute bag tax became a heavy burden on farmers in the West, Senator Borah said it should be repealed. Yet he said he found himself in an "extraordinary situation." He said that while "the taxing power is here, we find a tax Congress can not remove or remedy."

"The Congress has seen fit to delegate away its taxing power to such anextent," he continued, "that the only power we now have is, as it were, in the nature of a petition to the authority to whom we have delegated the power which the Constitution confided to the Congress. So I am exercising the right of a petitioner, petitioning a department of Government to relieve my people of an unjust and exorbitant tax."

Senator Borah said neither the Secretary of Agriculture nor the brain trust should be blamed for this situation. The fault rested with Congress, which gave up the power, he added. He said "it was amusing to hear about Congress investigating the brain trust and yet Congress has passed every bill I know of that the brain trust has suggested."

"Congress would do well to investigate itself," he asserted.

Tax Is Criticized.

Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, agreed with Borah, contending that "we have strayed far from the old Anglo-Saxon idea that he who has charge of the purse governs." Congress, he said, no longer governed the purse.

Terming the jute bag tax "entirely and wholly unjustified," he said the incident presented the "anomalous situation of the assertion that a processing tax shall be carried to the farmers of the West in order that farmers in some other place may reap the benefit of it, even though it carries ruin in the first place to those upon whom it is imposed."

Senator Dickinson joined the debate to protest against the jute tax and to point out that according to estimates of AAA expenditures in the budget for the year ending June next, compared with receipts so far and estimates for the next quarter, there would be a deficit of $544,288,000 in the Administration of AAA on June 30.

Hit Spending.

"Yet the former Administration was condemned on account of the loss of $276,000,000 by the Federal Farm Board and accused of being extravagant," he asserted. "This would indicate that the first fiscal year of the new Administration we will more than double that loss, with commitments for many millions of dollars running into the next fiscal year."

Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, interrupted his denunciation of Democratic spending, to remind him he voted to override the President's veto of increased payments for veterans. The Iowan said he was justified in that when the Administration was spending billions of dollars for other purposes.

As an indication of the direction in which the Democrats were carrying the country, Dickinson started to quote from "Our Economic Society," by Tugwell and Prof. Howard C. Hill of Chicago University.

Dickinson quoted from the book to show that Tugwell believed that the only way the standard of living could be raised was through "economic planning" and that "Russia has shown planning is practicable" and that "thikers in our own land too have advanced plans which do ot seem Utopian dreams" and that "the only obstacle to economic planning is the sort of ideals that we have carried over from an earlier day and which were developed to fit a totally different economic situation."

How One Girl Lost 25 Lbs. of FAT

Here's how one clever girl safely solved the problem of overweight. Miss Tucker, of Miami, Fla., writes: "Have taken 3 jars of Kruschen and lost 25 lbs. It's everything you claim. I've told my friends and they are now using Kruschen for the same reason and are very pleased."

What a glorious satisfaction to know that now you can reduce SAFELY and comfortably with the same treatment so many physicians prescribe—a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast. Kruschen not only reduces double chin, ugly fat on hips, waist, thighs and ankles, but it's actually a health treatment which builds up superb physical fitness, youthful vigor and gives you clear skin, sparkling eyes.

A jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but little at druggists everywhere—imitations are numerous—so protect your health—accept nothing but Kruschen—the SAFE, TESTED and proven way.

Wirt Pamphlet Says Theorists Blocked Gains

Created Despair So That New System Would Be Tried, He Asserts.

Warming to his attack upon the "brain trust" and its alleged ambitions to bring about an American revolution, Dr. William A. Wirt, head of the Gary (Ind.) school system, declares in the third installment of his pamphlet, "America Must Lose," that the Administration's advisers whom he accuses seek to destroy the old social order for the sake of the "New Deal." He adds:

"The Brain Trusters knew that in their despair the American people would accept the social reforms of the Brain Trusters—but not otherwise. Therefore, until the social reforms had been adopted, we must have destitution."

Dr. Wirt, who is to appear soon before a Congressional committee to explain his charges, refers again to April 19 as the most important date in American economic history, the date on which "our Government was compelled to abandon the plan of maintaining the purchasing power of the old gold dollar."

"The force of circumstance," he says, "kicked us upstairs to a business recovery (on that date) in spite of ourselves.

Claims Boom Was Stopped.

"But we did have enough initiative to stop the recovery. We actually did set it back. Last autumn the Brain Trust in Washington even bragged about the fact that with the NRA they had stopped the business boom.

"Of course all that we could do was to throw obstacles in the way. We could not prevent the operation of the money-economy laws even though we did not understand what we were doing to our money April 19 and actually tried to keep from doing it.

"The theory in Washington has been that we must restore recovery through the State regimentation of labor, industry, trade and agriculture. Then after we have actually restored recovery we can change our dollar to be in step with our new price level. The argument first, last and all of the time has been that a planned economy must come first. And there was a reason!

Calls Recovery Obstacle.

"The Washington theorists insisted on making believe that the restored price equilibrium, the actual restored employment and production that we really had last summer were undesirable because they had not been secured by their own peculiar labyrinth of social calculations. According to this viewpoint our recovery, which we actually had at that time, was the chief obstacle in the way of their pet social reforms.

"Of course it was not the Government at Washington. The United States Chamber of Commerce and the big business men put over the NRA. But they did not expect that the Government would go into partnership with the American Federation of Labor too. Some of the farm organizations helped put over the AAA. But they did not expect that the Government would also raise city prices that much more. The American Federation of Labor put over the plan of reducing the production of goods so that we can have more goods. But they did not expect that increased costs would decrease consuming power. They did not expect that their traditional remedies would aggravate the very disease that they wanted to cure.

Partnership Seen.

"Our Government went into partnership with these three opposing factors in our society. The Brain Trust put over the idea that if they were to destroy the terrible America of which many of us have been proud the recovery of the summer of 1933 must be obliterated. The Brain Trusters knew that in their despair the American people would accept the social reforms of the Brain Trusters—but not otherwise. Therefore, until the social reforms have been adopted we must have destitution.

"During the spring and summer of 1933 I was urging in Washington that we be content with getting back our wages, our jobs and our values of 1926, and then afterwards go about our social reforms. But to the Brain Trusters and their satellites such a plan was worse than wishing a terrible curse on humanity. They did not want the conditions of 1926 restored. They did not want anything restored. To them everything in America was bad and had always been bad—away with it. They wanted a NEW DEAL and they knew full well that to get the new social order it was necessary to destroy the old by making our people disgusted with it. With the conditions of 1926 restored, there would be no chance for the New Social Order."

Paris Seethes As Police Hunt Hidden Arms

Minister of Justice Orders Revolution Rumors Be Investigated.

Paris, April 3 (AP).—Fears that street fighting might be resumed and charges that rightists and leftists are preparing for a revolution led authorities today to redouble their searches for hidden arsenals.

Accusations of secret arming by the extremists were taken so seriously that Minister of Justice Henry Cheron ordered a vigorus investigation, despite denials by the police and secret service operatives that rifles and pistols were being smuggled across the French borders.

Thousands of rifles and automatic pistols were reported smuggled into France. Large quantities of pistols were said to be arriving in Paris daily, consigned to big armament firms.

Some estimated 14,000 rifles were brought into the country before War Minister Petain induced the cabinet to establish a close surveillance of the frontiers.

Judge Saussier, investigating magistrate, was known to be director of the Secret Service and judicial police hunt for the arsenals.

This search, however, was described as "too late" by Desire Ferry, editor of the newspaper, La Liberte, owned by former Premier Andre Tardieu.

Ferry maintained the weapons are destined for Socialists and Communists. The Communist newspaper, Humanite, declared, however, that the pistol shipments were to Rightist factions.

Ferry said the Communists planned to isolate Paris by a general strike, concentrate 12,000 shock troops in north and southwest Paris, and then capture the Elysee Presidential Palace, the interior ministry, telephone offices and the city hall, under the cover of guerrilla warfare by unorganized Leftist elements.

Oklahoma Sets First Sterilization Hearing

U. S. Will Offer 12-Year Issue For Liberties

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Morgenthau yesterday held the Treasury's billion dollar financing to a strictly refunding basis and by seeking no new cash indicated curtailed Government spending in the immediate future.

A series of 10-12 year Treasury bonds paying 3¼ per cent was offered holders of a billion dollars in Fourth Liberty bonds maturing April 15 and of $244,234,600 in Treasury notes maturing May 2.

By allowing only exchange subscriptions, Morgenthau gave evidence that the Treasury's present supply of ready cash—$2,006,000,000 excluding the $2,810,000,000 profit on dollar devaluation—was ample to meet spending needs until the end of the fiscal year, June 30.

Deficit Well Under Estimate.

With the deficit at the end of nine months reaching only $2,542,000,000, Morgenthau's financing plan was interpreted as indicating the year-end deficit would fall well below $5,000,000,000, as compared with January budget estimates of more than $7,000,000,000.

The new issue of bonds will be dated April 16 and mature April 15, 1946, but the Treasury may call them on or after April 15, 1944.

Holders of the called Forth Liberts and May 2 notes have the option of taking the new bonds in exchange or accepting cash. The Treasury expects a big majority to avail themselves of the exchange opportunity.

Called Last Fall.

The Libertys due April 15 are part of $1,875,000,000 which were called last October, for that date. At that time the Treasury offered in exchange a 10-12 year bond issue paying 4¼ per cent the first year and 3¼ thereafter. The Fourth Libertys pay 4¼. The October exchange amounted to approximately $900,000,000, and the remainder may now be exchanged for the new issue of bonds. The May 2 maturity are 3 per cent notes.

With both April and May maturities covered by the bond issue, the only other scheduled financing before the end of the fiscal year is a $174,905,500 maturity of one-quarter of 1 per cent certificates due June 15.

Morgenthau's financing announcement coincided with figures on the Treasury's financial condition at the end of March for the first nine months of the fiscal year. In this nine-month period, the Government had taken in $2,305,704,000 and had spent $1,987,039,000 on routine costs and $2,860,965,000 on emergency recovery outlays. The deficit of $2,542,299,000 compared with an excess of expenditures on the same day last year of $2,254,828,000.

Debt Is $26,157,509,000.

The public debt stood at $26,157,509,000, as compared with $21,362,444,000 a year ago.

The rate of spending again dropped off in March. The month's total of $610,232,000 compared with $835,321,000 in February and $980,579,000 in January, the peak month. From July through January spending had increased steadily.

Administration officials say, however, that the recovery budget should be viewed on an 18-month basis—from last January when estimates were submitted to Congress to July 1, 1935. If estimated expenditures are not fulfilled this fiscal year, the Treasury expects them to be made in the next fiscal year.

Before calling on Col. Delamater, Lange declared he "knew nothing of these allegations until the memorandum was given to me last night."

Calls Accusation Libelous.

"One of the accusations contained in the report," he said, "is that I was aware of these alleged irregularities and that I did nothing about them.

"I consider this untrue and libelous. Whoever made this charge was not in possession of the facts. I knew nothing about any irregularities in the distribution of CWA jobs in New York City."

Lange said his first effort would be to identify the author of the memorandum.

The report cited alleged instances of bribery and declared that thousands of applicants were ignored in favor of "the political henchmen of various district leaders, men with money to bribe their way into jobs, and friends of the NRA."

Czek Envoy Cites Inroads of European Radicals.

Richmond, April 3 (Spl.).—Dr. Ferdinand Veverke, Czechoslovakian, minister to Washington, tonight attended the formal opening of the Race Culture exhibit at the Valentine Museum, which was arranged by Czechoslovakian citizens of Virginia.

Describing his native land as a stronghold of conservative democracy, Dr. Veverka asserted that political theories of Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy are gaining small foothold among the youth of Czechoslovakia.

spiracy and other illegal and immoral acts may be prevented from consummating their apparent designs and justice awarded where it is deserved."

The bankruptcy committee, headed by Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, already has given attention to the case, and, the chairman said, was ready to go into it in detail but for the fact that its funds have been exhausted through other inquiries.

"If and when they give us the funds," he said, "we will go ahead with this and other investigations. We will hear all the witnesses if they wish to appear and if not we will issue subpenas. At present, we haven't even enough money to pay the stenographer."

Tells of Conference.

The receivership, Backus said, was agreed upon in February, 1931. The following summer, he continued, he participated in a conference with Albert H. Wiggin, then president of Chase National Bank; A. R. Graustein, president of International Paper & Power, and Malcolm Chase.

It became apparent, he said, "that these interests were determined to secure our properties regardless of the methods necessary."

Since then, he added, the new receivers have been supported by the "so-called bondholders' protective committee," which, he continued, really represented the bankers.

"Unless we can secure the sympathetic interest and assistance of some Federal tribunal which has the power to prevent the successful consummation of this diabolical steal," Backus said, "the innocent investors and other unprotected creditors will receive only a small fraction of their original investment, and the equity of myself and minority stockholders, which has been valued at many millions of dollars by the Internal Revenue Bureau for tax purposes, will be wiped out completely."

Youth, 17, Is Sought On Charge of Murder

Las Vegas, N. Mex., April 3 (AP). Murder charges were filed today against Lindon Holcomb, 17-year-old former member of the Las Vegas Transient Relief Camp, in connection with the death of William J. Dring, 22, of Owatonna, Minn., a fellow camper.

A fractured skull suffered when Holcomb struck him with a rock the night of March 20, proved fatal to Dring last night. Holcomb is at large. His home, according to the transient camp, is Chattanooga, Tenn.

Johnson to Let NRA License Curb to Lapse

plans for building revival and for further activating heavy industries as soon as these are completed by the National Emergency Council. The plans are only in a formative stage, he said.

Harriman Temporary.

Reports that Averill I. Harriman, recently pushed up to the job of first assistant to Johnson, would become NRA administrator were denied by Johnson. He said Harriman was in the NRA on a temporary basis.

Johnson also indicated that he plans to testify before Congressional committees on the Wagner bill, designed to outlaw company-controlled labor unions and to make the National Labor Board permanent. Johnson was to have been the first witness to appear in connection with the bill, but he said he had been too busy with the automobile labor controversy and other duties to attend.

"I expect to testify sooner or later," he said. "I can't comment on the bill now. I haven't even read it."

The bill in its original form appeared to be in direct conflict with the policy laid down by President Roosevelt in settling the automobile labor controversy and the policy later followed by NRA in settling the Budd automobile body labor disagreement. These settlements distinctly placed company unions on an equal basis with outside labor organizations.

A careful study of necessity for wage increases and reduction in working hours in each industry is continuing, Johnson said. He pointed out that recently wage increases have been announced in many industries affecting hundreds of thousands of workers. In only a few instances, however, have hours been shortened.

Further Cut in Hours.

Johnson asserted some time ago that he felt that there must be further reduction in the working hours of labor if unemployment is to be ended. The average of coded industries is about 40 hours a week. It was suggested at that time that NRA might ask for a general reduction to 32 hours a week, except in industries where such a reduction would not be possible.

In line with his idea that industry should regulate itself as far as possible, Johnson said the hour and wage situation would be canvassed in each industry and changes agreed upon after study of individual situations rather than by any blanket order or request. Industries are being studied in the light of the more recent proposal that wages be increased 10 per cent and that working hours be decreased 10 per cent, thus giving employes almost as much money for the shorter week as for the longer one.

The plan for distribution of Code Eagles to industries operating under specific codes, in place of the Eagles distributed when industries signed the President's reemployment agreement, is "still in court," Johnson said.

Johnson was asked what he thought of the statement of Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary (Ind.) educator, that the NRA was destroying purchasing power.

"It's the bunk," he said.

Johnson's statements were made at the first press conference he has held since February 26. Recently instructions have been given to NRA employes and officials not to give out information except through the NRA press division.

Hi-Y Will Meet At Culpeper

Ira Thomas, Former Ball Star, Will Address Conference.

Culpeper, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—A Culpeper County youth conference, sponsored, by the Boys and Girls Hi-Y Clubs of Culpeper, will be held here the week-end of April 20.

Ira Thomas, of Philadelphia, former big league ball player, will speak.

The program theme is "The Place of Youth in Modern Life." Committees are: Program, Miss Evelyn Bickers, Landon; Majoe and John W. Yowell, jr., and banquet arrangements, Miss Kitty Waite, Miss Betty von Gemmingen and Carlos Williams.

Advisers for the boys' group are W. W. Jefferson, E. J. Nottingham, jr., Giles H. Miller, jr., and Dr. T. W. Hooper, and for the girls, Miss Ruth Campbell, Miss Mary Ruth Winn, Miss Mary McNeil and Miss Anna Minter.

Youth Who Threatened Own Kidnaping Freed

Philadelphia, April 3 (AP).—William Jacob Mezger, 18, student at a Cleveland school, today was placed on probation for one day as the penalty for his admitted attempt to extort $5,000 from his own mother by threatening him with his own kidnaping.

Federal Judge George A. Welsh said he was being lenient because "William is not a bad boy." Mezger said he had written the letter because he wanted to leave a college in Gettysburg, Pa.

Insull Gives Up And Asks U. S. For Protection

skirmishes in Greece, said, in effect, that Insull's next trip would be to the United States.

His attorney, Maitre Mango, visited him in the house of detention and the two conferred at length.

Insull is depressed, Mango said, but in good health and as comfortable as circumstances permit.

American officials in Washington have not been informed whether it will be necessary to send an authorized American police officer to Istanbul, or a cabled Presidential warrant would be sufficient.

It was understood an American citizen in Turkey would be deputized by President Roosevelt to bring Insull to the United States if a warrant by cable would meet Turkish legal requirements.

Public Prosecutor Kena said the decision of the third penal tribunal that Insull could be extradited legally was merely a statement of fact, from which no appeal could be heard.

The court of cassation tightened Turkey's point of view by definitely forbidding any new move.

Prosecution Prepared.

Chicago, April 3 (AP).—Copies of all records and indictments in the mail fraud and bankruptcy cases against Samuel Insull were dispatched today by U. S. District Attorney Dwight Green to Attorney General Cummings, who telephoned for them.

Forest Harness, special assistant to the Attorney General, said:

"All that remains now is the sending to Turkey of a cablegram purporting to be a true copy of the Presidential warrant for Insull's return."

American Citizenship Is Renounced by Insull

Istanbul, April 3 (U.P.).—Samuel Insull renounced his United States citizenship today and claimed he was a British subject in his battle against extradition to America on charges of fraud.

His attorneys took this step after Turkish authorities had rejected the Chicago fugitive's appeal from a court decision earlier in the week, holding him for U. S. authorities.

Prosecutor Kena Bey said no appeal was in order. Insull's legal aids revealed they intended to carry the fight to the highest authorities.

Rumania Won't Hear Appeal From Fugitive

Constanza, Rumania, April 3 (U.P.). Mme. Zehra Couyoumdjoglou, confidant of the Insulls, was forbidden at the last minute today to proceed to Bucharest and forced to return to Istanbul aboard a Rumanian steamer. She presumably had been on her way to the capital to plead for a refuge for Samuel Insull in this country.

Intense excitement was caused by recurrent rumors that Insull had arrived on the Rumanian coast, across the Black Sea from his present exile in Istanbul.

At least five "Insulls" were arrested—all turning out to be innocent dumbfounded fishermen.

Norfolk Stores Victimized; U. S. Aids Search.

Norfolk, Va., April 3 (Spl.). State, Federal and local police today were close on the trail of a gang of counterfeiters who have been passing spurious $20 bills, it was announced today by Department of Justice agents. Eleven of the counterfeit bills were passed in grocery stores here in one day.

Police learned that the men who circulated the money arrived here from Florida last week in two groups of three each. Authorities were told that three of the men left Norfolk last night, the other trio having left one or two days earlier.

Police communicated their information to Department of Justice officials in Richmond, and descriptions of the men were broadcast over the State.

Board to Study Bay Pollution

Virginia Body's Members to Be Named by Peery Shortly.

Richmond, April 3 (Spl.).—Members of the commission of five men to study pollution in Hampton Roads and the Chesapeake Bay will be named by Gov. Peery "within the next few days," it was announced at his office today. The Governor signed the bill constituting the commission last week.

Ways and means of freeing waters of pollution and redemption of thousands of acres of oyster grounds, condemned because of unhealthful conditions caused from sewerage in Hampton Roads, from Norfolk and Newport News, will be recommended by the commission.

The bill in its final form carries an amendment not formerly reported, authorizing Gov. Peery to pay the chairman of the commission, who is to be selected by the members of that body a salary not exceeding $3,600 a year.

Another bill has been signed by Gov. Peery making it illegal for anyone to pollute the waters of any of the shellfish areas or creeks in the County of Matthews. A fine of $5 to $100 is provided for violators.

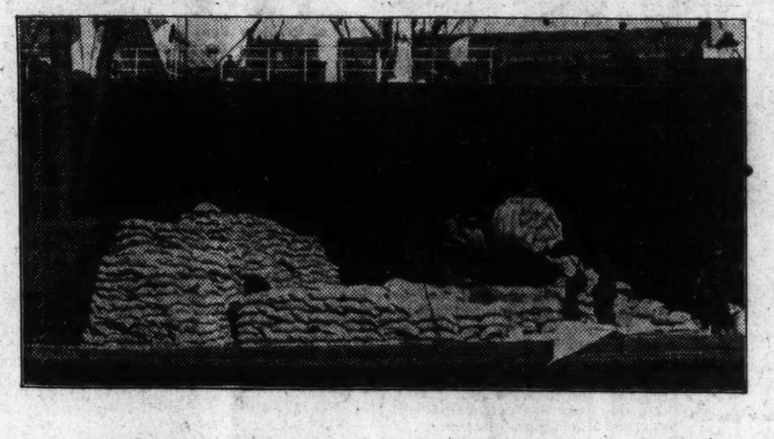
Cargoes that put Americans out of work



THERE is often a suspicion that when a great industry speaks in its own behalf, it has a hidden purpose. . . . The facts in the situation confronting the United States sugar refining industry today, however, speak for themselves.

When workers in the great refineries of the principal seaports of the country see cargoes of refined sugar being unloaded at their very doorstep, they know that every bag means just so much less work for them and their fellow-workers, just so much less business for the community in which they live and for other communities of fellow Americans! Tropical refineries hum, United States refineries work part time.

No one can seriously question the efficiency with which the American refiners have served the American public in supplying it with the finest sugar, in all required varieties, at a low and reasonable price. In the years 1922 to 1931, 19 American refineries paid out $231,605,137 in wages and salaries. They pay out for materials and supplies, including coal, oil and power, approximately one billion dollars in a normal ten-year period, furnishing business for many industries and employment for many thousands of our people.

These cargoes of refined sugar are being dumped here from the Philippines, Puerto Rico, and Cuba because we have a tariff schedule which gives, in effect, not only free trade to all island refiners but a virtual subsidy to Cuba. This has already resulted in a loss to Americans of a market within their own country equivalent to the annual consumption of sugar in the following 21 states: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Delaware, West Virginia, South Carolina, Mississippi, Florida, Arkansas, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Colorado, and Oregon.

The sugar refining industry has been singled out for this kind of foreign invasion. Other importers of raw materials are carefully safeguarded. Raw cocoa beans, for instance, are admitted free of duty; but finished chocolate must pay a 40% duty! Raw silk is free of duty; but finished silk must pay a duty of 65%!

No country can surpass the United States in the modernness, efficiency and sanitary cleanliness of its sugar refineries.

Experience demonstrates that the cane sugar industry attains its highest development by producing raw cane sugar in the tropics and refining it in the country of consumption. This method utilizes the most efficient factors in both fields and renders the best permanent service to the public.

American refineries operate under the NRA. American refineries also pay larger taxes and recently a processing tax on supplies. Cuba has tropical labor, pays no processing tax, and enjoys a subsidy in addition! This is what closes domestic refineries and takes business from the coal fields and supply firms everywhere.

The cane sugar refining industry, like many other American industries, has grown through 200 years with the needs of expanding America. Its purpose has been to receive the raw materials from sugar-producing areas of the world and refine them into an essential food for the entire country. So efficiently has this service been rendered that neither drought nor flood, hurricane nor war have hitherto impaired the service it has performed.

It is certainly in the public interest to keep this great industry within our borders.

Kiwanians Pay 10,603 Visits To Each Other

Club at Charlottesville Announces 6-Week Contest Result.

Charlottesville, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—The "visitation contest," initiated by the Kiwanis Club three months ago at the suggestion of Arthur M. Gable, club president, ended tonight, when prizes were awarded the winners at the second Ladies' Night banquet of the year.

Points were offered for attendance, promptness, bringing in a new member, visits to other clubs and for each personal visit to a fellow member. Each Kiwani-Ann was also to visit the wives of Kiwanians at their homes.

In the closing days of the contest members and their wives made more and more personal calls, adding hundreds of points to their scores. Some members came to the homes of others and looked after the children to enable the parents to make contest visits.

Scores Announced.

Fifty-nine of the 63 club members and 56 Kiwani-Anns made 10,603 personal visits to other members in 12 weeks and also made 187 visits to other clubs. Only six men visited less than 100 per cent of the other members' offices, and only five visited less than 100 per cent of residences. All but five of the ladies turned in a perfect score for residential visits. Standing of the five highest was:

The Kiwanians—Arthur M. Gable, 7,640 points; Dr. Arthur Bevan, 6,915; E. I. Carruthers (District Governor), 6,620; Dr. Dan O. Via, 6,505; Thomas Northey, 6,400.

Kiwani-Anns—Florence Gable, 4,190 points; Edna Bevan, 4,010; Ellie Carruthers, 3,805; Josephine Via, 3,710; Louise Hundley, 3,685.

The final team standing was: Musicians, 75,980 points; Orphans, 70,075; Underprivileged, 68,935; Fishermen, 67,175; Builders, 66,790; Farmers, 66,735; Educators, 64,340; Visitors, 57,495.

Dr. Bevan "Best Kiwanian."

Dr. Arthur Bevan acclaimed "best Kiwanian in the club for 1934," and Mrs. Bevan as "first lady in Kiwanis for 1934." The second prize went to Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Carruthers, and the third prize to Dr. and Mrs. Dan O. Via.

The Musicians, team contest winners, will be guests at a complimentary dinner and entertainment, with all expenses paid by the Visitors, who registered the lowest score. The team scores were the combined scores of the team members and their wives.

The contest brought a gain in membership, and higher club attendance, morale and activity, officers reported.

Robber Uses Gas In Norfolk House, Gets Woman's $20

Norfolk, April 3 (Spl.).—An apostle of the mysterious "gas man" who terrorized Botetourt County for two months has invaded Norfolk, according to Mrs. Lena Whitehurst.

She told police she was awakened about 3 a. m. today by the odor of gas. She found all gas outlets in the house were closed. Then she found her home had been entered by an intruder who forced a rear door, and he had taken $20 from her purse, also a sweater and a cap.

Detectives believe the intruder released a peculiar gas in Mrs. Whitehurst's home to keep her asleep until he could ransack the house.

Alexandria CCC Quarantine Ended

Measles Cases Cleared Up at Fort Hunt.

The measles quarantine clamped down last month on Fort Hunt, CCC camp below Alexandria, was lifted last night and 90 members whose enlistments have expired were placed at liberty to return to their homes in Western New York.

Along with 106 other campers whose six-month terms are not yet up, they were quarantined two weeks ago after two cases of measles were discovered. The 90 youths, who were to have left March 25, remained on the job although there is some doubt as to whether they will receive pay for the nine-day interval.

Removal of the measles restrictions will permit greater progress on the bridle path being built on Columbia Island, which is nearly completed, and ground clearing along the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway and razing of the old Norton rendering plant, Fort Hunt officials said yesterday.

Maryland Tercentenary Celebration Plan Is Arousing Wide Interest Over Country

R. Bennett Darnall Finds Entire Nation Wants News of Fete.

By Marion Butler.

Baltimore, April 3.—With hundreds of letters from all over the United States flooding tercentenary commision headquarters here, R. Bennett Darnall knows what it is to have a daily "sink or swim" sensation. He also understands just how large the Maryland Tercentenary is looming on the American horizon.

Mr. Darnall, Baltimore lawyer, is chairman of the Maryland Tercentenary Commission's executive committee, composed of 12 leading Marylanders who are planning celebrations of their Sate's 300th anniversary.

Except for William T. Marbury, commission head, no other man is so well qualified as Mr. Darnall to discuss the interest aroused by the tercentenary program the climax of which is scheduled for June 16 at St. Marys City, site of Maryland's first settlement.

"Press and radio have spread news of the tercentenary throughout the Nation," Mr. Darnall said today. Queries are being received from as far West as California and from northern and southernmost States. Not only transplanted Marylanders write to us for tercentenary information, but citizens of many other States. I believe this is due greatly to a National interest in the Maryland principles of freedom of conscience and religious toleration. Founded on Maryland shores 300 years ago and here first introduced into American life, these two great principles form the basis of all of the tercentenary celebrations."

Will Be Broadcast.

When the restored State House of 1676 is dedicated and huge land and water pageants held at St. Marys City June 16, this National interest will be taken into consideration, Mr. Darnall stated.

The tercentenary program will be broadcast over a Nation-wide hookup. News reel men will record the seventeenth century pageantry in pictures.

Governors from all the Eastern States have been invited, and many plan to sail up St. Marys River to the celebration in yachts. High officials in Maryland and the Federal Government will speak.

Already requests are coming in for celebration souvenirs to be reserved even before they have come from the presses or dies. These include a proposed bronze souvenir medal which will be sold throughout the country, and an elaborate Maryland tercentenary program book.

The medal was designed by Hans Schuler at a cost of $1,000. It depicts the landing of the settlers at St. Marys City March 27, 1634, with the figures of Leonard Calvert and Father Andrew White, Jesuit and first historian of Maryland, in the foreground. On the reverse will be the profiles of either Gov. Ritchie, or of George and Cecil Calvert.

Booklet to Be Varied.

Included in the tercentenary booklet will be a map of the original St. Marys City, by J. Spence Howard; pictures and historical descriptions of old Maryland homes, a program of events, the story of the pageant now being completed, by Mrs. Kathleen R. Coontz, and reproductions of many portraits of famous Maryland characters, now in the collection of Dr. Hugh Young, of Baltimore.

A tercentenary memorial coin will also be among the souvenirs to be sold throughout the country, if the measure passes the House of Representatives. It already has passed the Senate.

Mr. Darnall said the traffic problem at the St. Marys City celebration will be strategically solved. Traffic will move to the ceremonies along the Leonardtown-Great Mills road, but will leave St. Marys by way of the Three Notch Road, the oldest in the State, now being extended for this special use.

Sate police to deal with the crowds will be detailed from Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia as well as Maryland. Mr. Darnall expects Gen. Milton Reckord, head of the Maryland Nationl Guard, to have from 1,200 to 1,500 National guardsmen and troops from Fort Myer present.

May Be Extended.

Because of interest in the events, Mr. Darnall said today that "a three-day celebration" beginning Friday, June 15 and covering Sunday—with the main dedication ceremonies of the State House and the pageants taking place on Saturday, June 16, as planned—may be decided.

Boat races already are scheduled for Friday, June 15, on St. Marys River, to be followed that night by colonial dances at Leonardtown, Point Lookout, and other places in St. Marys County.

On Saturday, from 10:30 to 1 o'clock, civil ceremonies and speeches dedicating the State House replica will be broadcast, followed by two huge water and land pageants depicting the first 60 years of Maryland life from 1634 to 1694 that afternoon.

Other entertainment at the St. Marys celebration will include: airplane maneuvers by Maryland National Guard planes, a military display of marching and drill formations, and a typical Southern Maryland tournament. Throughout the week, historic homes and gardens of southern Maryland will be open to the public.

3-Day Observance Being Considered Now, Due to This Stimulus.

Rum Dealers Seek Influence Of Legislators

Norfolk Members Reveal Requests for "Aid" With ABC Board.

Norfolk, April 3 (AP).—Representatives of liquor interests have approached several members of the Norfolk delegation in the General Assembly, seeking their influence with the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

This became known after United States Senator Harry F. Byrd had issued a statement in Washington advising the liquor interests that they must not tamper with the State Democratic political organization in an effort to advance their causes.

Senator J. W. Egleston, chairman of the commision which drafted the law under which the ABC board acts, has been approached by representatives of several liquor concerns, he said.

"I have told all representatives of these interests that I had nothing to do with the ABC board, and that with the passage of the bill the matter was out of my hands."

Delegrate Ralph H. Daughton announced that representatives of three liquor concerns had approached him, asking for introductions to members of the alcoholic beverage control board. Their approach was by way of seeking to retain him as counsel, he said.

"I told them all that I could not be of assistance," he said. "I could not act in that capacity unless I resigned from the General Assembly."

Senator John A. Lesner said that a liquor company representative had made overtures to him to go into the liquor business.

"I told him," said Senator Lesner, "that I already had troubles enough without that."

Delegate Vivian L. Page said that nobody had brought any pressure to bear on him to use his influence with the board.

Delegate Richard W. Ruffin said that he had not been approached by anyone in connection with the liquor business.

Judge Puzzled on Course After Converted Man Admits Old Deed.

Charlottesville, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—To make peace with his conscience, C. W. Sandridge, 24, of Mechums River, has confessed to burning his house five years ago to collect insurance.

He visited Judge Lemuel Smith in the Albemarle Circuit Court yesterday and gave his story of arson, for which he had never been suspected.

On February 15, 1929, he said, he set fire to an unoccupied house which he owned. The Albemarle Mutual Insurance Co. paid him $1,000.

"I was pretty wicked then," Sandridge told the court, adding that he used the money to pay $300 in debts and to purchase an automobile. The small remainder he "just threw around and wasted."

Two years ago, he stated, he became converted in a Holiness Church, and the crime began to weigh heavily upon his conscience. So he took his problem to a minister of that denomination, and was advised to repay the $1,000 even if he had to do it 50 cents at a time.

But the intervening two years have proved hard ones, and he has been unable to save anything. He has a third interest in a small farm and a wife and two small children. A third child died last year.

H. L. Clark, insurance company official, said Sandridge had laid the matter before his board, which had agreed to have him pay it back.

"This is the most remarkable case I have seen in a long time," said Judge Smith to Sandridge. "In fact, so remarkable that I am not certain now what is the best thing to do. I will take it under consideration.

"I am glad to find a man willing to tell of his own crime, even in a case where there has been no danger of people finding it out, or of being prosecuted. I congratulate you for this."

Maryland's Gas Tax Receipts Up $74,447

Annapolis, Md., April 3 (Spl.).—Gross receipts from the State's 4-cent gasoline tax for March increased $74,447.55, compared to the corresponding month last year, records in the comptroller's office show.

The total for the month was $556,010.56.

Company Picks Its Directors

Stewart - Warner Stock Proxies Start, Plan New Meeting.

Richmond, April 3 (AP).—Stockholders of Stewart-Warner Corporation at their annual meeting here today elected directors, but a lack of proxies prevented action on proposed amendments to the charter. The meeting will reconvene April 16. The stock available for voting charter changes was a few proxies short of the required two-thirds.

One of the proposed changes would reduce the par value of stock from $10 to $5 a share. Another would change the name from Stewart-Warner Corporation to Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation.

Knowlson is the only new member.

Professor at U. Va. Publishes Volume on Pension Systems

Charlottesville, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—A 260-page volume on the pension-system structure and operation in Virginia by Dr. Rowland Andrews Egger, associate professor of political science in the University of Virginia, has just been published by D. Appleton-Century Co.

This book, written with the assistance of the committee on pensions of the League of Virginia Municipalities, is a publication of the University of Virginia Institute for Research in the Social Sciences.

Under the title, "The Retirement of Public Employes in Virginia," Prof. Egger has discussed the principles of sound pensions from the standpoint of law, actuarial science and pension system structure.

The primary purpose of Prof. Egger's book is to provide practical assistance in formulating provisions for the retirement of public employes which are adapted to local needs, and at the same time in keeping with sound pension practice.

It deals with a general pension system and offers ordinances, laws, articles of incorporation and by-laws that include all details of pension administration. Except for the development of tables and rates the book supplies information sufficient for the setting up of a valid pension system.

While this study is the eighteenth in the series issued by the Institute of Public Affairs, it is the first of a series of manuals on public administration.

Ellicott City Bank Plan Up To Depositors

Choice of Liquidation or Reorganization Set for Tonight.

Mount Airy, Md., April 3 (Spl.). Depositors of the closed Washington Trust Co. of Ellicott City tomorrow night will be offered a choice of two plans — liquidation of the former branch of the defunct Central Trust Co. or adherence to a reorganization plan now being prepared by a committee.

The Washington Trust Co. which was allowed to rescind its merger with the Central Trust Co. now has cash on hand sufficient to make a 25 per cent payment to depositors, it has been announced. Other assets, including mortgages, stocks, bonds and notes, would permit a payment of a least another 25 per cent in several years, it was said.

At an informal meeting of depositors J. Edwin Kroh was named to appoint a committee of five depositors to confer with attorneys in an attempt to frame a plan of reorganization. Mr. Kroh named a committee of Herbert G. Brown, chairman; Oscar Davis, Joseph C. Gerwig, William E. Kraft and Norman S. Betts. Their legal advisers include W. Herbert Mellor, W. Clinton McSherry, Joseph L. Donovan and Jerome A. Loughran, who represented the depositors in the suit to rescind the merger with the Central Trust.

Details of the proposed plan will be submitted to depositors at the meeting tomorrow. The law provides that depositors owning at least 25 per cent of the company's assets must sign an agreement favoring reorganization. The plan then must be submitted to the State bank examiner, after which it goes for final approval to the court.

There are about 1,200 depositors' accounts in the Washington Trust. Plans for the reorganization of the Central Trust, providing for an initial payment of 5 per cent to depositors when business is resumed, do not include the location of a branch in Howard County. Five new banks provided for will be located at Middletown, Frederick, Walkersville, Sykesville and Poolesville, the last two in Carroll and Montgomery Counties, respectively.

Ruling on Gas Tax Will Be Appealed

Supreme Court to Get Case in West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.). Attorney Gen. Homer A. Holt announced today that the recent invalidation of the State chain store tax law as applied to filling stations by a three-judge Federal court here would be appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The court sitting here held the act was unconstitutional as to gasoline stations in suits brought against Fred L. Fox, State tax commissioner, by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, the Gulf Refining Co., of Port Arthur, Tex., the Sinclair Refining Co., of Chicago, and the Ashland Refining Co., of Ashland, Ky.

Formal decrees entered yesterday in the Standard and Gulf cases directed the return of $240,173 and $184,061, respectively, of taxes paid under protest.

Baltimore Aid Rolls May List 20% of City

One of Every 5 Families on Relief; 172,000 Believed Helped.

Baltimore, April 3 (Spl.).—At least one out of every five persons in Baltimore will be supported by relief funds during the next few months, it was revealed today by J. Warren Belcher, secretary of the Baltimore Emergency Relief Commission, and Miss Anna Ward, director of the commission.

Mr. Belcher said that he believes 40,000 families in the city will be on the relief rolls. Figuring on a basis of the Federal Government's estimate of 4.3 persons to a family, that would mean at least 172,000 persons here would be receiving aid, of a total population of 804,000.

The ratio is probably higher than those figures would indicate, however, as a large proportion of the families to be aided are believed to consist of more than 4.3 persons.

Mr. Belcher said not all of the persons in the 40,000 families would be receiving all their funds from the relief agencies. He pointed out that any family receiving aid, however small, is classified as on the relief rolls.

Many families may be receiving its chief support from the employment of one or more of its members in private industry, but if some of its members are still on the relief rolls, then the entire family is classified under the 40,000 figure.

Furthermore, to show the situation in its brighter aspects, Mr. Belcher pointed out that it is distinctly possible that the costs of relief work here may be lower than in the past.

The reason for this, he said, is that many CWA workers were not actually relief cases, but their pay was figured in with the city's direct relief bill. Under the new policy adopted by the State and city relief administrations, those applying for "made-work" jobs must apply as relief cases.

Good West Virginia Fishing Is Forecast

Late Spring Is Expected to Boost Trout Supply.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.). Big trout fishing is expected in West Virginia this year with the opening of the official season April 15.

Old-time fishermen say the late spring should result in a good supply of trout.

Trout may be caught in the State from April 15 to July 31.

PWA Inspectors On 3 Jobs Named

Capital Man in Charge of Alexandria Work.

Richmond, April 3 (AP).—Resident engineer inspectors who will supervise PWA projects in three Virginia areas were announced yesterday by K. L. Black, inspection engineer for the State Public Works Administration.

Fred L. McGiffin, of Washington, will be in charge of the Alexandria, Va., street paving and sewer project, to cost $300,000; Allison R. Turney, of Phoebus, Va., will have charge of the Chesapeake Shores Restoration Corporation, which will operate under a loan of $250,000; and Louis Charles Isaac, of Norfolk, will be assigned to the new dormitory at Harrisonburg State Teachers' College, which will cost approximately $130,000.

Simultaneously, the Virginia Emergency Relief Administration announced that its works division would institute six types of projects. They include planning, housing, public property, production and distribution of goods needed by unemployed persons, public welfare, health and recreation, public education, arts and research.

Virginia Socialists Pick Kibler for Convention

Newport, Va., April 3 (AP). — J. Luther Kibler, secretary of the Socialist Party of Virginia, was elected State delegate to the National convention at Detroit, June 1, according to an announcement here last night.

Victim of Calf Buried.

Danville, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held here yesterday for John H. Hopkins, 84, who died yesterday from injuries sustained when he was knocked down by a calf.

Virginia Towns Oppose Liquor, Strong Brews

Bridgewater Referendum Petition Started; Plan Harrisonburg Vote.

Bridgewater, Va., April 3 (Spl.). This town, the seat of Bridgewater College and recognized as one of the "dryest" towns in the Valley, took steps today to prevent the sale of strong beer and wines and the establishment of a dispensary in that community. A petition, asking the Rockingham Circuit Court to call a local option election, was placed in circulation today.

The movement for such referendum started among the Bridgewater students several weeks ago and has been taken up by the churches and citizens. The Bridgewater town council will meet Thursday and request the State liquor board not to grant licenses for the sale of strong beer and wines nor place a liquor store in Bridgewater until the voters pass upon the question.

There is talk of a petition for a local option election in Harrisonburg, and opponents of a State liquor store here say it will be placed in circulation within a few days.

Mount Crawford, a small town near the Augusta County line, has sent to the State liquor board a petition, signed by 224 voters, protesting against the granting of licenses for the sale of beer stronger than 3.2 and of wine in that town. The number of signers represent 90 per cent of the voters of that community.

City Rate Set-up Answers Not Filed

Virginia Public Service Defense Filed.

Richmond, April 3 (AP).—Virginia cities failed to answer, within the prescribed 15-day period, the brief filed by the Virginia Public Service Company in defense of its present power rate structure, Corporation Commissioner H. Lester Hooker, said today.

Mr. Hooker added, however, that the record would not be considered closed in the event any communication from a municipality had been delayed unavoidably.

An early conference for the review of the report by Allen J. Saville of the company's operations and the company's reply is planned.

Ministers Plan 1-Day Institute

Martinsburg Program Set for April 30.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.).—The Rev. Dr. W. Gresham Machen, president of Westminster Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, will conduct a one-day Christian institute for Protestant ministers of Berkeley and adjoining counties here April 30, the Martinsburg Ministerial Association announces.

Dr. Machen will conduct a retreat for the pastors during the day, will speak at a banquet for ministers and their wives, and address a meeting later in the evening.

It is the first time the ministerial association has undertaken an institute of this nature.

Woman Is Jailed In Slaying Case

Wife Implicated in Death of Husband.

Clarksburg, W. V., April 3 (Spl.). Charged with being implicated in the slaying of her husband, Frank Sears, 40, World War veteran, March 29, near Bickmore, Mrs. Vada Sears, of Clay, has been jailed to await a hearing, state police at Sutton reported today.

The woman was transferred to the Kanawha County Jail at Charleston for safe keeping. With her was taken Orville Duffield, accused of having shot Sears from a passing auto.

Duffield and a brother, Freeman, were sentenced to life imprisonment ten years ago for the slaying of Samuel and Corbitt Duffield, great uncle and cousin, but were pardoned after four years.

St. Marys Women Will Tour Homes

Leonardtown, Md., April 3 (Spl.). The Rural Women's Clubs of St. Marys County will make a pilgrimage to historic homes in the county May 26.

Preceding the pilgrimage, mass will be attended at the Church of the Holy Face at Great Mills.

Among the homes to be visited are Cross Manor, St. Michael's Manor, Mattipani and manors at St. Marys City.

Dr. O. S. Gribble, 57, Is Dead at Clarksburg

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.). Dr. Okey Stitt Gribble, 57, a leading eye surgeon and hospital administrator of West Virginia, died today at his home here. His wife survives.

Dr. Gribble was for years head of the Macon Hospital here of which he was a founder, and was formerly on the medical staffs of the Davis Memorial Hospital at Elkins and the Bay View Hospital in Baltimore. He was a captain in the Medical Corps in the World War.

Pupils Will Give Pageant.

Leonardtown, Md., April 3 (Spl.). The student body of Great Mills School will take part in a pageant prepared by Dr. Albert Cook, State supervisor of Maryland schools. The pageant will be presented late in May.

Pastor Who Hurled Bible Away Will 'Continue What I Started'

Expects to Englarge on Sermon; Notes "Good Deal of Interest."

Landsdowne, Md., April 3 (AP).—The Rev. Robert Wesley Hanford, who startled his congregation by hurling his gilt-edged Bible across the auditorium of his little Methodist Episcopal Church here, expects to enlarge on his sermon next Sunday, he said today.

"I expect to continue what I started last Sunday," he asserted. "I intend enlarging on my sermon.

"It seems there has been a good deal of interest aroused."

The Rev. Mr. Hanford talks mildly, but in his little shingled church on Easter Sunday he electrified his congregation of some 80 persons by suddenly shouting he intended speaking his convictions after nine years of mental conflict and torture.

Saying he loved the truths of the Bible—but hated the thought that people live by the book itself and not the spirit in it, he hurled his Bible across the room, crying:

"* * * cursed by the church and cursed by the Bible when used to enslave God's highest creation on earth, to enslave man created in the image of God * * *."

David M. Kidwell, Victim of Apoplexy

Was Winchester Resident for 60 Years.

Winchester, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held today for David M. Kidwell, 76, who died Saturday from apoplexy. The Rev. W. L. Dudley officiated and burial was in Mount Hebron Cemetery.

Mr. Kidwell was a native of Hampshire County, W. Va., but had lived here 60 years.

Surviving are his widow, five sons, Marvin O. and Grover Kidwell, of here; Lonas Kidwell, of Michigan, and Aden P. and Carl C. Kidwell, of Maryland; six daughters, Mrs. Robert Fletcher, of Stephens City, and Mrs. Stanley Mason, Mrs. C. L. Patterson, Mrs. C. R. Pierce, Mrs. M. D. Haines and Mrs. Hunter Kerns, all of here; two brothers, James Kidwell, of Great Cacaphon, W. Va., and Asa Kidwell, of Slanesville, W. Va., and one sister, Mrs. Thomas White, of this city.

City Preparing New Poll Books

Harrisonburg Soon to Try Its Doubled Precincts for First Time.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 3 (Spl.). A new set of registration books for city voters is being prepared as a result of the two old precincts being enlarged to four.

The city council recently voted to establish two precincts in each of the old East and West wards to expedite voting. The councilmanic election in June will be the first for the new set-up.

Joseph C. Byrd and Francis S. Miller are the new registrars, each taking half of the territory served by Mrs. Ethel Irwin Lineweaver and George Grattan 3d, the previous registrars.

Harrisonburg casts the heaviest vote in proportion to population of any city in Virginia. In recent elections, the vote became so heavy that the result was not known until the next day. This caused the council to double the precincts.

Bids Are Opened On 8 Bridge Jobs

$94,688 Elizabeth River Span Included.

Richmond, April 3 (AP).—The department of highways today opened bids for eight bridge construction projects. The lowest bidders and their bids include:

Thousands Catch Maryland Trout

Streams Lined and Many Get Creel Limit.

Hagerstown, Md., April 3 (Spl.). Record catches were reported on the first two days of trout fishing season in western Maryland.

Several thousand fishermen turned out and the well-known streams, restocked by the State during the winter, were lined with fishermen.

A number reported the creel limit of 10 within a few hours. William Fridinger reported the largest trout caught on the first day, a 2¼-pound rainbow.

Election to Determine Retention of Pastor

Spotsylvania Courthouse, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—An election under auspices of the Spotsylvania Circuit Court at the Branch Fork Baptist Church April 15 will determine whether the Rev. Clarence T. Mayo is to remain pastor.

The election under court supervision is to discover the majority wishes of the congregation, a number of whom want a new pastor.

Hagerstown Fugitive Taken in Lewistown

Hagerstown, Md., April 3 (Spl.).—Local police were notified yesterday that Robert Norris, alias Frank Long, 39, one of four prisoners who escaped here last fall, had been captured at his mother's home near Lewistown, Pa.

Mrs. Polly Ann Nichols Dies in Prince William

Luray, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Mrs. Polly Ann Nichols, 76, a native of Page County, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Noah S. Miller, in Prince William County.

She was the widow of Jordan Nichols, and is survived by seven children: Charles, Lester, Benjamin and Edward Nichols, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Edward Emerson and Mrs. Albin Berry, of Washington.

West Va. Miners Reject Wage Offer

Several Thousand on Strike in Fairmont Fields.

Fairmont, W. Va., April 3 (AP).—Several thousand miners remained away from the pits in the Fairmont coal fields today, declining to accept the wage scale submitted to them by the operators.

Union representatives asserted the workers demanded rates of pay be increased to the same level as is provided in the agreement announced in Washington recently for the Appalachian field.

Picket lines were on duty at many workings, but there were no disorders. At Morgantown, near here, 1,000 miers adopted a resolution asserting they will demand that the Appalachian agreement be made effective before they will return to work.

Court Orders 2 Virginia Rum Cases Quashed

Appeals Pending When Repeal Amendment Was Ratified.

Richmond, April 3 (AP).—Two Virginia cases involving violation of the National prohibition act today were remanded to the District Court of Eastern Virginia at Norfolk with instructions for dismissals, in opinions handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

These were outstanding opinions among the 36 handed down, including those in six Virginia cases.

The circuit court based its decision in the prohibiton cases on a Supreme Court ruling. Appeals in the Norfolk cases were pending at the time of the ratification of the twenty-first amendment.

In one of the cases Dudley C. Short and Woodrow Warren were convicted of conspiracy to violate the National prohibition act. In the second case Sam Warren, jr., and Woodrow Warren were convicted of possession and transportation of spirits in violation of the National prohibition act.

Alexandria Verdict Affirmed.

The circuit court affirmed the opinion of the district court of Alexandria in the case of Henry Woodhouse appellant, vs. Carl L. Budwesky, Robinson Moncure, and Courtland H. Davis, doing business as Moncure, Davis & Budwesky, H. R. Burke, Arthur Herbert and C. S. T. Burke, trading as Burke & Herbert, et al appellees, The appeal was from a decree dismissing a bill in equity for lack of jurisdiction on the ground that there was not the required diversity of citizenship.

A fourth Virginia case came from the District Court at Lynchburg, with the Circuit Court reversing the lower court. The case was that of E. E. Johnson, administrator of Benjamin F. Cooksey, deceased, appellant, vs. the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, appellee. The case involved a suit to recover $4,500 on a disability policy.

Damage Action Upheld.

The higher court affirmed a decision by the District Court at Roanoke, in the case of Atlantic Greyhound Lines, Inc., of West Virginia, appellant, vs. Lucy Metz, appellee. The case was built around an injury received by Lucy Metz while traveling on a bus from Dayton, Ohio, to Roanoke. The evidence showed that a representative of the company reimbursed her to the extent of $25 and gained a release from further liability. Later it developed that she received internal injuries. The lower court's direction to the jury to find in favor of the plaintiff was affirmed.

The court upheld another case from the District Court at Roanoke, when it affirmed the lower court's decision in the case of Carl A. Jones, appellant, against John G. Foster, appellee. The appeal was from a judgment granting $10,984.77 with 6 per cent interest from March 9, 1931, in favor of the plaintiff, a citizen of Oregon. The higher court found "no reasonable error."

20 of Group Have Perfect Average.

Blacksburg, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Virginia Polytechnic Institute students who made honor grades for the winter quarter ending March 24 were announced today by Dr. John E. Williams, dean of the college.

A total of 154 students is divided as follows: seniors, 45; juniors, 39; sophomores, 36; freshmen, 34.

Seniors with perfect averages are T. M. Conte, Richmond; G. B. Lea, Danville; M. D. Lockwood, Virginia Beach; S. W. Loving, Richmond; C. D. Montague, Fredericksburg, and B. T. Stone, Rustburg. Juniors with perfect averages are G. V. Beamon, Suffolk; L. S. Bell, Louisville, Ky.; J. M. Cleland, Lynchburg; H. J. Daily, East Radford, and W. E. Fourqurean, Lynchburg. Sophomores with perfect averages are R. P. Carter, Alderson, W. Va.; T. H. Epes, Richmond; W. H. Pietta, Blacksburg, and C. C. Waddell, Richmond. Freshmen with perfect averages are H. E. Atkinson, jr., Richmond; F. P. Clark, jr., Bluefield, W. Va.; H. E. Dieckman, Winchester; W. G. Ireson, North Tazewell, and K. Nashner, Berkley.

Harry Benzinger, Lawyer, 77, Dead

Attorney for Cardinals Was Ill 2 Years.

Baltimore, April 3 (Spl.).—Harry M. Benzinger, 77, Baltimore lawyer, died today at his home here. He had practiced law 50 years.

He had been attorney for Cardinal Gibbons and later for Archbishop Michael J. Curley, present head of the archdiocese. He had been in ill-health two years, and recently had been confined to his bed.

He was a director of various Catholic benevolent organizations, and was looked upon as one of the leading Catholic laymen in Maryland.

Miles Named Virginia Rum License Chief

Pullman Firm Gets First Permit Granted by New Board.

Richmond, April 3 (AP).—The State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has announced that Wade M. Miles had been named head of its licensing division.

The board granted a wine and beer license to the Pullman Co. covering six dining cars. It is the first license granted by the board and the fee, $90, is the first sum accruing to the board under the operation of Virginia's alsohol control act.

Miles came to the liquor board from the State Industrial Commission, where he has served for 15 years. He was recently stationed at Bristol, Va.

The board debated organization of an inspection division which will check on all persons desiring licenses as well as the places for which the licenses are asked. It will be from the reports of this division that Miles will secure necessary data.

The board issued a statement regarding the warning made public Sunday by Senator Harry F. Byrd regarding which he forecast attempted bribery and said that even his own secretary had been offered $10,000 to serve as a liquor firm "contacter."

The board said it was grateful to Senator Byrd for his suggestions.

3 Votes Decide Burgess Ballot In Middletown

E. W. Beachley Wins Seat; C. B. Darner Elected Commissioner.

Middletown, Md., April 3 (Spl.). In one of the most closely contested elections held in Middletown, E. Walter Beachley defeated George L. Doub for burgess yesterday by three votes. Doub has served 23 terms as burgess, and Beachley is a former burgess. The vote was Beachley 154, Doub 151.

Charles B. Darner, who entered the race by petition after he had been defeated for renomination at the convention, was elected commissioner for two years by 42 votes over his nearest competitor, Leslie Shafer. Darner has served on the board 18 years, and this is the second time he has won after being defeated for nomination.

Edgar H. Koogle and L. Osmond Derr, members of the present board, were reelected.

A total of 318 ballots out of a possible 400 was cast. The principal issue in the campaign was the fact that Middletown obtained only one small CWA project, and it was alleged that certain members of the board were negligent in not obtaining additional work for the unemployed here.

In his fight for reelection Darner canvassed the town and voters were taken to the polls in automobiles, a new procedure for a municipal election here.

Virginia Welfare Inspector Slated

Housing Conditions in All Institutions Set.

Richmond, April 3 (AP).—A Statewide inspection of general conditions at all public institutions is contemplated by the Department of Public Welfare, Commissioner Arthur W. James announced today.

Commissioner James said the principal purpose of the investigation would be to correct existing housing conditions and make unnecesary special investigations of asylums such as that now in progress through a General Assembly committee.

The inspection is to be handled by a new division of institutional supervision within the Department of Public Welfare. It will cover upwards of 400 different establishments of which 291 are State or local prisons, reformatories, almshouses, asylums or hospitals.

Hope of PWA Hospital Fund Is Held Slight

Ickes Says No Money Available for Four D. C. Projects.

however, numerous allotments have been made from funds provided by various cancelled allotments.

While these reallotments sometimes run into large figures, it was explained yesterday that all of the District projects were beyond possibility.

The exhausted condition of the PWA treasury spelled defeat for a comprehensive District works program for the second time. Last July the commissioners submitted an ambitious proposal, including the municipal center as one item, which totaled around $20,000,000. Out of the requests, the PWA granted only two, one for $1,759,500 for sewers, and $1,918,469 for street and highway work.

At that time, Secretary Ickes explained that in his opinion, the District had received more than its share of building. The commissioners were asked to submit a less ambitious list.

This second list was turned in a few days ago, and now is among the applications being held in abeyance because of lack of money.

What could be done to further the sewage disposal plant and the tuberculosis sanitorium was not apparent last night. Both have been urged for some time, and have been deleted from District budgets as improper.

Hospitals Overcrowded.

Proponents of a new tuberculosis center have cited overcrowded conditions in District hospitals and lack of facilities. It was charged yesterday by Dr. William Fowler, District Health Officer, however, that the accusations of bad tuberculosis conditions here represents an effort to put the local health department under jurisdiction of the United States Public Health Service.

Reluctance of the PWA to make further large allotments to the District is heightened by the fact that any advances of funds would of necessity be outright gifts. PWA officials pointed out that District laws do not permit it to borrow money as required for normal PWA transactions.

A bill to provide $500,000,000 for additional PWA projects is expected to be introduced in Congress, Secretary Ickes has indicated. However, even if this were approved, is would be inadequate to finance all of the projects now held in reserve, involving around $3,500,000,000.

The District proposals will be added to this "backlog," it was indicated yesterday, and will have to compete with the other hundreds of projects for funds should the additional money be granted.

Truck Hits Girl; Driver Is Jailed

Struck by a truck while walking on the Baltimore boulevard in Bladensburg yesterday, Lorraine Herbert, 13, of Cottage City, Md., was in a critical condition at Casualty Hospital last night.

William Maenner, of Baltimore, alleged driver of the truck, was arrested by Prince Georges County Policeman Albert Anderson on charges of reckless driving and bad brakes. He was held without bail at Hyattsville.

Anderson said the girl was walking along the edge of the roadway and was struck by the protruding sides of the truck. Her skull was believed fractured.

R. S. Snyder Appointed Martinsburg Fire Chief

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Roland S. Snyder, assistant fire chief under the late Chief Martin L. Quinn here, was named chief by City Council yesterday.

Gardner Pierce, for 13 years a member of the paid fire department, was named assistant chief.

Stabbing Charge Holds Scott County Resident

Gate City, Va., April 3 (Spl.). Charged with attempt to kill, Emory Flanary has been bound over to the April term of Scott County Circuit Court from a magistrate's trial, following his alleged stabbing of Douglas Carry at Clinchport several days ago.

John A. Karicofe, Stockman, Buried

Funeral at Mount Zion for Augusta Farmer.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 3 (Spl.). Funeral services for John A. Karicofe, 73, live stock dealer, farmer and former road commissioner of North River district of Augusta County, were held yesterday from the Mount Zion United Brethren Church, near Mount Solon. He died Saturday.

Mr. Karicofe was superintendent of Mount Zion Sunday School for 30 years.

He is survived by a foster-daughter, Mrs. W. D. Kiracofe, at home; a brother, L. S. Kiracofe, of Churchville, and a sister, Mrs. Fred Driver, of Waynesboro.

Miss Linda Cogbill, 78, Buried; Taught 21 Years

Petersburg, Va., April 3 (Spl.). The funeral of Miss Linda Cogbill, 78, who died here Sunday, was held here today.

Miss Cogbill was one of the oldest teachers in Petersburg. She taught 21 years in Newport News, in Petersburg and in Dinwiddie County.

'Feeling Swell,' Son Declares Of Roosevelt

Elliott to Pay Visit to Mother After Sea Hop to Father.

have so many fish to show for his vacation, he is developing a good sunburn, Elliott said. The party today was not entirely without luck either, since Bob Clark, one of the two secret service operatives aboard, caught three barracudas.

Earlier in the day a message from Vincent Astor, Mr. Roosevelt's host, announced the yacht's arrival at its new anchorage, about 80 miles east of Key West. It related:

Had Night at Sea.

"Arrived all well off Elbow Key after a fine night at sea. The President is awaiting the arrival of Jimmy and Elliott and later we all hope to give the fish an active afternoon."

The present Congressional hiatus, which enabled President Roosevelt to extend his trip one week longer than he originally planned, may lengthen this session beyond the May 15 deadline the Administration had hoped to bring about.

This prospect was seen as a distinct danger to the President's projected visit to the Pacific early in the summer. Thus he is in the position of taking a week more now when he can afford it, while at best the longer vacation remains in doubt.

420 CCC Recruits Ready.

Charleston, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.). Army officers have completed arrangements for sending 420 CCC recruits from Charleston and Huntington to Camp Knox, Ky., on Friday. The men will receive two weeks of training before being assigned to forest camps.

Cutting May Be Fatal.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—An eight-inch slash in the back of the neck received in a brawl Saturday night may cost the life of Pearly Nash, 24, of Stafford County.

'Gas' Station Head Jailed in Shooting

Danville, Va., April 3 (Spl.). Zebedee Shelton was in the Pittsylvania County Jail at Chatham today, charged with wounding Jack Moorefield, his brother-in-law, who was shot Sunday night at the filling station they jointly owned near Alta Vista.

He failed to give bond of $5,000.

Sheriff Arch Overby arrested him in his bed at home last night and secured the names of five witnesses. Overby said that Shelton was not too ill to be taken to jail. Moorefield was reported still in grave state at a Lynchburg hospital, but insisted he does not know who shot him.

Five Convicts Face Charges of Assault

San Rafael, Calif., April 3 (AP). Five convicts were arraigned here today on charges of assault in connection with their recent futile attempt to escape from San Quentin Prison. One convict, John H. Arbuckle, of San Bernardino, was killed and guards were attacked.

District Attorney Henry C. Greer, of Marin County, had announced he would seek the death penalty.

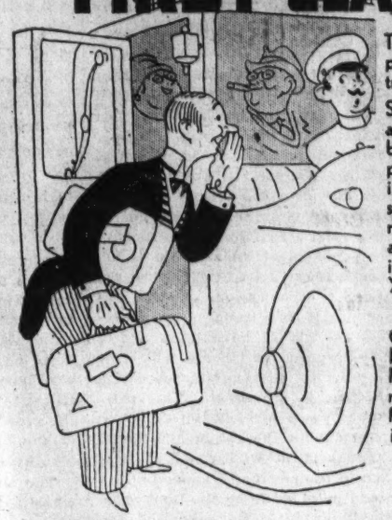
"They're going FIRST CLASS again"



To the esteem of their households and their own prideful satisfaction, more and more people are again traveling Cunard First Class.

Sensing the public trend, Cunard has provided an additional incentive for crossing in the best manner by greatly reducing First Class rates. In the completely renovated Aquitania and Berengaria, for instance, First Class rooms (many double their former size) which previously cost $335 each for two, are now but $237. Outside rooms are available for as little as $216, which accounts for Cunard's increased average First Class carryings during 1933. You can take your car along as baggage, too.

EUROPEAN TRAVEL COSTS ARE DOWN!
Compared to 1926, "the year of normalcy", Cunard First Class rates are reduced by as much as 40%. Railroad fares abroad average 30% less. Hotel rates are down an average of 36%. Send for folder which proves European Travel cheaper in 1934, despite foreign exchange differentials.

It Never Begins At Home.

Roger Shaw, foreign editor of the Review of Reviews, is studying dictatorships. He notes that "not only have a majority of important European nations yielded" to this form of government, but that, "astonishingly enough, most of the dictators have not been native-born to the countries they control." Now, the present prevalence of dictators may properly be startling to Mr. Shaw, but we can not understand his astonishment at the alien origin of any dictator anywhere.

He points out that Germany's Hitler was born in Austria, Poland's Pilsudski in Lithuania, Turkey's Kemel in Greek Salonika, the Hellenes' Venizelos in Turkish Crete, Ireland's de Valera in America, and the Soviets' Stalin in Asiatic Georgia. This is not the moment to note that all of these gentlemen are not in the same class as dictators, nor yet to argue that nationality is not always determined by birthplace. We note only that alien origin seems always to have been of the essence of successful dictatorship.

When Welshmen or Scotchmen could spare time from governing England, they erected the British Empire upon the principle that people like to be ruled by outsiders. The Napoleonic Empire proved it, and so did every other empire; it is the imperial theory. Authority is not the quality that familarity breeds, and no man is a hero to his valet. The wise dictator knows he lasts longer if there is nobody about who "knew him when."

Mr. Shaw need not have looked abroad for his "astonishing" phenomenon. He could have been just as much astonished by studying Gifford Pinchot of Connecticut in the role of Governor of Pennsylvania.

Lacking In Good Faith.

Almost before the ink was dry from President Roosevelt's pen on the Tydings-McDuffie bill, offering independence to the Philippine Islands, a subtle attempt to frustrate that measure was indorsed by the Senate Finance Committee. Under the organic act the Filipinos would be permitted to ship 200,000 tons of coconut oil to this country annually without payment of duty. But the tax bill which the Finance Committee has reported to the Senate would impose a tariff of 3 cents per pound on coconut oil, amounting to more than 100 per cent of its price.

Production of coconut oil and copra, from which the oil is made, is the second largest industry in the Philippines. About 68 per cent of the coconut oil used in our soap, margarine and other industries is of Philippine origin. So the proposed tax amounts to a special tariff barrier erected against a Philippine industry. If Congress should follow the advice of the Senate Finance Committee, the good faith of the American Government in passing the independence measure would be immediately called into question.

As Secretary Dern told the committee, "The terms of this act presumably become a sort of contract between the two countries which should not be changed without mutual agreement." That measure already imposes serious economic handicaps upon Philippine exports to this country without encouraging new commercial outlets for Filipino products. If Congress should thus begin riddling the meager guarantees held out to the islands the independence act will become a worthless scrap of paper.

Aside from the question of fairness and good faith in dealing with the Philippines, the practice of concealing tariff levies in tax legislation ought not to be tolerated. It is entirely out of keeping with the policy of the Roosevelt Administration in handling tariff questions.

The Effective Way.

A news letter from the Kentucky-Tennessee Light & Power Co., made public by the Federal Trade Commission, discloses that the utility is apparently engaging in counter-propaganda to offset what it calls "the propaganda which is being spread by the Government to all properties within transmission reach of Muscle Shoals."

That, of course, is one way of meeting the situation. The utilities corporations have every right to protect their property legitimately, which includes engaging in open propaganda against municipal ownership. But officials who resort to propaganda methods should bear in mind that Government operation of Muscle Shoals, as embodied in the TVA project, is itself largely a result of power-company propaganda that missed fire. Revelations of the abuses of channels of information, made before the Federal Trade Commission three or four years ago, plus open charges of the corruption of public officials, sowed the seed which made the public look eagerly toward Government operation. Moreover, the pyramiding of holding companies, with their excess profits and manipulations, lent color to Senator Norris' contention that the public was being charged excessive rates. All this helped to put Congress in a frame of mind to try to find out.

The utilities may turn to propaganda again if they choose, using for that purpose money paid by the consumers. But a better way has been pointed by the Georgia and Alabama power companies and their holding corporations. Since their reorganization, they have been fairly well regarded as model. The numerous holding company fees have been eliminated and the power companies have given their consumers reasonable reductions in rates. That is meeting the competition which the Government offers upon the most sensible ground, and in the wisest way.

The Opportunist Theory.

There are some issues on which we would be disposed to disagree with the economic philosophy of Wallace B. Donham, dean of the Harvard Business School. But on two points in his criticism of Senator Wagner's bill to establish a powerful centralized National Labor Board, as revealed in testimony before the Senate Labor Committee yesterday, it is all but impossible to take exception. They are important points, for they are concerned with those matters of political principle which are too much disregarded in current legislative proposals.

Dean Donham points out, in the first place, that this Wagner bill would tend to make trade unionism compulsory by legislative fiat. Application of compulsion to this end is neither a function of the State—unless the principle of dictatorship is accepted—nor is it calculated to improve the quality of union organization. As the witness observed: If the trade union movement offers substantial advantages and a constructive program for labor it will grow naturally, provided that unfair repression by management is prevented. This safeguard is found much more definitely in the recent agreement for the automobile industry—an agreement of widespread applicability—than in the pending Wagner bill.

The second point made by Dr. Donham is even more important. He says, and the charge is irrefutable, there is now apparent in Administration circles a feeling that unless certain radical legislation is hurriedly pushed through Congress, a golden opportunity will be lost. In other words, measures of far-reaching import are being increasingly subjected to critical examination and the chances of railroading them through Congress without analysis or consideration is fading. A part of this procedure, in the words of the Harvard economist, appears to be "a conscious effort to divert attention from the real subject under consideration."

It would seem that the fallacy in such tactics should be obvious. An unworkable piece of legislation, as the country is beginning to realize in the case of the Securities Act, is not going to be made effective merely by rushing it through Congress without any advance analysis of its shortcomings. Such tactics can only lead to repentance at leisure, as the prohibition amendment amply demonstrated. That, too, was put across on the "golden opportunity" theory of law-making.

That the fallacy in these Administration tactics is not yet obvious, however, is all too apparent. Representative Rayburn, in a statement which can not be accepted as convincing, asserts that "it is not true that the securities act is preventing the sale of securities." Before approval this assertion should be exposed to examination by those who are more specialized in the subject than Mr. Rayburn. But an even more remarkable approval of the doctrine of operating first and diagnosing afterward is provided by Senator Fletcher. To him it seems an entirely minor matter that the Securities Act now extends the liability of a distributor to an entire issue when, in the Senator's own words, "he should only be liable for that portion of an issue in which he has an interest."

That is the sort of debonaire, what-of-it, attitude which more than anything else is undermining the repute of the Administration and stirring up nation-wide resentment which can not indefinitely be assuaged by the soothing flow of Treasury checks. With the air-mail mess the "golden opportunity" policy was for the first time really exploded. It may still be put across in the bill which ostensibly seeks only to regulate the stock exchanges. But it will not get across indefinitely. Lincoln explained why.

Our Botanic Garden.

Right under our noses exists a gorgeous opportunity for the experts on planned economy. It is the continued management of the Botanic Garden by the Congressional Joint Committee on the Library. Nobody attempts to discover any logic in this association. Yet the library committee, or at least some of its members, insist that it should continue in control of the Botanic Garden.

Congress has maintained the Botanic Garden since 1850. Originally it was built to house a collection of plants brought from the South Sea Islands by the Navy. Since there was then no Department of Agriculture to take over the clearly executive function of maintaining the new exotic garden, that duty fell into the hands of a congressional committee. Congress is now willing to let the Secretary of Agriculture tell every farmer in the country how much cotton he may plant, but has not yet decided to trust that official with management of this Washington pleasance.

The inconsistency of the present arrangement is emphasized by the development of a National Arboretum and a National Herbarium under the Bureau of Plant Industry and the Smithsonian Institution. A large site for the arboretum has been acquired in Anacostia. Likewise the Botanic Garden is undergoing a transformation. Its old hothouses west of the Capitol are being razed and a new conservatory will soon be opened. Obviously, the new Botanic Garden should be guided by the experts of the Department of Agriculture who are developing the arboretum. The two projects are intimately related. When the Government is spending considerable sums to hire botanists, plant explorers, horticulturists and other experts it does not appear that any valid argument can be found for management of the Botanic Garden by the Committee on the Library.

It must be admitted that Congress has found the garden very useful in the past. A short time ago it regularly allotted plants to Senators and Representatives. Members of Congress found its beds (flower variety) useful for gratification of favor-seeking constituents as well as for adornment of their offices and themselves. But while Congress is making sweeping efforts to eliminate graft and special favors from agencies doing business with the Government it can not consistently maintain at the expense of taxpayers a "private hothouse for Congressmen." Let the Botanic Garden be converted into a scientific institution devoted to the welfare of the entire country and to the beautification of the Capital City.

Utopia Afloat.

American seamen of the old days must still be blinking over accounts of the arrival of the Kim, first ship ever to enter New York harbor under the red flag of Soviet Russia. The quarters allotted to the proletarian crew seem comparable with accomodations on the Nourmahal. There is no "foc'sle." Each able seaman has a cabin to himself. In each of these airy, outside rooms, painted cream color and trimmed with oak, reposes a table, a desk and an individual radio set. "A faint scent of violets" is perceptible. The menu of the midday meal is served from the same galley to officers and crew alike, in a club-dining room with piano and potted palm tree. In fact, hard-boiled ship news reporters, who have boarded roach-infested freighters from all the far corners of the world, and shunned the crew's quarters as one would shun the plague, waxed almost rapturous in their lengthy stories in the New York papers.

The Kim is a far cry from the old days, when filth and dirt were the hall marks of a tramp freighter banging its way around the seas. Unappetizing food served sloppily in tin plates to ill-clad men was the invariable rule. "Foc'sles" reeked with odors and lacked both light and ventilation. Even today our most modern ships do not afford the sailors the comforts of the Kim. Certainly our freight ships do not supply blonde stewardesses to make the beds of seamen!

It is impossible to be anything but impressed by this most insidious bit of floating propaganda, the more so since the crew is evidently not interested in trying to propagandize. It can't even be said that comfort has sapped the vigor of the Russian crew. This was demonstrated when one of the sailors booted a boisterous American Communist down the gangplank. The home-grown product, as usual, had been offensive in his enthusiasms. Perhaps the odor of violets was too much for him; too reminiscent of Greenwich Village.

Apathy Over The Airport.

Further delay in the construction of an airport for Washington is forecast by the apathy of both Congress and the District Commissioners. Congress is content to investigate the subject and squabble over proposed sites. The Commissioners have indicated their disapproval of a bill to develop an airport at Gravelly Point because other improvements are considered more urgent.

A considerable sum will be needed in the next few years for construction of schools, hospitals, fire and police stations, penal institutions, the Municipal Center and the proposed sewage disposal plant. No one who is familiar with the urgent needs of many District institutions would be inclined to impede these plans. Yet the airport project can not be treated as if it were merely a desirable improvement for some future period.

Dozens of aviators have testified to the hazards resulting from the continued use of Washington Airport in its present condition. It is a menace to motorists as well as to aviators and their passengers. From this viewpoint, if from no other, the Commissioners ought to give the project further attention. This is not strictly a local undertaking, however. Construction of a permanent air terminal here must be regarded as part of the general plan of developing the Nation's Capital. Obviously, the planning of an airport that is of national significance ought not to be delayed merely because local funds are needed for strictly municipal improvements.

It may be assumed that the District will be required to pay part of the cost of the proposed airport. But under the bill in question payment of the District's share would begin ten years hence. It would be far better to obligate District funds for essential improvements of this kind than to have them accumulate in surpluses which encourage Congress to reduce its allowance to the Capital City.

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

THE ORIGINAL manuscript of William M. Thackeray's "The Rose and the Ring," which belonged to the William H. Lambert library, sold at auction for $23,000. Maj. Lambert had bought it from Thackeray's daughter, Lady Ritchie, for $12,375. The total amount brought by the sale of the library in four parts was $211,073.

A PLAN to have the District own its own public utilities was advocated by two District Commissioners, one declaring that only by public servants could public services of any kind be run efficiently and at a cost favorable to the consumer.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY.

CONFERRING ON President Coolidge a distinction that had in the past been reserved for two "favorite sons," the Maine Republican State convention voted to instruct its 15 delegates to the National convention at Cleveland in June to "use every honorable effort" to secure the nomination of Calvin Coolidge for President of the United States.

Reversion to Bryan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In "A Challenge to Religion," Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, says: "For the past few years we have been going through an economic and social crisis probably as severe as any that our civilization has ever had to face. It has come as a result, in large part, of our failure to learn how to live with abundance. We have conquered great physical obstacles and have possession of great natural resources; we have the man power, the machine power and the technique to convert these resources into a much higher standard of living; yet here we are bogged down for lack of a social machine that will help us distribute, fairly, the fruits of our labor."

But just what does he mean by distribute? In order to distribute the abundance of the necessities and comforts of life there must be a meduim of exchange to bring about this distribution of the wealth of the world. I do not believe there is enough gold in the world upon which credit can be issued to do its business and bring about this distribution, because of that it is necessary to remonetize silver, which would give four-fifths of the world purchasing power. Also it is necessary that the banking and currency system of the country should be taken out of the hands of private bankers and placed in the hands of the Government, which is supposed to represent the people and loan money at nominal rates of interest.

The remonetization of silver is the one big question before the United States and the world today and until it becomes a law there can be no substantial and permanent prosperity in this country.

First Lady's Travels.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why should our First Lady be the target for such ridiculous shafts of criticism as were leveled at her in a recent issue of The Post by "Publicity" and "Observer"? Is it not fundamentally because she is a woman and because a President's wife has never done what she is doing? Why shouldn't she travel if and as she chooses? She has been going about her business in a dignified way exactly as a man might do. One would think we were living back in the dark ages before women began their long struggle for freedom.

When Susan B. Anthony, the leader of the woman movement, was a little girl, she insisted on being taught long division with the boys. The schoolmaster could not understand why a girl would want to learn that difficult operation. She did learn it, easily, and many more things of tremendous importance to all of us in the building of a great Nation. As Arthur Brisbane so truly and generously expressed it, "The world might well have wept if Susan B. Anthony had been born a boy instead of a girl."

Eleanor Roosevelt is what she is because Susan B. Anthony was what she was—an emancipator of both men and women from the shackles of a double standard.

Musical Sirens.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every few minutes—day and night—our nerves are tortured by the shrieking of ambulance sirens. We are suffering enough, as it is, from the "jitters" and the "heebie-jeebies" due to these tempestuous times and should not be subjected to unnecessary clamor. If, however, these hospital wagons believe it necessary to release this hideous racket in order to save a split second or so, why not install musical sirens that emit pleasant strains?

No; We Know Ouida.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Doesn't your editorial on the author it calls "La" Corelli mistake that novelist for "Ouida?" Marie Corelli was the adopted daughter of Charles Mackay; her real father was an Italian, not a Frenchman, and she wrote many very poor novels. "Ouida" was the pen-name of Maria Louise de la Ramee, who wrote several poor novels, several good ones, and whose book on Shelley was acclaimed as "standard" by such critics as George Saintsbury.

Miss Corelli's novels were never "as tenderly placed on the parlor whatnot as was the Family Bible." Although nowadays they seem rather tame, they were banned by Catholics and Protestants alike, and two of them were ardent attacks upon the church. It was "Ouida," not Corelli, who filled her pages with "dashing earls and beauteous ladies;" only one novel of Corelli's score and more introduces "society with a big S."

I am afraid that the writer of the editorial in question is rather like Mme. de la Ramee's "Bertie." He fights "Under Two Flags" at one time.

A Victim of Rabies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Any persons who might be seriously interested in the arguments which have been appearing in your columns recently which are directed against the prevention and treatment of rabies, might well acquaint themselves with the facts of an authentic case of the sort, which occurred at Ocean View, Va., about August, 1931.

A man had been bitten by his rabid pet dog, which had at the same time bitten his wife and one of his children. The mother and the child were given the "Semple" treatment at once, and did not develop the disease. The father, who refused to submit to the treatment, developed active rabies in its most virulent and fulminating form within 14 days from the time he was bitten. He became violent, frothed at the mouth and attempted to destroy his family. He was a definite public menace to the local community. He was placed under control before he did any harm, and during the ravings of his subsequent illness, he had lucid periods during which he realized fully his pitiable condition and the tragedy to which his family would soon be subjected. This did not diminish the anguish of the knowledge that he was dying, and that nothing could be done to help him.

These facts are all a matter of record with the city and county authorities of Norfolk, Va.

I am a dog owner, and a lover of dogs, and always have been, but I protect my dog, my family, and my neighbors by having him immunized yearly, against rabies.

A Few Suggestions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post is certainly the best paper here, and I do hope it will succeed. I think Mr. Bargeron could do better than lately on the issues of the day.

You are too liberal to the Hitler power in this administration. They won't listen to Dr. Wirt because the powers higher up are all radicals. Keep Dr. Wirt in the paper.

ELIZABETH S. HUNGERFORD.

Theater Tragedy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To many people the demolishing of a theater means no more than the tearing down of brick and stone. To others it seems a tragedy, for within that building thousands of persons have laughed and cried and forgot their troubles for a short while, and to these persons lingers the sweet memory of many fine shows. Poli's Theater was torn down and no one seemed to care enough to even write a eulogy for that dear old building, haunted by so many artists who have appeared on its historic boards. In like manner no one seemed to notice the destruction of the old Majestic, or Bijou Theater at Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest two years ago. This present generation does not remember the glory that was that theater's in its heyday. Now being demolished is the old vaudeville theater called the Cosmos on Pennsylvania avenue between Ninth and Tenth streets. While one of the smallest theaters on the vaudeville circuit, it had the regular high-grade Keith vaudeville for many years and many are the artists and performers who could recall happy weeks spent in this theater.

As Others See It.

Inevitable Aftermath.

It is humiliating for the "greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Alexander Hamilton" to be accused of evading his income tax. But it is just the sort of humiliation which Andrew W. Mellon invited when he took office in the Harding Administration.

There have been occasions in our history when the Secretary of the Treasury was denounced as a "tool of the interests." The phrase did not apply to Mr. Mellon. He was the interests.

One of the richest men in the world, Mr. Mellon had built an investment empire which encircled the heart of the Nation's industrial life and swept across its boundaries into other lands. Aluminum, steel, coal and oil, in which Secretary Mellon was financially involved, were all industries which had necessary—and sometimes delicate—relations with the Federal Government.

In the fields of taxes, or tariffs, or monopoly control, or banking, the National interests might at any time have conflicted with the Mellon interests. And Mr. Mellon, as Secretary of the Treasury, was inevitably called upon to act as judge between himself and his Government. Under the circumstances, it was unethical, if not improper, for President Harding to offer him the post, and it was improper for him to accept it. With the best intentions in the world, it would have been impossible for Mr. Mellon to escape the conflict of interests between his private and his public capacities.

Mr. Mellon's peculiar position figured prominently in discussions of the aluminum trust case before the Federal Trade Commission, in the Congressional investigation of the oil scandals and in the tax refunds to industrialists and financiers who were associated more or less closely with him.

And now the Attorney General of the United States charges him with evading his own income tax.

The Record makes no attempt to prejudge his guilt or innocence. But, as Mr. Mellon points out, a political campaign, in which Mellonism will be an issue, is about to be fought in this State. It will clear the air if at least one of the suspicions arising out of Mr. Mellon's dual capacity is settled one way or the other before the election and not allowed to drag during the entire campaign.

The Post Impressionist

Those Beardy Men.

Postoffice, Wednesday.

This one is about religion. There's a reason.

According to the Column's brief experience, its readers' interests are in the following order:

1. Religion.
2. Alcohol.
3. Crime.
4. Foreign personalities.
5. Domestic personalities.
6. The arts.
7. Other cultural subjects.

We have received more letters about the first two subjects on our list than about the latter five. And we have received one more about religion than about alcohol.

• • • •

Now readers want to hear more concerning the quietest sects among Maryland's next-door neighbors, the miscalled "Pennsylvania Dutch." And T. A. Samuels writes us of those "Beardy Men," the Amish, who "hold by" hooks-and-eyes instead of buttons and who don't believe in the ballot—but will "wote" upon religious occasion.

This deponent deposes and says that: In an overwhelmingly Republican district, at the first election after the McKinley tariff's enactment, Democratic "workers" bought up all the stores' hooks-and-eyes and told the Amishmen these articles' disappearance was due to the Republican high tax, whereupon the Amish carried the district for the Democrats.

That sounds apocryphal. The Amish we know are too keen to be easily deceived. We give two instances.

• • • •

At least until recently, at the end of each banking year, the Amishman would enter his bank with his freshly balanced bankbook. This he would tot-up carefully. Then he would write a check for his balance, draw it from the paying teller, count it, make out a deposit slip and redeposit the cash. The Amishman took no chances on the bank's mere word that his money was in its vaults.

• • • •

Mr. Davies scolded his Amish milkman: "That milk you left yesterday was sour!"

"Not sour?"

"Sure, sour."

"What fer mean you by 'sour'?"

"Why just plain sour."

"How are you so certain?"

"Because it was clotted—because I tasted it—because I know it was sour!"

"Ach, well, how vas it ozzerwise?"

• • • •

Separating, when a mere handful, from the State Church at Zurich in 1523, the Mennonites spread through Switzerland into France, Germany, Holland—attracted some Russians, more Polish Socinians. They denied the Christian character of the other existing churches and of the civil authority. No wonder Spinoza entertained "an intense fellow-feeling for them," but no wonder their fellow-Protestants persecuted them!

Menno Simons left the Roman Catholic priesthood and gave them his leadership. Later, they took his name. His "Opera Omnia Theologica" united them; they still read its condensation in the "Gedenkblatter." But schisms finally occurred. They are now counted thus:

"Old Mennonites"	41,000
Genl. Conference Mennonites	21,000
Mennonite Brethren	10,000
"Old Order Amish"	9,000

In America, where their pioneers arrived about 1683, they found the Quakers their closest spiritual kin. Although they have strong settlements in Indiana and Ohio, Pennsylvania remains their real American home—and not all of Pennsylsylvaia, either: they disown the "Dutch" of Lehigh County as being, they say, descendants of George III's Hessian mercenaries.

• • • •

Despite superficial differences, the divisions keep much in common. Whether it be an Old Mennonite boy or a Mennonite Brethren girl who tells you "Pop's sleepin' out," you will know that the family's father has been excommunicated by his church and therefore has to inhabit the woodshed. Nearly all the divisions retain "The Old Language" (Pennsylvania-Dutch); the Amish still use the Ausbund hymnal of 1571, and its music is still to be desecrated by the printer's art.

• • • •

Finally, every Mennonite sect lives in constant horror lest their exhorters in the churches should emphasize doctrine to the detriment of conduct. Sermons those exhorters do preach, but these discourses are almost wholly devoted to works rather than to faith. The Post-Impressionist recalls only a single instance of a Mennonite exhorter who made any serious attempt of another sort.

He was a young fellow and ardent. Menno's great theological tome he had read and reread until he knew it by heart, and he felt that the "Gedenkblatter" was dangerously abbreviated. So he planned a series of discourses to popularize the full content of the major work. The whole congregation subsequently agreed to oust him; but none was so quick as that pillar of the church, aged Jacob Schlegemilch. Jacob listened to no more than the first hour's portion of the first discourse. Then he rose from his seat, stalked to the door.

"Un' I ain't comin' back!" he shouted.

Word went all about the countryside that this notable churchman had given up his membership. The next day was market-day, and the farmers reach the market-towns before dawn in Lancaster County. But they did not beat these terrible tidings to Columbia, Pa. The earliest patrons were talking of the event, across their empty baskets, when the market-master rang his bell.

"Jake," said a non-Mennonite friend as he reached the Schlegemilch stall, "I'm surprised to hear of your action. You were known as such a devoted church-member."

"Andy," sobbed Jacob, "boy un' man, I've stood by dot church, but this here exhorter I von't stan', Sisty year' I've neffer missed a meetin'; I love dot church — but, Andy, py gravy, ven dey prings relitchen into the pulpit, I'm done vis' it!"

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

WHOLLY aside from the merits of Dr. Wirt's fantastic charges, my admiration for him as a counter-propagandist to the Administration's propaganda is increasing daily. He seems, indeed, to have fashioned his indictment most excellently, so excellently, in fact, that if his coming here is longer delayed the Administration may find that it has convicted itself on several of the counts.

Let's see now, didn't the good doctor say something about it being the plan of the plotters to denounce their critics. Well, over the week-end there came a criticism of the Labor Department from one of its labor conciliators. In professing to submit his resignation he said, among other things, that the department's conciliating activities had been taken over by the NRA. In a large degree, at least, that is manifestly true.

BARGERON.

And it would seem to be a matter worthy of being brought to our attention because, as I understand it, the Congress has just acted terribly in throwing one of Mr. Roosevelt's budgets out of whack to the tune of $228,000,000, and it might be that we could save that amount by cutting down on the expenditures of departments whose activities have been taken from them in the melee.

• • • •

But the conciliator's charges were not taken in this spirit. No, the Labor Department countered by saying he was a minor employe and that he was not resigning, but had been dismissed. If he was such a minor employe why were his charges dignified at all?

It recalls the treatment of the luckless Dean Acheson, Undersecretary of the Treasury, who was kicked out on his ear because criticism of the Administration's monetary policies revolved around him. And the explanation was authoritatively given out in a way which suggested that he was kicked out because, while he was a good young fellow, he wasn't experienced in Government.

• • • •

The most perfect example, though, is the amazing "discovery" just made by the Government and Senator Norris that a power company is propagandizing against the Tennessee Valley Authority's effort to set up municipal ownership of power systems. Now, there is something that just shocks the sensibilities of decent citizens!

My shock over the disclosure comes with the additional emotion of utter wonder at how on earth our Government found this out. No one appreciates more than I how a unit, any unit, so organized as our Government is today, can operate effectively over a broad front, as Mr. Hoover used to say, and ferret out most any little hidden skeleton.

But how it got at this one completely baffles my comprehension!

• • • •

Here is the Government trying to destroy this power company by, rightly or wrongly, setting up municipally owned power systems, and the power company is fighting back, fighting for its life. That is an intolerable situation, and one can only thank his stars that the Government and the Senator found it out.

There is one angle to the "discovery," though, that I can't understand. At a time when the plan apparently is for the Government to take over or get under its thumb every industry and endeavor, why should it and the Senator "discover" that more than three years ago the power company had bribed a Government official?

I am afraid the Government and the Senator spoke out of turn there. It doesn't click with the plan. It doesn't seem to be coordination between mind and mouth. This stored-up bit of ammunition must have been released at the wrong time.

• • • •

The one comforting feature of the "discovery" though is the calmness with which Senator Norris received it.

"I am not at all surprised to hear of this," he said, adding that the power companies would stoop to anything.

If he will but amend this to apply to the propagandists of the power companies—and those of the Government—I will agree with him most whole-heartedly.

College Students Subsist On $1.50 A Week for Food

Boulder, Colo. (U.P.).—Many students in the University of Colorado are living on as little as $1.50 a week for food, an investigation on the campus here showed.

A number of self-supporting students here are trying to board themselves on 15 cents a meal or less, according to Harry G. Carlson, dean of men. Some are eating only two meals a day, both extremely light, and a few are trying to get along with but one meal a day, often as little as milk and a roll.

Miss Lydia L. Brown, dean of women, reported a more favorable situation among women students. Most parents refuse to allow a girl to go to college unless she has adequate funds, Miss Brown said.

Many students have pooled their resources, it was discovered, and by shrewed buying have been able to prepare nourishing meals, doing their own cooking, for as little as $1.50 a week.

"Often the amount spent has nothing to do with the type of meal obtained," said Miss Brown. "I knew one boy who has batched for 20 cents a day for the last three years. He always has good nourishing meals and has gained 40 pounds since he started."

43 Languages Used In Canada for Bible

Vancouver, British Columbia (U.P.).—Forty-three languages are used by the publications of the British and Foreign Bible Society through its British Columbia auxiliary in placing the Bible among persons in the province, it was said by Rev. Nelson A. Harkness.

Included are one aboriginal adaptation, the Chinook. Almost every European tongue and Persian, Arabic, Hindustani, Malay, Punjabi, Urdu and Syrian are represented, as well as Chinese, Japanese and two African languages.

Men Replace Women.

Istanbul (U.P.).—Women typists in Turkish government offices are to be replaced by males as soon as the latter can qualify. The decision is due to the shortage of employment for educated men. More than 300 women in the capital will be affected by the order.

Session's End Seen Blocking Commodity Act

(Associated Press.)

A favorable report on the bill for Federal regulation of the commodity exchanges is expected next week from the House Agriculture Committee, but the impression grew in Congress yesterday the measure would not be enacted at this session.

Hearings on the proposed legislation began before the House Agriculture Committee yesterday with Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the grain futures administration of the Department of Agriculture, testifying that speculative wheat buying had figured in market breaks in the past and Government control was needed.

The Senate Agriculture Committee, however, has not fixed a date for hearings on the commodity exchange bill.

Pressure Seen Needed.

The principles of the measure have been indorsed by President Roosevelt, but commodity exchange regulation has been laid aside while the discussion of its companion piece, the stock exchange regulatory bill, has gone on both in and out of Congress.

Leaders in both the Senate and House said the Administration must apply pressure to pass the commodity exchange bill unless the session were indefinitely prolonged.

The proposal before the House committee would allow a commission, consisting of the Secretary of Agriculture, the Attorney General and the Secretary of Commerce to put a limit on speculative trading.

Duvel said 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 bushels of wheat, in his opinion, should be the maximum speculative holding for an individual.

The grain futures head testified the large traders were found on the short, or bearish side of the market most of the time since the majority of the small buyers were bullish and bought for a rise.

Concentrated Buying.

"An intensive study of the effect of large-scale trading on price movements has shown," Duval said, "that concentrated buying or selling the amount of 2,000,000 bushels or more results in an abnormal price movement in more than 80 per cent of the cases."

Duvel testified that occasionally the transactions of one trader amounted to more than 10 per cent of the day's business on a grain exchange.

"Operations of this kind in no sense represent a free and open market," he said.

"It is important, however, to keep in mind that large speculative traders are not always short sellers. This was very clearly demonstrated during the sharp advance in wheat prices last summer."

Hedging transactions would be exempt from the limits on trading which might be imposed under the bill.

Like the stock regulatory measure, the proposed commodity exchange bill would give the Government wide powers of regulation and supervision over the grain markets.

Cotton is excluded from the present measure. The commodities affected in addition to wheat, are corn, oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, grain sorghums and mill feeds.

Stranded Smelts Give Sea Gulls Huge Feast

Troutdale, Oreg. (U.P.).—A 4-foot drop in the waters of the Sandy River left millions of smelts stranded on a sand bar as shrieking gulls circled and swooped down on the helpless fish.

The smelts were trying to gain the upper reaches of the Sandy River from the Columbia. But the smelt schools after a few tentative thrusts up the Sandy would swerve back when beset by the gulls.

Most of the fish made their migration after nightfall, when the hungry gulls had gone to their rookeries.

SPRING FASHION PARADE.

(By our own society reporter.)

These are the days when the boulevards are reflecting the smart style trends. On a recent Sunday, your reporter mingled in the parading throngs, and is glad to picture the eye-filling scene for her constituents. Among the well-known people observed were Col. and Mrs. Artemus Pheeps, long representing the mold of fashion and the glass of form hereabouts. The colonel was his old self in a suit that must have been made for two other fellows. He had his rubbers on the wrong feet and needed a shave. Mrs. Pheeps was attired in something too involved for any explanation here and carried the family jewels in a cellophane bag.

• • • •

Among those observed but passed up by the photographers were Mr. and Mrs. V. Davits Flywheel and their daughter, Emma. Emma is all right, but it was impossible to snap her picture without getting her folks. There's a limit to everything.

• • • •

Mrs. Cheevers Debruce Broadbarge was seen halting traffic in an Easter getup that must have been put over on her while under an anesthetic. Her husband, Maj. Broadbarge, was with her when she left the house, but dodged into an alley before they had walked three blocks. He's awfully sensitive.

• • • •

The Misses Dollie and Marge Swoomock, charming debutante daughters of the Harrington P. Z. Swoomocks, came up the avenue shortly before noon today in crumpled ball gowns. They thought it was still last night.

• • • •

Col. Affable Coots-Coots appeared around 2 p. m. in the silk hat he reserves for special occasions and got his usual laughs.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. Calloway Earwax and their daughter, Clementhia, were among the forenoon paraders. Mrs. Earwax was luxuriously garbed, and, all things considered, didn't look half bad. Mr. Earwax wore linen shorts, a gray frock coat, an Elks fob and a brown derby with ostrich plumes. Even that didn't get the family into the Easter parade pictures. Clementhia, determined to have a photograph taken for the Monday newspapers, finally made the grade by shinning up a traffic post and removing her shoes and stockings. It didn't make sense, but it was at least different.

• • • •

Sysonby's Duke III and Princess Fannie V, the two police dogs of the Z. Wallabout Kurmudgeons, strolled down the avenue at noon with Mr. Kurmudgeon. Eliminating Mr. Kurmudgeon, they made a charming group.

Certified Seed Wins Farmers

University of Nebraska Product Develops Greater Yield.

Lincoln, Nebr. (AP).—Certified seed is winning its way among dirt farmers as well as "professor" farmers.

One certified grain, developed from experimental selections at the University of Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station, is estimated by P. H. Stewart, agronomist, to be used now for 60 per cent of the Nebraska winter wheat acreage.

It is "Nebraska 60," first distributed to farmers in 1918 and now widely used, says Stewart, because it has yielded about 6 per cent more per acre than the original Turkey wheat from which it was developed. Characterized by superior winter hardiness and good grain quality, it is desirable for milling and baking.

Besides certification of wheat, the efforts of the Nebraska Crop Growers' Association to improve plantings has resulted in a distinct trend toward elimination of the rough awn on barley and development of such improved varieties as velvet and comfort.

The Hardistan variety of alfalfa has been used in the State three years, Stewart said, and is becoming popular.

Dartmouth High School Has Agricultural Course

Dartmouth, Mass. (U.P.).—A 4-year vocational agricultural course is included in the curricula of Dartmouth High School, and 25 students are enrolled.

They have formed a chapter of the National organization known as the Future Farmers of America.

FREDERICK VAN NUYS, Senator from Indiana. Born at Falmouth, Ind., 59 years ago. Educated at Earlham College, Ind., and took law degree at Indiana Law School. Began practice at Shelbyville, Ind., 1900. As prosecuting attorney of Madison County, 1906-1910, he gained fame in labor cases. Member of Indiana State Senate, 1913-1916, and chairman of State Democratic committee, 1917-1918. U. S. District Attorney of Indiana, 1920-1922. Known as the man who beat Jim Watson, former Republican floor leader, for the Senate in the Democratic landslide of last year. Fought the klan in its heyday in Indiana. Was chairman of subcommittee investigating bankruptcy legislation and put on quite a show as chairman of subcommittee when hearings were staged on Federal anti-lynching bill. Among the less violent New Dealers, he is genial, short and liked by his fellows.

If Neighbors Do Your Plowing You Should Feed Their Horses

By Robert Quillen

As usual in such cases, partisans in the air-mail controversy lose sight of facts and logic.

It is argued by those whose pockets are affected that the carrying of mail is rightfully the business of private industry. For the Government to use its own employes for such work is un-American, contrary to the principles of democracy and a violation of the Ten Commandments.

But what of these gray-clad men who trudge city streets with bags of mail? Aren't they mail carriers? And aren't these and the carriers who serve rural routes employes of the Government?

Perhaps each community should have a corporation, heavily subsidized with the taxpayers' money, to distribute mail from door to door.

The air-mail carriers need not depend on such argument. They have a much sounder logic to justify their acceptance of public money.

Ask the ordinary man in the street—the fellow who will be cannon fodder if war comes—and you will find his opinion of the whole matter patriotic and sensible.

Though he hates and dreads war, he believes his country should be so well prepared for it that none will dare attack her.

He believes the next war will be won in the air. And since Congress will not provide an adequate air force, and the building of factories and the improvement of planes are left to private enterprise, he believes private industry should receive any subsidy that is necessary to support it.

Of late he has come to believe the Army's planes less efficient than the planes used in commerce, and the Army's flyers inadequately trained, and he feels that he has been cheated and tricked again by Government mismanagement.

If he is right, and he usually is, the present uproar will in the end serve to improve the Nation's defenses.

And then the Army flyers who died doing their best will have served their country as well as any who die in battle to make it safe.

Engineer Loses Teeth; Finds Them Atop Snow

Butte, Mont. (AP).—Maybe if it hadn't been cold that day, H. B. (Casey) Jones, railroad engineer, might still be hunting for his false teeth.

Jones sneezed his mail order molars out of his cab window on the Butte-Salt Lake run. He telephoned friends who instituted an unsuccessful search with the aid of section crews.

Jones returned and found them, he says, because of the cold weather.

"There they were right on top of a snowdrift, chattering to beat the band—and that's the tooth, the whole tooth and nothing but the tooth."

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

A New Murder Story.

"Two o'Clock Courage," by Gelett Burgess, is exciting from cover to cover, thus fulfilling the first function of a crime novel. So far as I know, it is the first attempt in this kind of writing by an author who has been famous for many years for almost everything else. As this new story is sure to give him addition fame, it may be interesting to recall some of his past achievements.

Frank Gelett Burges was born in Boston, made his first literary success in California, and for some years has been the representative of the American Authors League in Paris. I think thousands of persons use the epithet bromide and bromidic without remembering who invented them. In the year 1906 he published a little book, "Are You a Bromide?" in which he gave to all persons who use hackneyed and hand-me-down phrases the nickname Bromide. In the same work he called original and witty persons by the name Sulphite. This latter word has been forgotten, but Bromide stuck, possibly because so many people think everyone is a bromide except themselves. The word is now absolutely part of the American language.

He wrote many books of delightful nonsense, illustrated with his own drawings in the same vein. In the British Who's Who, he is entered as "author and grotesque draftsman." His work "The Purple Cow" was quoted everywhere, and he is the author of a delightful poem.

The Roof.

The roof it has an easy time,
A-lying in the sun;
The walls they have to hold it up.
They do not have much fun.

He was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, began work as a civil engineer, was instructor in topographical drawings in the University of California, when, like so many engineers, mathematicians, architects and artists, he changed from the pencil to the pen.

And now, he makes his first attempt at a murder story, with brilliant success. The scenes are all laid in his birthplace, Boston; the story is exciting, and well told, in an admirable literary style; while the character of the starving girl will not be forbotten by readers. I am grateful to Mr. Burgess for the intense enjoyment I have received from "Two o'Clock Courage."

The Post Ends Essay Contest Next Monday

Articles of Pupils Seeking Scholarships Must Be in April 9.

The "deadline" for the receipt at The Post of essays in The Washington Post Scholarship Competition will be next Monday, April 9. Inquiries reaching the competition headquarters indicate there has been some confusion of the project's scheduled dates on the part of a few competitors.

Principals of the enrolled schools therefore are being urged to bear in mind this date for delivery at The Post of the essays of their school finals champions. Each principal should address to Louise P. Engle, director of the competition, at The Post, the one essay adjudged best in his school finals. This may be delivered by hand or by mail, but must reach The Post next Monday.

Two more local school champions were announced today by their principals. David Todd, 18, senior at Sidwell's Friends School, will represent that school with an essay on "The Causes and Cures of Unemployment." Todd is the son of Lawrence Todd, local newspaper correspondent, and lives at 3738 Huntington street northwest. He has been active in dramatics at Friends, playing leading roles for several years, and this year he served as stage manager. He intends to major in chemistry at college.

Devitt Preparatory School announced Robert Thompson, 18, senior, as its representative in the competition's division finals. Thompson's essay is on "The Influence of the Supreme Court on American History." T. E. Weil, instructor of Devitt's class in literature, was in charge of the project there.

Canada Has Largest Bison Herd in World

Montreal (U.P.).—The return of the bison to his former stamping grounds in Western Canada marks one of the most successful efforts in the preservation of wild life according to Alan Longstaff, of the Canadian National Railways.

From a herd of 716 animals, purchased in 1907 from a half-breed rancher in Montana and brought to Canada, has grown the largest herd of wild bison in the world, located at Buffalo National Park, at Wainwright, Alta., Longstaff says. "The annual increase of this herd, almost 2,000 animals, must be killed or otherwise disposed of yearly in order to keep the main herd within the feeding possibilities of the National park area."

Profits to Children.

Cleveland (U.P.).—Because Thomas Costa knows from experience how it feels for a child to be pinched financially, one day's profits from his two flower stands are turned over once a month to help Cleveland boys and girls. The plan has just begun its third year of operation.

No End of Books

By

Theodore Hall

BY the device of a motor trip along California's Mother Lode Highway, C. B. Glasscock makes a rambling and fresh story of that familiar theme—the Gold Rush Camps of the Sierras.

"A Golden Highway" (Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50) shows the hand of the historian who knows his way among obscure volumes. Better yet, it shows that leisurely antiquarian taste which will stop on a mountain side to muse over the ruins of some once-gorgeous sink of iniquity, or will listen to the tall tales still told by the descendants of the Forty-Niners. From Mariposa to Weaverville (a map in the fly-leaves makes the trip nicely clear) Mr. Glasscock traveled with his wife to find what was left of those incredible days. They found plenty; they remembered more.

THEO. HALL.

• • • •

From Portsmouth Square, San Francisco, where the cry of "Gold! Gold from the American Fork!" sent four-fifths of the territory's white population crowding into Coloma, the Glasscocks set out on their sentimental journey. At Sacramento was Sutter's Fort, or at least the reconstruction.

Here, on January 24, 1848, a man named Marshall, sweating with excitement, had pushed a hand-full of gold flakes before his employer John Sutter was less pleased than any other man in California would have been; the discovery meant the end of his dream of landed empire. He tried to keep the matter secret, so that at least his saw-mill and fort might be finished. But the news leaked out. When he hurried to legalize the lease of a hundred square miles of gold country from the Indians for shirts and bandannas, it was too late. The hills were full of squatters chipping gold out of the ground with bowie knives.

• • • •

Placerville, once called Hangtown, had seen Mark Hopkins open a grocery store, Philip D. Armour run a butcher shop, and J. M. Studebaker fashion his first vehicles, wheelbarrows for the miners. Leland Stanford began his spectacular rise with a store at Michigan City. At a site called You Bet there had once been a mountain—literally it was now a canyon half a mile deep, the result of hydraulic mining. To come to the once-thriving Grass Valley, the seductive Lola Montez had left King Louis I of Bavaria to face scandal and revolution. Her pet bear on a silver chain, her hamper of champagne, her low-cut velvet gowns fascinated the miners. But not everyone. When a newspaper editor wrote of her in strong language, she horse-whipped him. Grass Valley likewise boasts of 83 years of continuous mining. The great Empire Mine, now holding 190 miles of tunnels, has produced $50,000,000 in gold and is still in operation.

Downieville, even in those robust times, was famous for its sudden deaths. Also for its high society. Here Louise Hungerford, at the age of 17, married Dr. E. Bryant and became the mother of the subsequent Princess Colonna of Rome. Widowed shortly after, Mrs. Bryant married John Mackay, the bonanza king. Their son is Clarence Hungerford Mackay of the Postal Telegraph.

• • • •

But if this is familiar to you, you will find richer items in the book. There was the Ancient and Honorable Order of E. Clampus Vitus, a riotous fraternity whose initiations matched the temper of the times. There was the little town of Rough and Ready, which adopted a constitution and seceded in a huff from the Union in 1850. At Weaverville had occurred the opera bouffe battle between two Chinese tongs. A month of preparation resulted in a fracas lasting two minutes, which would not have lasted that long if the 2,000 white spectators hadn't joined in. In the town of Volcano, in 1850, was founded California's first rental library. At Angels Camp the hoax of the Pliocene skull (in reality circa 1849) set anthropologists on their ears the world over. Melones, once the largest mining town in the State, was the original of Bret Harte's Roaring Camp. Nearby is where the Caleveras frog jumped.

Lynchings, epic fights, duels and murders, tales of $30,000 nuggets lifted bare-handed from the ground and a yield of $5,000,000 from a hole 12 feet by 6 by 9, this is the earthy and heady fare the book offers. Because we are taken on the scene, even 80 years late, we live the times over again. Mr. Glasscock writes with verve and persuasion.

There are a thousand anecdotes. I liked that of the woman who made more money washing shirts at $12 a dozen than her husband did at the placer. Or that of the miner who started home one night, fell into a mine shaft, and succeeded in catching hold of the brink with his hands. He called desperately for help. No one came by. Finally, hopeless and exhausted, he consigned his soul to God and let go—to drop six inches.

State Policies Of Insurance Total $400,000

Director Terms Oklahoma Experiment Big Success.

Oklahoma City (U.P.).—Oklahoma's semi-Socialist experiment, the State industrial compensation fund, is proving a big success, according to Chester Napps, director.

Set up with a capital of $25,000, through a law passed last year, the State's insurance business already has grown to more than 500 active policies for total risks of more than $400,000.

Private Firms Quit.

As several private risk insurance companies quit the field because of tax burdens and losses, the number of State policies has leaped, Napps said, with 200 written in the past two months. He explained that the State insurance fund operates on approximately 5 per cent overhead, while private companies have recorded overhead expenses of 15 per cent up to 25 per cent.

An attractive feature of the State insurance is that its rate was set 15 per cent lower than usual commercial rates.

Financial Condition.

Today, the fund has cash $80,000 on hand, $100,000 of earned premiums and $40,000 in process of collection. Earned premiums for January and February ran $30,000 a month, and Napps believes this figure will be raised considerably within the next year.

The loss rate has been around 10 per cent, much lower, Napps said, than commercial insurance concerns. This is due to the rigid policy adopted in writing the State insurance. Scores of policies are turned down each month because the applicant is an unsafe risk. If the physical examination required before a policy is written shows some physical defects in the applicant with possibility of early death, the risk is rejected.

Houses Renamed To Please Il Duce

Vienna Makes Changes as Favor to Mussolini.

Vienna (U.P.).—In accordance with a long-standing promise to Mussolini by Prince Starhemberg, leader of the Heimwehr, that he would eradicate signs of Marxism in Vienna, which were an insult to Italian Fascism, a start has been made in changing the names on municipal apartment houses.

The municipal house, Matteottihof, has become Giulio Giordanihof, in honor of a Bolognese lawyer who was reported to have been killed in November, 1921, by Marxists. At the same time the coloring of the letters was changed from red to green.

At the conclusion of the ceremony of altering the lettering, green and white Heimwehr flags were draped over the bronze Matteotti memorial plaques flanking the entrance of the building.

This is the second of many planned rechristenings. The first was the changing of Indianerhof to Feyhof, in commemoration of Vice Chancellor Fey's participation in the capture of the building.

Rare Trumpeter Swans Increase in Yellowstone

Yellowstone National Park, Wyo. (U.P.).—Faced with extinction two or three years ago, trumpeter swans have increased remarkably under the protection afforded by Yellowstone Park.

From a brood of two or three families, a flock of more than 60 has developed in the park. The beautiful birds are so rare that park rangers guard their breeding places carefully and keep visitors away because their presence might betray location of the swans' nests to hungry ravens and other natural enemies.

New Type of Road Bandit Is Reported

New Orleans (U.P.).—Officials of local motor freight lines, operating in Louisiana and Texas, report raids by a new type of bandit that robs their trucks while they are speeding down the highways.

The thief calmly climbs on the bumper of an automobile driven behind the truck by a confederate, slits the canvas cover over the merchandise and throws out readily salable articles, such as cigarettes and automobile tires.

Kansan Tries Hand At Raising Nutrias

South American Beaver Valued for Fur.

Olathe, Kans. (U.P.).—James G. Manning, who imported the first nutria, or South American beaver, to this country, believes the demand for the animals' fur will result in numerous domestic breeding farms in the United States.

The nutria, unlike its North American cousin, does not indulge in tree-cutting and dam-building, but seems content to eat carrots, other vegetables and weeds, and swim about a tank.

The animals are easily raised, according to Manning, who now has 18. The male weighs about 25 pounds and his consort about 17 pounds. They reproduce at the rate of about five litters every two years with from four to eleven young in a litter.

Turks Study Science.

Istanbul (U.P.).—Science is the most popular subject with Turkish students. Out of a total enrollment of 3,154 at the new university in Istanbul, 1,147 are studying science, 1,133 chose law, 837 decided upon literature and only 374 hope to become qualified physicians.

Katharine Cornell Will Add Ibsen Drama to New York Repertory in December

'Rosmersholm' Drab Play; Theaters' Egg-Rolling; Playhouse Chat.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Katharine Cornell, over the Easter week-end, made definite announcement that she will begin her first repertory season in New York in December, with Will Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," according to the latest bulletin from the indefatigable Ray Henderson, mailed in New Orleans on Saturday.

She will make her first appearance in Ibsen as Rebecca West in "Rosmersholm" during her metropolitan engagement and also will present G. Bernard Shaw's "Candida" and Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

Each of these plays will be given for a limited period only. Guthrie McClintic, in private life Miss Cornell's husband, will direct the four productions.

Basil Rathbone, English star of stage and screen, last seen here, if memory serves, with Diana Wynyard, Robert Loraine and a distinguished cast in "The Devil Passes," returns to the New York stage in the leading male roles of Miss Cornell's repertory, which, with the exception of Rosmer in the Ibsen drama, he has played with the actress throughout her transcontinental tour this season.

There is one production of Ibsen's "Rosemersholm" that will long linger in the memories of all who saw it—and they were many—and that was the presentation of the play in the Belasco Theater in this city by the late Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske and her celebrated Manhattan Company.

The principal male roles in Mrs. Fiske's production of the drama of many abstruse implications were played by Bruce McRae, Fuller Mellish and George Arliss.

That, ladies and gentlemen, was a good, round quarter of a century ago! Mr. Arliss did not come to his present eminence until many years later.

Yo, Ho, Ho, and a Bottle of Rum!

Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," in the Jules Eckert Goodman stage version, will be presented for three performances on Friday and Saturday of this week in the auditorium of the Roosevelt High School, by the Washington Community Players, who recently gave such an excellent account of themselves in "Alice in Wonderland."

Following the Saturday afternoon performance, the Community Players will hold an informal reception on the stage for the boys and girls in the audience who will wish to meet the young hero, Jim Hawkins, in the person of the equally young Andrew Dent, age 15, who has been selected to play this beloved character in this classic tale of pirates on the high seas.

Many amusing anecdotes attach to Robert Louis Stevenson's avowed lack of "money sense" in handling his business affairs.

Once he and Mrs. Stevenson went from England to Paris on a pleasure trip. They had a check for 100 pounds and some odd money and meant to have a thoroughly good time, limiting the length of their stay only by how long their money lasted.

After a few days they found their funds strangely running short and reached a hurried determination to get back to England while there was still enough left for fare. When they arrived back home, imagine their surprise to discover the check for 100 pounds untouched among their belongings.

They had completely ignored the minor matter of cashing it!

A New Play.

Tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the clubrooms, the Arts Club of Washington will celebrate a "Boker night."

For the first time a new play, "Konigsmark," by George H. Boker, author of "Francesca de Rimini," will be presented by well-known local actors, comprising the group known as the Bankside Players.

The cast of "Konigsmark" will include Anne Ives, Dorothy Lawrence, Forney Reese and Richard Kreuzburg.

With Thurston, the magician, the Loew Theaters' Cadet Band and the Frank Buck "jungle touch," with its mechanical wild beasts in motion and making their weird noises, all supplying impromptu embellishment of one of the year's most colorful ceremonies, the theaters were well represented yesterday at the White House Easter egg-rolling. Not only did the Loew Cadet Band play for the egg-rolling, but from there dashed away to Bowie and did a few numbers, also, in observance of the opening of the Eastern racing season.

So the Theater Is Dying!

Something unique in the way of a theatrical announcement emanated from the office of Sam H. Harris in New York a few days ago.

It took the form of a properly attested affidavit, sworn to before a notary public and signed by the treasurer and assistant treasurer of the Music Box Theater, that charming playhouse with the lyric facade on West Forthy-fifth street which is the most disconcertingly successful place of amusement in the metropolis.

The affidavit sets forth that up to and including the 200th performance of "As Thousands Cheer," the revue by Irving Berlin and Moss Hart now current there, there had not been one single unsold seat in the theater and that the average number of standees per performance had been 24.

The success of this particular entertainment would seem to indicate that there is still life in the old-fashioned theater, which has been reported to be suffering from galloping rigor mortis, or something equally fatal, for a number of years now!

It is deemed advisable to set down a brief reminder that tonight's performance of "Richard of Bordeaux," starring Dennis King at the National, is a benefit for the current season of the Children's Theater of New York in Washington. This splendid organization, formed under the leadership of Mrs. Clare Tree Major, in its second full season in the Capital, has felt the inevitable box office pinch occasioned by the epidemic of measles that raged for so long. Tonight's benefit, thus, is for a most worthy cause—to help offset a threatened deficit as the Children's Theater season draws toward an end.

Mark Twain Was Right!

And only a week ago we had a blizzard—well, anyhow, a snowstorm — remember? Wouldn't feel bad, at that.

Plays the Last of Regal Line

Although a nonsinging role, the character of Richard II of England affords Dennis King one of his most fruitful stage opportunities. The vehicle in which he appears, of course, is Gordon Daviot's "Richard of Bordeaux," which opened in the National Theater last night for a week's engagement and will be found completely reviewed elsewhere on this page.

There is, of course, a dramatic kinship between "Mary of Scotland" and "Richard of Bordeaux."

While "Richard of Bordeaux" lacks much of the poetic grandeur and no little of the dramatic power of the Maxwell Anderson play, seen on the same stage earlier in the season, in its fashioning Gordon Daviot, the author, reveals the results of what must have been a great amount of profound and accurate research.

The play, so elaborately presented in 11 scenes, divided into two acts of five and six scenes respectively, picks up the life of Richord II of England when he was 18 years of age—he was born in Bordeaux on January 6, 1367, and the play is initiated in February, 1385—under the complete and largely corrupt domination of his uncles the Dukes of Lancaster, York and Gloucester.

Begins Slowly.

The tenor of the times in England, with the youthful king a staunch advocate of peace and his principal advisers no less ardent in their espousal of war; the necessary establishment of the premises of the subsequent action and the considerable introduction of a long list of characters, combine to make the early movement of the play less movement than a succession of verbal passages between Richard and the members of his family and court. The six scenes of the second act, however, are prolific in situations of stirring dramatic content, a fine argumentative soundness and no little pathos, leading to the final episode in the Tower of London, when Richard of Bordeaux, like Mary of Scotland, having abdicated his throne, sits solitary and alone, facing a vague and tragic uncertainty.

Mr. Daviot takes no liberties with history at this juncture by attempting to establish the ultimate fate of a king whose end has never been authentically divulged. Richard II may have been murdered in London Tower, he may have died a natural death there, unrecorded and unheralded in troubled times, or he may have ended his days, hopelessly insane, across the borders of Scotland. Authenticated fact has never revealed which. Neither does the play.

"Revenge Is Mine."

The historical intervals between the various scenes are of such length as to make possible the inclusion in the drama of an intricate pattern of revenge, in which Richard, idealist, lover of beauty and esthete, pays off the scores piled up against themselves during the early years of his reign by the war lords who resented "extravagance" for the elegances of living, but applauded it for purposes of slaughter and conquest. There is in this portion of the cleverly counterpointed developments no little suggestion of the shrewdly contrived retributive justice with which the Count of Monte Cristo confounded his enemies in the Dumas romance played so long by James O'Neill.

Nothing has been omitted from "Richard of Bordeaux" of the pomp and pageantry that characterized English court life in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. The costuming and settings are colorful and picturesque in the extreme, the multiplicity of scenes are presented with smoothness and dispatch and adequate direction has bridged over the not too frequent gaps in which action, in the usual sense, must be supplanted by an arbitrary shifting of the figures on the boards.

Well Chosen Cast.

The play, furthermore, has been especially well cast, taking into due consideration that it is in large measure a swashbuckling romance, requiring a flamboyant style and tempo on the part of those sustaining the lusty cadences of the lines and the rapid speed at which they must be delivered.

Dennis King, in the title role, contributes a fine study in the emergence of adolescence into manhood and plays an exhausting part with grace, fluency, forcefulness and charm. There are moments of exquisite beauty in his reading, and periods of finely modulated feeling in the minute and convincing depiction of a character that was little liked and never understood.

As Anne of Bohemia, his only queen in the play, although mention is made of his marriage to Princess Isabel of France, a child of eight—an alliance that was made for purely political reasons—Beatrice de Neergaard gives a delightful performance. A charming suggestion of accent and an extraordinarily agreeable voice and presence add a rare touch of piquancy to all she does.

A Booming Gloucester.

Hugh Buckler turns in a booming portrayal of the Duke of Gloucester that is effective, if bombastic, and Charles Bryant, Duke of Lancaster, John of Gaunt, and Alexander Frank, Duke of York, slightly modify Mr. Buckler's stentorianism with no loss of effectiveness for any concerned. Montague Love is a suspicious conspirator, as Earl of Arundel, and a long list of others including particularly well-done portraitures by Henry Mollison, John Emery and Andrew Cruickshank complete the cast.

Olive Reeves-Smith and Elizabeth Cerf are the feminine members of the supporting company, eminently competent in small assignments.

The curtain calls were so insistent following the conclusion of the play that Mr. King, reviving an ancient custom, made a graceful curtain speech thanking the audience and Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who, with a party, occupied the Presidential box, for their reception of a play that may not be excluded from among the season's most worthy efforts in the direction of the recaptured romance of history.

Hollywood, April 2.—Toby Wing does all right with her romances. The little blonde actress hit the headlines as Maurice Chevalier's sweetheart. That had no sooner cooled when Harold B. Franklin, jr., son of a former theater tycoon, hove on the scene with a star sapphire. He and his father are en route to London today. During the two weeks prior to his departure the sapphire was missing from Toby's finger. Yesday the explanation for this was learned. Carl Laemmle, jr., Universal producer, is squiring the Paramount blonde. Seldom is Junior seen in public with feminine companions, and the fact that he takes Miss Wing popular night spots may mean something. Toby's friends are keeping an eye on her ring finger.

Merely a Prediction.

Despite vehement denials Gloria Swanson will file that divorce against Michael Farmer, now in France, according to good authority yesterday. Miss Swanson, as does her attorney, protests no legal proceedings are in the offing. But if there is no change of heart within the next four weeks, don't be surprised if she goes to court to make permanent what is now described as a temporary separation, brought on by business demands from Farmer abroad.

Hollywood, April 2.—Two statements were issued today anent the Warner-George Brant reaffiliation and the Brent-Ruth Chatterton separation. Mr. Brent said in part:

"I've learned my lesson, and that is, two people engaged in the same line of endeavor, both intent upon carving careers should never be married to each other. Somehow, no matter how unselfish the couple in this situation may be, the welfare of one or the other, or both, is bound to suffer.

GEORGE BRENT.

"No two careers can be carved out of the same pattern. What may make for success for one may prove disastrous for the other. Each individual personality and talent should be the sole guide in the climb toward success.

"To attempt to follow the rules that may have brought results for one is too apt to prove a failure when followed by another. Free of any responsibility except my own career, I await my first assignment."

Warner Bros.' statement was to the effect that they regard Brent as one of the most capable stars and that they expect great things of him. Plans for his pictures are very ambitious. Also that he may star in "Roadhouse," while a definite announcement will be made in a few days.

Brent said, outside of his formal statement, that he and Miss Chatterton would undoubtedly be divorced, but that the time and place had not been settled.

Picture Pageant Now Passing.

William Wyler, Universal director, has been given a new long-term contract, and will prepare to guide the destinies of a story called "Fanny" by Marcel Pagnol, French writer.

Steffi Duna may appear in "Sour Grapes," with Clive Brook and Diana Wynyard, rumor had it yesterday.

"Age of Innocence" was purchased by RKO with Irene Dunne in mind. No starting date has been set and there is possibility that John Boles will appear opposite. Miss Dunne is slated to make another picture before this, according to present plans.

Charles McNaughton, William V. Mong, Yorke Sherwood and Edmund Breese have been added to the cast of "Treasure Island."

Youth, 17, Pleads Guilty To Joy-Riding Charges

Edward J. Proctor, 17, who told police he wanted to be John Dillinger's chauffeur, pleaded guilty to joy-riding charges in Police Court yesterday and was held for grand jury action under $1,000 bond.

Proctor was arrested by Detective Serg. Frank Alligood in connection with the theft of an automobile. He is alleged to have admitted his guilt and told police he "was practicing to be Dillinger's chauffeur." He waived a preliminary hearing.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

How Some Diabetics Feel About It.

Many of those who die from diabetes come to the end because of their own folly or lack of self-control. This is evident from a study of fatal cases of diabetes made in New York City. The investigation related especially to fatal diabetic coma. The city health department made an inquiry into all such cases reported to them. A part of the investigation consisted in getting a written reply to certain questions from the physicians who signed the certificates.

Among the replies were these:

"I started the patient on a proper diet, hygienic routine, and insulin a year ago. The family told me the advice was not followed because it was considered a new fangled notion."

"Insulin treatment was refused."

"Insulin was omitted."

"Patient refused insulin."

"Under no medical care or dietary regimen for over a year although diabetic condition was known."

"Heavy meal, rich in carbohydrates the night before coma set in."

"Refused to keep any diet; would eat everything."

"Abscess of neck; patient refused insulin."

"Improper diet; omission of insulin."

"Acetonuria and dehydration; patient refused insulin injections."

"Infection of foot; insulin not given."

There may be some question as to the advantage of using insulin habitually in certain cases of diabetes, but there is none as to its use to overcome diabetic coma, or to prevent an attack that plainly is above the horizon. The man who refuses to use it to meet the coma emergency virtually commits suicide.

There is no disagreement as to the advisability of a diabetic having a proper diet carefully worked out for him, having rules of living laid down for him, and then sticking to that diet and those rules every day for years without ever backsliding. And yet, we read of "heavy meals rich in carbohydrates," "refused to keep any diet," "alcoholic spree." In this day such conduct amounts to self-destruction.

Dr. Joslin is of the opinion that in the best of circumstances only 5 per cent of diabetics should die from coma. Suppose we double that, and say that under attainable conditions with people as they are wise and foolish, strong and wishy-washy, not over 10 per cent of the diabetics should perish by reason of this accident.

The New York City investigation indicated that about 37 per cent of diabetic fatalities in that city were due to this complication. Based on this information, they are trying to reduce the diabetic death rate in New York City by promoting the general use of just one well-established procedure, namely, the use of insulin as a cure and as an immediate preventive of the most important accident in the disease, coma. If they can reduce that 37 per cent to 10 per cent they will have made no small headway in controlling the disease. Probably when they have persuaded people to use insulin to meet the coma emergency they will feel pepped up enough to take up another task by way of control of diabetes.

Cataract.

W. M. T. writes: 1. What are the causes of cataract?

2. Would a blow on the head cause it? If so, would a blow on the head at 35 years of age cause cataract to appear on the eyes at 70 years?

3. What are the causes of angina pectoris.

4. Do women ever suffer from the disease?

Reply.

1. Among the causes are senility, diabetes, exposure to glare, to heat, and to dust.

2. Trauma is an occasional cause. In this case senility is a better explanation.

3. Disease of the coronary artery (the artery of the heart wall), degeneration of the heart muscle, some kind of allergy.

4. Yes.

Plan to Widen Street Backed

Business Men Forecast New Bridge Will Increase Traffic.

A plan for Eighteenth street northwest, from Columbia road to Florida avenue, was indorsed by the Northwest Business Men's Association yesterday in a letter to the District Commissioners.

"We feel that the increased traffic which will result from the erection of the new Calvert Street Bridge will call for a wider street," the letter said. It was signed by Ernest L. Stewart, president of the association.

"This will serve to relieve a portion of the present Connecticut avenue congestion," continued the letter. "It is our understanding and desire that the present building line on Eighteenth street will not be disturbed, and that the present business properties need not be altered if the street is widened.

"This association also wishes to express its unanimous disapproval of the suggestion to make Eighteenth street a one-way street for certain periods during the day. Such a plan is plainly advantageous on streets which are primarily residential, but it is felt that it would work undue hardship on the business section of Eighteenth street, particularly between Columbia road and Florida avenue northwest."

Trouble With Your Car on Street or Highway?

that handled 19,352 calls for AAA members in and near the District of Columbia during the storms of January, February and March just past. To the men who manned these cars we pay this public tribute for their unfailing loyalty and highly efficient service. Patronize them when needing repairs and merchandise not included in AAA service.

These men are dressed and equipped—for service; not for show. They are residents and taxpayers of the District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland, in business for themselves; but are also a part of the great Nation-wide AAA Garage Service—of which there are nearly 10,000 garages carrying the AAA official appointment.

These garages have contracts with the District of Columbia AAA Club—so that we are able to maintain a vigilant road service constantly—every hour of every day in the year.

There are 30 incoming trunk lines in our AAA offices at Pennsylvania Avenue and 17th Street; and a battery of lines used exclusively for outgoing calls; together with private lines to the larger garages. THESE LINES ARE NEVER CLOSED. Instant help will be extended to local or visiting AAA members having trouble with their cars.

Every minute of every day in the year—Metropolitan 4000 is on duty to answer every AAA call for help

Car won't start?
Ignition wet?
Need chains put on?

Run out of gasoline?
Need new battery?
Got a flat tire?

Brakes need adjusting?
Motor frozen up?
Car in a ditch?

Headlights need adjusting?
Need to be towed?
Had a break-down?

When AAA members call the above number trained dispatchers send experienced men and special equipment needed to handle your particular trouble. No charge for this service—it is all included in an AAA membership. If road repairs are so complicated they can not be made in half an hour's time your car will be towed to your own garage, to your car dealer or to the garage indicated by you. Five miles of free towing of a disabled car outside of the District.

No calls are to be made to the garages in and adjacent to the District. THE AAA HEADQUARTERS MUST ALWAYS BE NOTIFIED IN SUCH CASES.

AAA Patrol Car

The illustration above is a type of the AAA Patrol Car that carries radio and Red Cross emergency equipment as well as skilled mechanics. Through radio this car gets instant word of accidents and quickly goes to the scene. It also carries photographic equipment for obtaining records of accidents and wrecks.

A part of a nation-wide service that has never been matched.

Famous AAA Road Patrol

The illustration above is a type of the familiar AAA Road Patrol. Our men are protected from bad weather by being in closed cars; and equipment is of such size as to be used for emergency towing and for carrying injured people to hospitals, etc. These cars patrol the roads both night and day, and are also available for special dispatch service.

Another nation-wide feature of AAA that has never been matched.

Cornell Concert Friday Gives Two College Fetes in Week.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Washington society is looking forward with great interest to the performance of "Hades! The ladies!" at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the Belasco Theater. This musical comedy is the first show that the Hasty Pudding Club, of Harvard, has presented in Washington in ten years.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Breckenridge will entertain at luncheon today for the members of the cast. Their son, Mr. Robert Breckenridge, heads the cast, which includes Mr. Charles Sedgewick, Mr. Robert S. Hepburn, brother of Katharine Hepburn; Mr. Theodore Roosevelt 3d, Mr. Barrett Wendel 3d, Mr. John S. Howe and many others.

This afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain the cast at tea at the White House, and this evening the members of the Washington Harvard Club will entertain at a buffet supper at the Cosmos Club, preceding the show. Following the performance a cabaret party and dance, sponsored by Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Alvin T. Hert and Mrs. John C. Breckenridge will be given at the Sulgrave Club for the players.

Cornell Concert Friday.

The book was written by Mr. Francis D. Moore, president of the Harvard Lampoon; Mr. James Parton, Mr. Charles Haas and Mr. Lee Howard.

Close on the heels of the Harvard presentation will come the concert to be given by the Cornell Musical Clubs, in Constitution Hall on Friday evening. Throughout Friday the members of the clubs will be feted by graduates of Cornell residing here.

The Minister of China and Mme. Sze will entertain at a tea at the Chinese Legation for the graduates of Cornell, in honor of the undergraduate vocalists and instrumentalists. Mme. Sze will receive from 4:40 to 6 o'clock, and will have assisting her Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., Mrs. William I. Meyer, Mrs. Walter G. Distler and Mrs. John S. Gorrell.

Assistants to Hostess.

Presiding at the table will be Mrs. Joseph Quincy Adams, Mrs. Guernsey T. Cross, Mrs. F. E. Espenschied, Mrs. Frederick V. Coville, Mrs. James A. Meeks, Mrs. Karl Kellerman and Mrs. Herbert D. Brown, and those assisting will be Miss Jean Stephenson, Mrs. Francis P. Keiper, Miss Josephine Ranson, Miss Polly Enders, Mrs. Harold W. Toynton, Mrs. William S. Graham and Miss Jean Wolfe, all of whom are either graduates of Cornell or wives of graduates. The Minister of China is a graduate of the university. The occasion will be the last day of the season on which Mme. Sze will receive.

The musical clubs will arrive from Baltimore at noon Friday. They will be entertained at a luncheon at the University Club by the Cornell Club of Washington, of which Mr. John S. Gorrell is president. Mr. Robert Hopper, president of the undergraduate organization, will address the alumni. The clubs comprise the Cornell Glee Club and Cornell Banjo and Mandolin Club. Eric Dudley and George L. Coleman, vocal and instrumental faculty directors, will be guests of honor. Mr. Walter G. Distler, chairman of the committee on arrangements, also will speak.

Buffet Supper.

Following the concert, the undergraduates will be entertained at the University Club, when a buffet supper will be served. The Gridiron Quartet will sing. Mr. Distler has charge of the program.

The committee on arrangements for the appearance of the musical clubs includes, besides Mr. Distler, Mr. John S. Gorrell, Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist, president of the Cornell Women's Club of Washington; Mrs. Francis P. Keiper, Mr. Edward Holmes, Mr. Francis P. Roberts, Mr. William S. Graham, Mr. Percy W. Phillips, Mr. James T. Bull and Mr. Oliver Griswold.

Powder Soap For Hair Does Efficient Work

New Pyramid Package Contains Powder Shampoo.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THERE ARE many shampoos on the market, but there aren't many which we like. That's why this new one is "taking" so well.

A lot of people don't care for liquid shampoos. Still more don't care for soap cakes. Here is one which is neither. It's a powder, a coarse grained powder which gets down on to the old scalp and does a real job.

It goes a long way toward taking away dandruff, it relieves an itching scalp, and is good for oily hair.

Before using it the hair should be thoroughly wet. The powder is then sprinkled on and rubbed in. At first it doesn't lather very much. Then the hair should be rinsed, and more powder applied. A good hearty massage now, and it makes a fine smooth lather all over the head. This should be thorougly rinsed off. When the hair dries, it's as light and soft as can be, and the scalp clean and invigorated.

It comes in an odd pyramid shaped package which contains about 12 applications. Price, 50 cents.

Glass Perfume Sphere.

A little glass sphere resting on an ebony-like base is apparently without an opening. But tilt it carefully and a drop of light perfume falls on the hand.

These novel perfume spheres sold at a downtown store are small and inexpensive and filled with a flowery fragrance; the very things for the completely furnished guest room. There are several scents, "Secret," Gardenia, Camella, Freesia, Cyclamen, and Mimosa.

Mimosa has all the rare sweetness of the flower, and is one of the few perfumes based on this fragrance.

* * * *

Flowered Jewels.

Colored combination flowers set in the midst of rhinestones make the new costume jewelry in a local shop attractive.

Ruffly evening dresses can be ruined by the wrong kind of jewelry. This type, however, is light, and dainty enough to be quite appropriate.

Besides earrings and necklaces, there are clips which would look well on garden hats or dress turbans.

Effective Without Elbow Grease.

In looking around for a satisfactory paint cleanser be sure and find one that takes little effort to apply, and one that makes the dirt literally roll away.

Many spring house cleaners can still vividly remember their last year's experience resulting in aching backs and sore muscles. Paint cleaning is usually responsible because of the hard labor dependent on it.

But a cleanser such as mentioned above will take but a few moments to apply, and does the work thoroughly with little elbow grease back of it. It may be purchased in a downtown store.

* * * *

Good Ideas Here.

A local shop offers a unique service. Realizing how many hostesses worry about table decoration and proper ways of setting the table, they have placed a long dining table in an alcove just off the china department. This table is always beautifully arranged and properly set. The smallest spoon to the last wine glass is exactly in place. The center piece is different and attractive, the linen and the silver, the finest.

Any hostess who entertains a lot can not fail to find new ideas for the arrangement of her own table. And she can depend on it the ideas are in excellent taste.

Each week the table is completely redone—new service dishes, new glassware and a new centerpiece. Even though a person might not want to copy the whole set-up she can pick up some good ideas here.

* * * *

To Glorify Beer.

Large globular beer glasses with hollow stems are among the newest and most novel additions to the glassware department in a local shop.

The tops of these are clear crystal, but the round flat bases are in different colors.

* * * *

To Make You Smoother.

Garters which fasten on to hose without the aid of a button are fast becoming favorites. They enable one to wear a sleek, tight-fitting evening dress without the unsightly bump resulting from a button.

They may be bought separately and sewn on to foundation garments, or they may be bought on garter belts put out by the same concern.

One especially clever garment is the brassiere-garter belt combination. Little rubber bands connect the back of the brassiere to the garter belt, and pull it quite low, so it may be worn with backless evening dresses without fear it will creep up into sight.

Dark Apartments With Little Sunlight Made Cheery by Use of Gay Chintzes

By Jo Ellen Maxson.

NEVER HAVE spring chintzes been gayer than this season. Whatever your decorating mood may be, there is a chintz to match it!

Just looking at the colorful new materials gives you a host of ideas, particularly if your problem happens to be an apartment with insufficient sun and daylight.

One drab little apartment opening onto a court has been transformed into a delightful, cheery little group of rooms by the understanding use of chintzes and color.

The draperies in the living room are of soft, old yellow chintz with a tiny wheel design picked out in brown and beige. This is the basis of the color scheme for the rest of the room.

Brown Is Accented.

The brown accent is repeated in the carpeting, a deep chocolate color. The walls are covered in rough textured paper with beige and white pin stripes on a yellow background.

At one end of the room a sofa is slip-covered in brown glazed chintz with weltings of yellow. A nearby barrel-backed chair is upholstered in the same chintz as the draperies. A low coffee table of waxed pine has smoking accessories of jade green glass. The fruitwood tables flanking the sofa on either side hold lamps with squatbases of colorful Italian pottery with antique parchment shades which give the light a soft mellowness.

In the book corner is an armchair covered in gay field flower chintz with a jade green ground and flowers in yellow, coral and beige. The bookcases are of waxed pine and without ornamentation with the exception of a simple scalloped molding at the top and base. A green glass lamp base on a small nest of ivory lacquered tables beside the armchair is shaded in pleated yellow chintz.

Sunny Walls.

The bed room walls are painted a sunny yellow, and the furniture is lacquered Chinese green. The twin couch beds have spreads of yellow and white checked organdy with deep flounces along the sides and across the ends. A slipper chair is covered in yellow chintz with a quaint, flowered pattern of green, white and coral set in small medallions. The windows are curtained in ruffled, dotted cream net.

Even the tiny kitchenette radiates gayety and color with its yellow polka dot curtains and matching shelf paper. Cookie and spice jars are of old brown Bennington ware, and the pots and saucepans are of brown enamel. There is a row of plates and tea cups in an amusing polka dot design.

Miss Maxson gives individual help in home decorating problems. Write her in care of The Washington Post or phone NA. 4205 for an appointment.

Mrs. Allard Gasque, wife of Representative Gasque, entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock at the Congressional Club in honor of Mrs. N. B. Dial, wife of former Representative Dial, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Nathaniel Minter Dial, whose marriage to Ensign Dial took place in Long Beach, Calif., March 24.

The club was decorated with clusters of spring flowers and the tea table had a large centerpiece of Columbia roses. Mrs. Gasque, who received with her honor guests, wore a gown of soft green crepe and a large black picture hat. Mrs. N. B. Dial had on a smart ensemble of black with touches of white, and a small black and white hat. Mrs. Nathaniel M. Dial wore a jacket-frock of aquamarine crepe and a small off-the-face hat of the same shade. Both honor guests wore orchid corsages.

The guests included about 50 members of the younger set in Washington who are friends of Ensign Dial.

Ensign Dial and his bride came East on their wedding trip and are now with his parents for a brief visit before returning to the West Coast, where he is stationed.

At a meeting of the Army Unit of the National Symphony Orchestra Association yesterday at the home of Mrs. Hugh A. Drum, chairman, plans were made for soliciting aid from Army people in the Capital and metropolitan area toward the $60,000 sustaining fund for next season's orchestra concerts. To date $40,000 has been secured in pledges and donations from all sources.

Members of the Army Unit will meet again Monday morning at the home of Mrs. Drum to report the progress made.

Those present yesterday were Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the Secretary of War; Mrs. Thomas Q. Ashburn, Mrs. Louis H. Mash, Mrs. Alva J. Brasted, Mrs. Claude E. Brigham, Mrs. Arthur W. Brown, Mrs. Robert E. Callan, Mrs. Frederick W. Coleman, Mrs. Creed Cox, Mrs. Edward Croft, Mrs. Robert W. Danford, Mrs. Benjamin D. Foulois, Mrs. William F. Hase, Mrs. Harry B. Van Horn, Mrs. Erle Wilson and Mrs. Barton K. Yount, secretary of the Army Unit.

Capt. Camille Husson, retiring French Naval Attache, was guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday at the Mayflower by naval attaches and assistant naval attaches to the several embassies in Washington.

The company present included the Soviet Naval Attache, Admiral Paul Oras; Commander Frank D. Pryor, U. S. N., who represented Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, Director of Naval Intelligence; Mr. Alexander Yakimichev, assistant to the Soviet Naval Attache; Capt. Ferdinando Casardi, Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy; Capt. Masashi Kobayashi, Naval Attache to the Japanese Embassy; Commander Federico Monreal y Pilon, Naval Attache of the Spanish Embassy; Engineer Commander J. S. Orr, assistant Naval Attache of the British Embassy, and Commander Yosiyuki Itimiya, assistant to the Japanese Naval Attache.

Miss Ruth Carol Little and her fiance, Mr. Fred P. Hobart, who will be married at Trinity Episcopal Church tomorrow evening, were guests of honor at a dinner given by Mr. Robert L. Parsons last evening at the Shoreham.

Miss Little is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Little, and Mr. Hobart's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Hobart.

Mr. Parsons will be best man at the wedding. His guests at the Shoreham were members of the wedding party, including Miss Ruth Adams, Miss Elizabeth Mayo, Miss Barbara Alice Pine, Miss E. Grace Shermer, Dr. John C. Dubler, Mr. J. Courtney Suter and Mr. Robert Jackson.

The Illinois State Society will hold a meeting in honor of Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, at the Shoreham Hotel at 8 o'clock this evening.

A musical program will be given by Grace Briner Bradley, soprano; Beth King, pianist, and Giuseppe Bruno, barytone.

Senator William H. Dieterich will preside.

Following the program there will be a reception and dancing. It is expected the Illinois Delegation will be present.

Mrs. Harry Payer, wife of the former Assistant Secretary of State, entertained at luncheon yesterday in her home on New Hampshire avenue.

The guests were Mrs. J. R. Van Fossen, Mrs. Lynn Talley, Miss Katherine Talley, Mrs. Eugene R. Woodson, Miss Jean Woodson, Mrs. Nathan Brewer, Mrs. Thad Brown, Mrs. Warren Pierson, Mrs. Benjamin Barthlow, Mrs. Richardson Saunders, Mrs. Robert Gates, Mrs. Erwin Griswold, Mrs. Emil Hurja.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Frierson entertained at dinner at the Shoreham Monday evening for the host's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Frierson, of Nashville, Tenn., who are visiting in the Capital. Included in the party were Miss Chloe Frierson and Mr. Horace Frierson 3d, daughter and son of the visitors, and Mr. and Mrs. Adrien F. Busick.

Miss Mary Kenny, who has been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kenny, in their winter home at Palm Beach, will leave today for the North. Her wedding to Mr. Gregory Mangin, noted tennis player, will take place in October. Miss Kenny will be maid of honor at the marriage of Miss Peggy Bradley Bailey and Mr. Frank Speno, jr., May 7, at Idle Hour Farm, the Lexington estate of Miss Bailey's uncle, Col. Edward R. Bradley.

Miss Meredith Haines, of New York, house guest of Miss Marjorie Nye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald P. Nye, was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Miss Nye last evening at the Shoreham.

Others included Miss Anna Lura Keplinger, Miss Virginia Cammack, Miss Elizabeth Sheild, Mr. Neal White, Mr. Heydon Wells, Mr. James Ginn, Mr. Gordon Smale and Mr. John Bogley.

What Today Means

"Aries."

If April 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 12 noon to 2:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

If you meet an individual socially who, in an endeavor to be funny, indulges in sarcastic or "catty" comments, you will show good judgment by ignoring them. It will be advisable to keep your eye on the time on this date, so unexpected delays will not cause lateness in keeping engagements. Try to avoid keeping anyone waiting, so as to eliminate irritation.

If April 4 is your birthday, you should not let your love for the arts interfere with the practical things required of you in your daily life.

The child born on April 4, as it grows up, will prove versatile, and will possess a good ear for music and a passion for dancing. It, however, will be very handy with its hands, and should be given the facilities for using them. If the child is a boy, manual training will prove beneficial. Girls should be taught sewing, pastry-making and cooking.

The woman born on April 4 should exercise caution about expressing too much sentimentality.

Doctors Upset Time-Honored Health Theory

Drinking Water at Meals Doesn't Hurt Digestion, They Say.

New York, April 3, (Spl.).—The theory that drinking water while eating upsets the digestion was only one of the many time-honored health rules discredited by Dr. Hiram E. Essex of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., in a paper prepared by him with Dr. Julia F. Herrick and Dr. F. C. Mann, also of the clinic, and read at the convention of American Societies for Experimental Biology. Dr. Essex asserted experiments conducted at the clinic had proved drinking water while eating actually speeds up the digestive process to a noticeable extent.

Nor is the belief that the blood is diverted from the brain to the digestive tract while digestion is going on true, according to the latest scientific experiments.

"The digestive organs do require an increased supply of blood while digestion is going on," Dr. Essex said. "But the blood is supplied by an extra exertion of the heart, not by a diversion of part of the blood supply from the brain. This accounts for attacks of heart disease which sometimes follow heavy meals."

Dr. William H. Howell said recent developments in organic chemistry offered some hope something might be learned of the secret of life.

"Should that ever occur," he said, "we may anticipate on that basis a new science of physiology will be built up enabling us to deal experimentally with life, in ways now beyond the powers of the imagination to picture."

Dates for Literary Contest Announced

Staunton, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Dates have been announced for events in the Augusta County literary contest.

Preliminaries will be held here and at Mount Sidney April 9, followed by finals here on April 16. On April 17 county winners will enter District G competition in Bridgewater; winners there will go to the State finals in Charlottesville soon after the 27th.

Spring and Spring Lamb Make Their Advent Together; Here's Some Information About Inexpensive But Excellent Cuts.

By Susan Mills.

SPRING MAY BRING the little lambs that gambol on the green, but it is more important that spring allows them to gambol onto the dinner table.

Owing to modern methods of production and distribution, lamb is available all the year around, but this particular meat is still associated with spring and is appetizing for spring dinners.

Many housekeepers confine their buying of lamb cuts to chops and leg roasts, and pass up other delicious cuts. These cuts are inexpensive and if properly prepared are equal to the more expensive in quality and flavor.

Ask your butcher to acquaint you with these cuts, then try the following recipes:

Roast Shoulder of Lamb.

4 to 5 pounds of lamb cut from shoulders.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
Flour.
Potatoes.

Wipe lamb with damp cloth, rub with salt, pepper and flour and place on rack in roasting pan. Sear in hot oven (500 degrees F.) for the first 15 minutes and then reduce temperature to 300 degrees F. or, slow oven. Cover bottom of pan with 1 cup boiling water and steam roast for 2 hours. Place peeled potatoes around meat when it has cooked 30 minutes. Baste potatoes when basting meat. Serves 5 to 6.

Stuffed Breast of Lamb.

Wipe breast of lamb with damp cloth and make a pocket by making an opening near the bone. Fill with seasoned bread dressing and sew or skewer the opening. Rub in salt and pepper allowing ¾ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper to the pound of meat. Dredge with flour and sear in hot oven (500 degrees F.). Lay strips of bacon over the meat and continue baking in a covered roaster in a slow oven (300 degrees F.).

Lamb Smothered in Tomatoes.

1½ lbs. lamb shoulder steaks
1 cup bread crumbs
1 small onion
1 teaspoon salt
Poultry seasoning
1 can tomatoes or 1 quart fresh tomatoes cut in slices
1 teaspoon pepper

Wipe meat with a damp cloth and spread with a layer of bread crumbs mixed with minced onion and other seasonings. Roll and tie into shape. Place in a casserole or other dish with a close fitting cover. Pour the tomatoes over the meat and cook very slowly in the oven or on top of the stove for 3 to 4 hours. If the tomatoes do not cover the meat add a little boiling water.

Braised Lamb Neck Chops.

1 lb. neck chops of lamb
½ cup tomato
½ slice onion
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon bacon drippings
½ cup water
1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper

Brown the meat on both sides, add the vegetables, seasoning and make a gravy with the hot water and a little fat. Place the meat in a covered baking dish, cover tightly and bake slowly until the meat is very tender. Serves 4.

The Dragon Murder Case

By S. S. Van Dine

"But, Vance," he protested, "we can't let things remain as they are. We must do something immediately. * * * Must you go? And where are you going?"

Vance ignored the first question. "I am going shopping," he returned, moving toward the door.

Markham sprang to his feet resentfully.

"Shopping! What, in the name of heaven, are you going shopping for, at such a time?"

"For a suit of clothes, old dear," he replied.

Vance returned to the apartment a little before 4 o'clock that afternoon. He was carrying a moderate-sized package, neatly wrapped in heavy brown paper, which he placed on the center table. He seemed unduly serious and scarcely nodded to me.

A few moments later Markham entered the library.

"Well, here I am," he announced irritably, without a word of greeting. "I answered your curt summons, though God knows why."

"Really, y' know," Vance returned placatingly, "I didn't mean to be curt. * * *"

"Well, did you have any success in getting your suit?" Markham asked sarcastically, glancing round the room.

Vance nodded.

"Oh, yes, but I didn't bring all of the new integuments with me—only the shoes and gloves. They're in the car now."

Markham waited without speaking; there was something in Vance's manner and tone which belied the trivial signification of his words.

"The truth is, Markham," Vance went on, "I think—that is, I hope—I have found a plausible explanation for the horrors of the last two days."

"In a new sartorial outfit?" Markham asked with irony.

Vance inclined his head soberly.

Chapter XXIII.

The Dragon's Tracks.

When we arrived at the Stamm residence Detective Burke admitted us. As we came into the front hall, Heath, who had evidently just entered through the side door, hurried forward.

"They've taken Greef's body away," he reported. "And I've kept the boys busy on the usual routine stuff. But there's no new information for you. We're up against a blank wall, if you ask me."

Vance looked at him significantly. "Nothing else on your mind, Sergeant?"

Heath nodded with a slow grin.

"Sure thing. I was waiting for you to ask me. * * * We found the wheelbarrow."

"Stout fella!"

"It was in that clump of trees alongside the East road, about fifty feet this side of the potholes. When I got back Hennessey told me about it, and I thought I would take a look around. You know that open sandy space between the Clove and the Bird Refuge—well, I went over that ground pretty thoroughly, knowing what you had in mind, and I found a narrow wheel track and a lot of depressions that might easily be footprints. So I guess you were right, sir."

Markham glanced severely from Heath to Vance.

"Right about what?" he asked, with annoyance.

"One of the details connected with Greeff's death," Vance answered. "But wait till I check on the things that led up to the wheelbarrow episode. * * *"

At this moment Leland, with Bernice Stamm at his side, came through the portieres of the drawing room into the front hall. He appeared somewhat embarrassed.

Disturbed by Noise.

"Miss Stamm and I could not stand the noise," he explained; "so we left the others in the library and came to the drawing room. It was too sultry outdoors—the house is more bearable."

Vance appeared to dismiss the other's comments as unimportant.

"Is everybody in the library now?" he asked.

"Every one but Stamm. He has spent most of the afternoon setting up a windlass on the other side of the pool. He intends to get that fallen rock out today. He asked me to help him, but it was too hot. And, anyway, I was not in the mood for that sort of thing."

"Where is Stamm now?" Vance asked.

"He has gone down the road, I believe, to get a couple of men to operate the windlass for him."

Bernice Stamm moved toward the front stairs.

"I think I'll go to my room and lie down for a while," she said, with a curious catch in her voice.

Leland's troubled eyes followed her as she disappeared slowly up the stairs. Then he turned back to Vance.

"Can I be of any assistance?" he asked. "I probably should have helped Stamm with the rock, but the fact is there were several matters I wanted to talk over with Miss Stamm. She is taking this whole thing far more tragically than she will admit even to herself. She is really at the breaking point; and I felt that I ought to be with her as much as possible."

"Quite so," Vance studied the man penetratingly.

"Has anything else happened here today that would tend to upset Miss Stamm?"

Mother Becomes Hysterical.

Leland hesitated. Then he said: "Her mother sent for me shortly after lunch. She had seen Stamm go down to the pool, and she implored me rather hysterically to bring him back to the house. She was somewhat incoherent in her explanation of why she wanted him here. All I could get out of her was that there was some danger lurking in the pool for him—the dragon superstition coming back into her mind, no doubt—and after I had a talk with Mrs. Schwarz, I telephoned Doctor Holliday. He is upstairs with her now."

Vance kept his eyes on Leland, and did not speak immediately. At length he said:

Leland looked up and met Vance's gaze.

We drove down the East road as far as the gate, picked up Snitkin and then backed up to the tree-lined cement walk, where Vance halted. When we got out of the car Vance reached into the tonneau and took out the handbag that he had directed Currie to put there. Then he led the way down the walk to the low area of ground at the northeast corner of the pool. To our left, near the filter, was a large circular wooden windlass, well anchored in the ground, and beside it lay a coil of heavy sisal rope. But Stamm, evidently, had not yet returned.

Walks Toward Pool.

Vance started across the 15 feet or so which divided us from the rim of the pool.

"Please stay where you are just a minute," he requested. "I have a bit of an experiment to make."

He crossed the grass to the muddy bank. From where I stood I could see Vance open the bag before him. He reached into it and took out something. Then he bent over almost to the edge of the water and leaned forward on one hand. After a moment he drew back, and again I saw him reach into the bag. Once more he bent forward and threw all his weight on his extended hands.

Then I heard the bag snap shut. Vance knelt on it for several moments, as if inspecting the edge of the pool. Finally he stood up and placed the bag to one side. He reached in his pocket, took out a cigarette and deliberately lighted it. Slowly he turned, looked at us hesitantly and beckoned to us to join him.

When we reached him he pointed to the flat surface on the muddy ground, near the water, and asked in a strained voice:

"What do you see?"

We bent over the small section of ground he had indicated, and there, in the mud, were outlined two familiar demarcations. One was like the imprint of a great scaly hoof, and the other resembled the impression of a three-taloned claw.

Take Your Fat Off Your Mind!

Are you one of those people who are forever worrying because "everything they eat goes to fat?

Then stop worrying right now—because here's a simple, easy, pleasant way to correct that condition, bring your weight down to normal. Without dieting, without exercises, without drastic purging!

For many years physicians the world over have known and prescribed a famous corrective for abnormal obesity. It has been taken with amazingly beneficial results by thousands of women who were "too fat."

This corrective is the chief active ingredient of Marmola, prepared in tablet form by one of the leading medical laboratories of America. You simply take a tablet of Marmola 4 times a day and start at once to get rid of burdensome fat.

It sounds miraculous, but thousands of women who have taken Marmola, as directed, might well tell you this story if they had the chance.

Since 1907, more than 20,000,000 packages of Marmola have been purchased—and what greater recommendation can be had?

Today—buy a package of Marmola, and start at once. You will soon experience Marmola's benefits. When you have gone far enough, stop taking Marmola. And you will bless the day when you first learned about this wonderful reducing agent!

Marmola is on sale by all dealers—from Coast to Coast.

Housewives All Over the Country Write to Woman Food Section Head for Advice

Charlotte Chatfield Feels Mrs. Average Wife Wants Too Much Technical Information, That General Idea of Food Values Is Enough.

An opportunity to be intellectually honest—that is what Government work means to chemists, scientists and research workers. One woman employe has found it an inspiration to carry on research for an unbiased and unbossed employer—the United States Government.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS of gastronomy, when mother cooked three hearty meals a day without bothering her head over proteins and carbohydrates, are gone.

The modern housewife wants to know the food values of the dishes she serves, according to Miss Charlotte Chatfield, in charge of the food composition section of the Bureau of Home Economics, Department of Agriculture.

Miss Chatfield bases her conclusion on the large number of letters she receives from women who want to know the constituents of food. Every day brings a batch of inquiries, ranging from the amount of starch in baked bananas to the phosphorus content of boiled potatoes.

Dieters Curious.

Many of those letters are from women who are trying to shed a few pounds. Some are from sick persons who have been told by their physicians their diet is deficient in certain things.

"Dietitians, doctors, and nurses form the bulk of our permanent mailing list," said Miss Chatfield yesterday. "Whenever a new pamphlet is issued on food values, we send it to them."

Most of the pamphlets are written by the head of the food composition section at her desk in the South building of the Department of Agriculture. She keeps in touch with food chemists and laboratories all over the world, compiling her booklets from the results of their analyses and research. Her job is to make this information available to the public.

Many women clutter their minds with unnecessary detail concerning food values, believes Miss Chatfield.

"While it is necessary for doctors, nurses, and dietitians to know the exact amount of the different constituents, I don't thing that Mrs. Average Housewife needs to know the precise content of the things she serves. As long as she serves a variety and as long as she knows which foods are heavy in certain constituents and light in others, she will be able to give her family healthful meals. A general idea of food values should be sufficient."

Debunk Manufacturers' Claims.

Whenever a new food or diet fad sweeps the country, Miss Chatfield's mail increases by leaps and bounds.

"We never give out information on any certain brand of goods, but we are often able to debunk manufacturers' fantastic claims by sending out straightforward information concerning food values in general," explained the head of the food composition section.

She recalled the propaganda put out by wheat interests several years ago in which everyone was urged to eat more wheat.

"That was bad advice for a great many people, especially the farmers in the Dakotas," said Miss Chatfield. "Most of them think macaroni is a vegetable and so they have meals consisting of meat, bread, potatoes, and macaroni. Imagine telling those people to eat more wheat! Well, of course I couldn't tell them not to eat it but when anyone wrote in wanting to know if wheat would do all the wonderful things the propaganda promised, I just sent them booklets showing food values and let them draw their own conclusions."

One of the happiest features of working for the Government is the fact that one can be intellectually honest, declared Miss Chatfield. She has known many instances where food chemists working for private concerns had to mold their analyses to the form that would best serve their employers' interests.

Really Accurate Information.

"But the Government is a free agent. In my work here I am simply asked to give out information as accurate as it is within my power to make it."

Before she entered Government work in 1918, Charlotte Chatfield attended the University of Minnesota. When she came to Washington she was placed in the respiration calorimeter laboratory of the Home Economics Office. At the end of three years in the laboratory she thought she had reached a standstill.

"And so I left Government work and went back to Minnesota—my home was in Minneapolis — and taught for a year at the State University," said the present head of the food composition section.

Teaching did not appeal to her, however. After one year of it she began doing commercial food analyses for milling companies in Minneapolis and Chicago.

"But two years of that sort of thing was enough," she smiled. The light from a tall window gave the appearance of a halo to the gray hair framing her youthful, animated face. Her dark eyes shone as she said, "And, so, I came back to Washington."

That was in 1924. Charlotte Chatfield has been working on food composition for the Bureau of Home Economics ever since.

Balloons.

I may laugh through life and capture
Gay balloons that are to me
Bits of fragile manufacture
Floating where the winds are free.

As they soar too far—too high?

Jewel Display Shows Copies Of Old Pieces

Original Models Worn by Queen Victoria and Empress Eugenie.

Every piece of jewelry shown at the art exhibition now being held at the Shoreham Hotel tells a story of vanity, romance or loyalty. The jewelry is copied from original models in the Kensington Museum, in London, and is made by hand in English industrial schools to give work to the unemployed. It is chiefly of the Victoria and Eugenie patterns.

Romance entered the jewelry design in the form of the ivy leaf, symbolizing that Victoria, although a queen, was a clinging vine where her husband was concerned. All the designs are round in shape, to symbolize the rule of democracy and the round table of King Arthur.

Some lovely bracelets of spun glass, similar to those so popular a few seasons ago, were first made by the Hindus and worn by Victoria to popularize them and thereby give the Indian subjects work. The bracelets made a tinkling sound. A poet once wrote of the music of Victoria's bracelets.

While Victoria was critical of all vanity, she was never seen without a ring on her finger. She had different ones for morning, afternoon and evening, all elaborate and beautiful. Her favorite necklace was of pearl, with links of gold in between each pearl.

Equally as influential as Victoria in setting the styles for the jewelry of the past century was the Empress Eugenie. The design for her jewelry was oval in shape—for Eugenie was a French queen and did not believe in Britain's democracy. The oval jewelry represented a table, of which Eugenie was the head. The gold ornaments were grape vines, reminders that Eugenie's fortune came from making wine.

A lovely Eugenie bracelet was made of seed pearls, strung together on fine wire, and linked in such a fashion as to form a cuff.

Many of her bracelets were made of the leaves of grape vines set with diamonds. Eugenie's bracelets slipped over her hands, but Victoria's usually had a spring clasp, both to show her love of freedom and because in her later years her hands were fat, and bracelets were not easily slipped over them.

Victoria wore long dangling earrings, the design usually being a large pearl surrounded by smaller jewels.

The inside story on foods is well known to Miss Charlotte Chatfield, head of the food composition section of the Bureau of Standards. She gathers data from all over the world which is then issued in Government pamphlets.

Girl Pioneer in Radio Field Selects Friends Over Ether

SELECTING one's friends over the ether is often more satisfactory than choosing them by sight. That is what Miss Elizabeth Zandonini, only woman official of the Bureau of Standards' radio section, has found in her numerous adventures on the air.

"Character and personality can be determined by radio," added the snappy, brown-eyed Miss Zandonini, girl pioneer in the amateur radio field. "In other words, telegraphy is more accurate than mental telepathy. And when I meet new friends, I'd just as soon have our introductions by ear."

Well Equipped Private Station.

Owning one of the best equipped private stations in the United States, Miss Zandonini still finds long-distance communications her favorite hobby.

With her 300-watt transmitter, the feminine radio expert has penetrated some of the most remote corners of the globe. Her clear CQ has been excitedly picked up by amateurs from New Zealand to Canada.

In her telegraphic meandering, Miss Zandonini, unlike most amateur operators, is not registered to the limited "Q" signals. Speaking four foreign languages, she has delighted many a Frenchman, Italian, German or Spaniard by conversing fluently by code in his own tongue.

She said:

"My ether friends across the sea, turned out in many instances to be very real friends, when I traveled abroad in 1926. Not only was I entertained at their homes, but I was allowed to use their stations to send frequent messages home to my family."

How did she become interested in radio in the first place? Miss Zandonini puts it this way:

"When radio was in its infancy and I was in pigtails, we became acquainted, after high school hours. My grandfather, an accomplished Italian telegraphist, put the first bee in my bonnet. He helped me with code and theory. He urged me to attend the National Radio Institute.

"I did this, taking my radio course at night, and studying on it every hour I could spare. I acquired my commercial license in 1917, a year before I finished high school."

Starts Government Work.

In 1921, she joined a staff of 19 other workers in the Bureau of Standards radio section. With the subject still in the experimental stage, each worker had to find his own place in the section.

Gradually appropriations were cut, and many of the original staff eliminated. Miss Zandonini, because of her efficiency, was one of the 14 members retained. She is the only woman on the staff.

After a hard day's work at the office, Miss Zandonini welcomes an evening's relaxation. What does she do? What does any radio enthusiast do in his leisure time?

Peace Worker Has Ceremonial Burial at Sea

Funeral of Mrs. Sirvent Takes Place Off Argentine-Bound Ship.

That international relationships may be pleasantly promoted by women who work in a quiet way has been borne out by the noteworthy services of Mrs. Elizabeth H. Sirvent, former agricultural assistant at the Argentine Embassy, who recently died after a lingering illness in a hospital in Orange, N. J.

That such work is also greatly appreciated has been proved by the fact that Mrs. Sirvent's ashes were buried at sea with a special ceremony on Easter Sunday noon, conducted under the direction of Commander Leporace, Naval Attache of the Argentine Legation.

The flag on the ship, bound for Buenos Aires, was lowered to halfmast, the funeral service was read and the ashes of Mrs. Sirvent, reposing in a box, bearing elaborate wreathes from both the Argentine Naval Department and the Argentine Embassy, was lowered into the sea.

Born in Grand Rapids, Mich., Mrs. Sirvent came to Washington many years ago to take a civil service position. Later she became secretary to Dr. Jose Sirvent, first Chancellor fo the Argentine Embassy, whom she afterwards married.

After the death of Dr. Sirvent, she was appointed agricultural assistant of the Argentine Legation, and because of her wide experience in United States Government work, coupled with her desire to promote friendly relations between this country and Argentina, she was peculiarly prepared for her more than 25 years of service in the interest of both countries.

American Attitude on Magic Deplored by Woman Houdini

Miss Janska Montez, woman magician, sat in the lobby of the Hamilton Hotel yesterday, fixed her blue eyes upon her interviewer, and talked about magic.

"Do you know anything about magic?" she asked the reporter, who confessed that, alas! she did not. Miss Montez was tolerant.

"That is quite all right." She said. "Only very intellectual people can understand magic.

"And Americans don't appreciate its fine points the way English people do. Why, in England the whole royal family is crazy about magic. The King, the Prince of Wales, everybody. They have a magic theater in London where members of the nobility go, just to keep up on the latest developments in magic.

"What is the Prince of Wales' preference in magic? Why, he just likes everything that is good.

"You see the ordinary person isn't interested in magic. He doesn't want to tax his mind to understand it. But to the intellectual person it is both a mental stimulant and a hobby."

Asked if she and her husband ever pull rabbits out of hats, Miss Montez replied scornfully.

"Oh, no indeed. That is old, passe magic. That is just the trouble with most magic. You see, it began back in India centuries ago, and magicians think they have to preserve the Oriental tradition. They use the same kind of tricks and costumes used in India years ago.

"I love working with magic," she said. "I think it is fascinating because the more you watch the less you see."

He Will Be Missed.

GRACIOUS, distinguished, silver-haired and kindly-eyed Otto H. Kahn will be missed in many places by many people.

Nowhere will it seem stranger not to have him present than at performances in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

* * * *

Box 14—the Kahn box—placed in the most strategic yet not conspicuous spot in the glittering diamond horseshoe, always was the focal point for audiences; almost as much so as the huge stage itself even when the glistening long reaches of the gold brocade curtains were draped back and a prima donna sweeping into a big aria.

"Let's see who's in the Kahn box"—was a traditional, almost a classic, remark to be heard at any performance at the "Met."

* * * *

Particularly was this true of first nights. On those nights for many seasons, society editors could predict with certainty that Box 14 would have not only Herr Otto and his equally gracious wife, but also a prominent lady from Washington, as well as one or more of the Kahn young folks.

* * * *

The prominent lady from Washington was Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, who is widely recognized in the Capital as one of the most charming personalities and authoritative connoisseurs of musical art and artists in the United States.

* * * *

It became a happy custom to find Mrs. Townsend with Mr. and Mrs. Kahn at the season's opening—as well as many other times—and Gatti-Cazassa, Scotti and other artists were wont to come to box 14 to exchange greetings between acts.

Box 14 is empty now.

O! Migahd Item.

Well, as we understand it from H. Russell Bishop, a brilliant young Washington lawyer who was in New York on business last week, about 1,500 people give "plenty" to get into the broadcasting station at 8:45 p. m. every Tuesday to see the Fire Chief do his stuff from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

* * * *

As members of the audience file in, they find cambric "fire chief" hats on the chairs. Distinguished or not, they all put the hats on. Then comes the twinkling Ed Wynn, script in hand, to begin the priceless byplay joshing with Graham McNamee that never gets over the air, but makes it almost prohibitive to secure tickets long in advance for one of these broadcasts.

* * * *

A chap seated next to the lucky Mr. Bishop from Washington—who had been given his ticket by a friend, a complimentary, one at that—said he'd been trying since early fall to get to one of these broadcastings.

* * * *

Ed Wynn, though reaching his major audience through the microphone, changes his coat and hat in just the same way at these broadcasts as he does in stage performances. And, of course, the audience that has paid to see him at the station, gets all the benefit of these comic clothes as well as his "ad-libbing" and facial grimaces at McNamee.

* * * *

Mr. Bishop says it is one of the real sights nobody should miss when in New York over a Tuesday—that is, provided of course, you can get a ticket.

Hats and Muskrats.

NOW IS THE open season for hats—mostly straw. Just the same we heard "Ding," the famous cartoonist, telling some newspaper gals the other day that if it's felt hats we want, we United Statesers could raise our own if the folks in the Northern States would just give muskrats the chance to make a come-back.

Famous Artists Prophesy On Type of Future Girl

Christy, Barclay and McMein Don't See Eye to Eye; One Says She'll Be the Same, One Is Hopeful, One Is Worried.

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP).—What will the beautiful girls of the future be like?

Three famous artists discarded their brushes and palettes tonight to voice their own answers to that puzzling question.

"There won't be a bit of difference," said Howard Chandler Christy, a veteran of 40-odd years in the studio, as he bit on a blackened briar pipe.

"The girls of 25 years ago wore corsets and bustles and got themselves all out of shape. When they took them off they were the same as they are now, as they will be in the future.

"When I was 16 I was in a life class and sketched nude women. Without their clothes they look just the same to me 45 years later."

Thinks NRA Girl Ideal.

Christy thinks that of all the women he knows Elise Ford, who posed for his symbolic NRA picture, most closely approximates his ideal girl of the future.

She has youth, a fresh, healthful type of beauty, enjoys sports and out-of-door activity. She is tomboy in type, has a wholesome outlook on life, plays baseball.

Neysa McMein spoke as an artist and as a woman. She selected Katharine Hepburn as her girl of the future. Miss Hepburn, she thinks, is beautiful in an aloof, detached manner.

"It's appalling," Miss McMein said, suddenly very serious, "how much all women look alike, how much they standardize their looks today. If it keeps up for 25 more years the result will be shocking.

"As a woman I know that no woman ever will see herself as she actually is. I guess that's the reason for the standardization. They want to look like somebody else.

"I am fearful for the future, unless women get some sense about themselves. But, at that, a quarter of a century hence women probably will have perfectly beautiful bodies. That will be because of better care.

"The most attractive women I have known have been individuals, and in spite of this trend to copy other people's looks have kept themselves out of the mold."

Angular Faces Approved.

Miss Hepburn was selected because of her angular face, not soft like those of women of bygone days, and her slender, graceful body.

McClelland Barclay, dapper and sophisticated, believes women are "moving toward a more efficient physical body," and that in 25 years this trend will be more pronounced.

He selected Babs Shanton, a Park avenue type of girl with dignified charm of manner, as the girl of today most typical of the coming trend. She is a model.

"By more efficient body," he said, "I mean except where motherhood is concerned. And I'm not sure but they will be just as efficient in that way."

As he voiced his thoughts, he pictured on his easel a worldly-wise young matron of the type for which he is widely known.

"Recently we reached a point where women had no busts or hips. Now they haven't hips, but do have busts and shoulders, with shoulders really important.

"The change in the hips is outside the bony structure, not inside. There's just less flesh. Athletics, I would say, is the key factor in this change.

"Muscular development of women undoubtedly will continue. As to the face, there will be a more definite chin line. Ladies weren't supposed to have chins in the past. Now they have to go out and fight like men.

"There will be a tendency toward less makeup, more naturalness. Women now let their eyebrows grow. They have less of that scared, startled look."

Press Women Hear Darrow Discuss NRA

He Likens Administration Program to Exploring Expedition.

Talking informally at the weekly luncheon of the Woman's National Press Club yesterday, Clarence Darrow likened the Administration program to an exploring expedition.

"Our Administration is charting a new land," he asserted, "and facing the same dangers encountered by all who explore unknown regions. What its outcome will be, it is too early to determine. But I am convinced, whatever its fate, back of it there is idealism (which doesn't always mean success) and love and devotion that deserves success."

Mr. Darrow also spoke of his experience with reporters and of the importance of newspapers.

"I have had many friends who were reporters," he said, "but not so many newspapers that were friends. On the whole, however, I have no complaint against newspapers. I have always tried to stay out of them, which is probably the best way to get in, but I don't blame them for being against me sometimes. They have to be with the mob; they are of it."

After Mr. Darrow had finished his speech he answered a number of questions regarding his present position.

In answer to the query as to why he had come out of retirement to take his position in connection with the NRA, he replied: "I wanted to see my name in the newspapers again. Besides, I received a letter from a man in Arkansas the other day, saying he had a bet as to whether or not I was dead. I began to wonder myself, particularly when I could look all around me and see so many dead men walking around all the time."

Asked just what duties his position entailed, he replied gravely:

"I am here primarily to examine the NRA code, to see if it is fair to the little fellow or in favor of monopolies, and to make any suggestions I may have for its improvement."

Mrs. Darrow, wife of the speaker, and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, and Mrs. Effiegene Wingo, formerly a Representative from Arkansas, were also guests at the luncheon.

German Women Surplus Is Gradually Decreasing

Berlin, April 3 (AP).—Statistics came to the aid of Chancellor Hitler's matrimonial program today, showing the surplus of women in Germany is gradually increasing.

In 1919 there were 1,101 women to every 1,000 males in the country, as a result of some 2,000,000 killed in the World War. Census figures for 1933 revealed the ratio has dropped to 1,059 women to every 1,000 men.

Thus many frauleins figured their chances of marriage, from one angle at any rate, are improving year by year—instead of decreasing.

Stork Doesn't Bother About Unemployment

More babies were born during the years 1929-32 to families who suffered severe loss of income than to those whose income did not diminish, a survey by the Milbank Memorial fund has revealed.

The survey also showed a higher birth rate among families of the unemployed than among those employed.

The study was made among 8,000 families of wage earners in New York, Syracuse, Baltimore, Birmingham, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Cleveland. The average income of the families was found to have been $1,700 in 1929 and $900 in 1932.

Families without any employed workers in 1932 were found to have produced 48 per cent more babies than those having one or more full-time workers.

A special survey in four cities showed families living on relief funds had a birth rate 53 per cent higher than those not on relief.

Kiwanis Club Plans Dance Thursday Night

The Kiwanis Club will hold a dinner dance at the Mayflower Hotel at 7 p. m. Thursday, honoring Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Carruthers, of Charlottesville, Va. Mr. Carruthers is governor of the Capital District, Kiwanis International.

Officers of the Washington Club are Mr. Lewis T. Breuninger, president; Mr. Harold N. Marsh and Mr. Bynum E. Hinton, vice presidents, and Mr. Edward D. Shaw, secretary.

Invitations have been issued to the officers and members of the Alexandria, Arlington County, Prince Georges County and other nearby clubs. More than 200 are expected to attend.

Ickes May Ask Condemnation In Slum War

Threatens Speculators in 5 Cities With Eminent Domain Suits.

Irritated by real estate speculation holding up progress of the Federal slum clearance and housing program, Secretary of the Interior Ickes yesterday declared he is about to resort to eminent domain proceedings to carry the program forward.

Branding such speculation "a major problem" in the antislum drive, Secretary Ickes declared the Public Works Emergency Housing Corporation probably would invoke the Government's land condemnation right in at least five cities. It was indicated that Washington was not included in the group.

Program Advances Here.

The Washington model housing program is going ahead quietly, it was determined, with very little speculative trouble arising. Profiteering, housing officials said, "is not nearly so bad as it was" here.

Early efforts of operators to extract undue profits in Washington were forestalled several months ago by Secretary Ickes when he threatened to withdraw the program and devote the money to another city. At present, it was said, the purchasing of land for the two housing projects here was said to be proceeding satisfactorily.

Secretary Ickes indicated the housing corporation is nearly ready to proceed with construction in several localities. The general program has been slowed down considerably by a number of difficulties, Ickes said, including objections of Comptroller McCarl to the form of the corporation and its contemplated operations.

Allotment Rescinded.

In addition, the program was impeded by cities which proved unable to live up to their promises regarding sites and ability to cooperate. A total of $23,000,000 allotted by the Public Works Administration to limited-dividend housing corporations was rescinded because of inability of the concerns to meet contractural requirements.

Ickes admitted the general slowness of the program, but said when the real estate problems were solved more speed could be expected. Valuation of land to be used, he said, is one of the most difficult matters facing housing corporation officials.

Although Comptroller General McCarl objected to incorporation of the housing group, Ickes said the charter of the organization had not been amended. He indicated that major differences raised by McCarl had been settled sufficiently to allow operation of the housing corporation.

Johnson Asked To Write NRA Note to Farley

Postal Employe Executives Cite Pay Raise Plea to Industries.

A request that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson send a letter to Postmaster General Farley similar to the letter he has sent to indusutries asking them to report how many workers they are able to employ with a 10 per cent pay increase was delivered to the NRA administrator yesterday.

The request came from Gilbert E. Hyatt, legislative representative of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, and William M. Collins, president of the Railway Mail Association.

"It is true that the Postoffice Department is not under a code," the letter to Johnson said. "However, the policies of the department so conspicuously clash with those of the President and your Administration as to furnish obvious argument and advantage to those who are opposing or evading your efforts for industrial recovery."

The letter pointed out that uunder a recent "furlough" order Farley had reduced the compensation of the entire field personnel and had thrown out of employment 26,000 substitute workers. It pointed out that Farley had requested these substitutes be made elegible for public relief.

Forest Fires Rage In West Virginia

47 Reported in Night, and Fighters Are Mobilized.

Charleston, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.). Prevalence of forest fires in the mountain districts of the State today prompted the State Conservation Department to mobilize CCC workers and forest rangers to battle them.

H. W. Shawhan, State conservation director, said many fires had occurred during the last few days, 47 being reported as raging overnight in the Wyoming, Pocahontas and Kanawha districts.

All CCC workers and the entire staff of 135 State forest rangers were ordered out to the fire fronts. Shawhan appealed for public cooperation in preventing timber fires, which he said had delayed urgent work on the three new State parks in Hardy, Pocahontas and Fayette Counties.

Tobacco Farmers Told To File Claims of Loss

Maryland tobacco farmers who suffered losses to their crop stored in State warehouses in Baltimore in the flood of last August must file claims for damages by April 16, according to F. Brooke Matthews, chief State tobacco inspector.

A sum of $25,000 was appropriated for this purpose by the Legislature. This amount was not sufficient to cover the total losses, estimated at $50,000, so farmers will be reimbursed for about 50 per cent of their crop.

Center Asks For 155 Aids As Staff Is Cut

Schools Told to Drop 16 Clerks Hired Under CWA.

Community Office Head Protests Removal of 22 Workers.

Following termination of the CWA, District school officials yesterday were ordered to drop 16 clerks in schools and 22 workers in the Community Center department, employed when the relief program went into effect.

Notified of the curtailment of Community Center workers, Mrs. E. K. Peeples, department head, promptly wrote to Commissioner Allen asking not only that these 22 workers be reinstated but that she be given 155 additional employes from the Emergency Works Administration.

"It is essential that these additional workers be given to carry on the extensive outdoor and indoor programs planned throughout the city for the spring and summer," Mrs. Peeples told The Post. "With curtailment of working hours throughout the NRA, it is vastly important that workers be supplied with recreation to occupy their added leisure time. In preparation for this, we have spent the winter planning a systematic program for the benefit of every community in the city. Reduction of our force will mean that the program can not be carried out as planned."

Has 22 Trained for Work.

Mrs. Peeples said that when the CWA began operating she was given 35 workers, but that 13 of these were able to find other employment and dropped out. The 22 who remained, she said, now have been fully trained in community center work, and if the 155 additional are granted they can be trained in time for the spring and summer program.

Other relief activities in the school system, such as nursery schools, adult education and the free-lunch program, apparently are escaping curtailment. Employes in the nursery schools and adult classes, it is explained, were enlisted under a separate relief allotment, and school officials are hopeful that they will be continued in service.

Although the 40 workers in the central school lunch kitchen were employed under the CWA, it is believed that they automatically will be continued. Mrs. Katherine McF. Ansley, director of the lunch program, pointed out that the service would be hampered greatly, and that children would go hungry if the workers were compelled to go through the procedure of dismissal and reporting again to relief headquarters. Mrs. Ansley said she had received no indication that any of her workers would be dropped.

Kramer Hopes to Save Clerks.

Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools, is taking up the individual cases of the 16 clerks dropped with the hope that he can have them reinstated under the EWA. The clerks were employed in the offices of schools where, heretofore, principals and teachers were forced to take on considerable clerical work, besides their regular duties, because of the reduction in the clerical force when the economy program went into effect last year.

Work for approximately 8,000 persons in need of relief is expected to be assigned tomorrow by Capt. Howard F. Clark, executive officer of the District Emergency Works program. The District yesterday dismissed about 8,000 workers held over from the CWA projects. All who were on direct relief rolls will be reemployed tomorrow.

A review of all approved projects was made yesterday by the work planning and job assigning committee of the EWA. Many projects must be held up because of the determination to approve only projects where the greatest amount of money will be used for wages, with material costs held to a minimum.

Hearing Set on Court Plans.

Sea Chanteys Ring as All Manner of Craft Is Made Ready.

"'Oh, I'll fix up my boat,
"'And set sail again,'
"Cried Barnacle Bill, the Sailor!"

Singing chanteys of the sea, of waves spanking tramp ships, of dolphins leaping, of the mythical Flying Dutchman, and whatnot, boat owners, expert carpenters, painters and laborers yesterday busied themselves preparing for the coming boating season.

They greeted spring on the water by resounding whacks of the paint brush on the hulls of pleasure and fishing craft, the scraping of planes, the grind of braces and bits, and the buzz of blow torches.

Washington's recreational and merchant marine, vessels large and small, operating under as many kinds of power as there are ships, are being groomed as carefully for the season upon the water as so many debutantes for a ball.

Up in the masts, the rigging of sailing vessels is being overhauled, so the ships may veer and tack with the wind. Smokestacks of small steamers, and cabins and prows of power craft are being put into shape.

Yesterday, the waterfront resembled an Old World port, hot under the blazing sun. Men perspired, and many of them worked without shirts. Fixing boats, according to old salts down Water street way, is a labor of love.

Occasionally, a round-eyed roustabout peered from a port hole.

"Ole Debbil Sea come get us all," he burbled, "Ole Debbil Sea, Marsa. Good, Old Debbil Sea!"

At the yacht clubs—the Colombian, the Washington and the Capital—things hummed, alive with human bees.

Catboats lay at anchor on a becalmed, muddy river. Occasionally came a splash, then a lithe figure, against the sunscape, climbing to a pier or a boat, moored in the harbor.

Fish markets were busy, as usual. Soon additional crafts will be arriving from the deeper waters of Chesapeake Bay with large catches.

Harbor police reported little trouble so far with youngsters swimming. They pointed to the fact that the water was still cold, if the air was not.

"Come tomorrow," they shouted. "Maybe we'll get a lot of beauties. By the way, have you heard the latest about Barnacle Bill? It's a dandy——!"

50,000 Rolled Eggs At White House

All-Time Record Is Set for Attendance.

Official Secret Service figures yesterday put Easter Monday attendance at the White House egg-rolling at 50,000—the largest on record, the Associated Press reported.

During the day 84 children became separated from their elders and were reported lost to the police. The emergency tent treated 25 persons for illness.

Figures for recent years show an attendance of 47,000 in 1933, 12,000 in 1932, 30,800 in 1931 and 48,400 in 1930.

Lost articles recovered by police included 12 caps, 1 sweater, a belt, 2 pocketbooks and a knife.

Lake Erie Yachtsmen Turn to Sailing Vessels

Sandusky, Ohio (U.P.).—Navigation of sail boats on Lake Erie is expected to reach a new modern peak during 1934.

Revival of the ancient art of sailing began during the depression years when the lake boat owners found the use of power boats somewhat expensive. The return of the trim canvas-topped craft reminded old-timers here of the days before the age of speed had extended to the waters of the inland lakes.

'Obey Impulse,' Jacob's Rule 84 Years, Lands Him in Jail

Loss of Baltimore Rings "An Unfortunate Incident."

New York, April 3 (U.P.).—Throughout the checkered 84 years of a remarkably active life, Jacob Svoboda, for good or evil, has obeyed each momentary impulse, and today, at police headquarters, he contemplated with no little regret the end to which some of these impulses have brought him.

Jacob, a little testy and waspish in his ripe old age, was held for the Baltimore police in the matter of a couple of missing diamond rings, valued at $1,150. He explained the charge as "just another unfortunate incident." Some previous unfortunate incidents led him to serve five prison terms.

In between his sojourns in some of the Nation's best bastilles, however, Jacob told the police he had obeyed the most humane of impulses. He hauled the daughter of a millionaire from the waters of San Francisco Bay, to earn undying gratitude and a gold watch studded with diamonds from Leland Stanford.

He helped save the United States from almost certain defeat by Spain, in '98, he averred, and a grateful republic has honored him since with a pension.

He made daring rescues in a tenement house fire in Chicago.

As for the Baltimore rings, it had been merely unfortunate that after they were entrusted to him by a friend, he should have lost them down a drain.

U. S. Pay Roll Of 611,752 Near '20 Peak

Steady Growth Boosts Civilian Personnel of Government.

79,913 Workers Listed Here and 531,839 on Field Jobs.

Steady growth in recent months has advanced Government personnel beyond the 600,000 mark for the first time since the postwar days of 1920, the Civil Service Commission reported yesterday.

Of the 611,752 employes in executive departments and independent establishments on February 28, the Washington total stood at 79,913, including 71,623 permanent workers and 8,290 ranked as temporary. There were 531,839 on field rolls, of whom 474,767 held permanent jobs and the remainder temporary.

The total had fallen below 600,000 ever since July 31, 1920, when the civilian war machine in process of dismantlement stood at 691,116.

Officials explained the February figure was about 20,000 higher than January, principally because of additions to the Agriculture and Interior field forces handling emergency conservation work, which previously were unlisted. Those groups alone numbered 17,000.

Outstanding additions to permanent lists here included, Navy, 430; Agriculture, 282, Public Works, 165; NRA, 175; Home Owners Loan Corporation, 308. Under temporary the gains were fewer—War, 113, and Veterans' Administration, 193.

Permanent expansion in the field included, Treasury, 159; War, 145; Navy, 491; Interior, 139; Agriculture, 346; Tennessee Valley Authority, 1,085; Home Owners Loan Corporation, 1,276, and Public Works, 91.

A gradual reduction in force by the Postoffice Department brought a net decrease for that unit of 636. The 279,058 CCC enrollment did not figure in the 611,752 compilation. The statistics also excluded District government, legislative and judicial employes.

The executive pay roll in February was $79,712,047.

Ruling Clears Constable Row

Former Attorney General Held Officials Named for Four Years.

Referring to a ruling of former Attorney Gen. Thomas H. Robinson, Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday set aside a charge that several county constables were serving after expiration of their terms.

The charges were made by Deputy Sheriff Thomas Garrison, who declared that constables' terms were only two years. The raising, several years ago, of the county commissioners' terms from two to four years did not automatically raise the constables' terms, he said.

The ruling, produced by State's Attorney Alan Bowie, was in the form of a letter to M. Hampton Magruder, counsel for the commissioners, dated March 19, 1927. It read:

"It is clear from Section 4 of the fewer elections amendment that the terms of office of constables have been changed so that the constables appointed following the election of 1923 were appointed for the three-year terms, and those appointed following the election of 1926 should be appointed for four-year terms, unless otherwise changed by law."

Here is a glimpse of the still-cloaked statue of William Jennings Bryan at Constitution avenue and Twenty-sixth street northwest, with—of all things—a brewery in the background. Bryan was an ardent dry. President Roosevelt and Ambassador Josephus Daniels will participate in dedication exercises May 3.

May 3 Is Set For Dedication Of Bryan Statue

The statue erected to the memory of William Jennings Bryan, thrice Democratic candidate for President and Secretary of State during the early part of the Wilson Administration, will be dedicated May 3, Manton M. Wyvell, acting president of the Bryan Memorial Association, announced yesterday.

An address by President Roosevelt, accepting the edifice on behalf of the Nation, will feature the ceremonies. The Chief Executive's speech will be preceded by an address by Josephus Daniels, Ambassador to Mexico and president of the association, who will tender the memorial to the country. Ambassador Daniels will return from his post to take part in the dedication.

The memorial is situated in the triangle bounded by Constitution avenue, Riverside drive and Twenty-sixth street. It is a bronze statue of heroic proportions depicting Mr. Bryan in speaking pose. Gutzon Borglum is the designer and builder of the statue.

Motorist Blames Brother, Is Freed

Reckless Driving Charge Then Dropped.

Mistaken identity brought dismissal of reckless driving charges against Joseph DiBlasi in Police Court yesterday.

DiBlasi was identified by police as the driver of an automobile which disregarded detour signals and sped through fire lines in the 900 block of Ninth street northwest last week. DiBlasi is at first alleged to have admitted driving the car, but later changed his testimony and said his brother, Nick DiBlasi, was the driver.

Judge Gus A. Schuldt dismissed charges on the basis of conflicting evidence. Policeman C. R. Burnett, meanwhile, will face a Police Trial Board to explain his action in firing at the speeding DiBlasi machine.

Lily Pons Here Next Tuesday

Metropolitan Coloratura in Constitution Hall Recital Offered.

Lily Pons, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will be heard in a song recital next Tuesday at 4:40 p. m., in Constitution Hall, under local management of Mrs. Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey. This will be the prima donna's only recital appearance in Washington this season.

Mme. Pons has placed six operatic selections on her program—the mad scene from "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Una voce poco fa," from "The Barber of Seville;" "O luce di quest' anima," from Donizetti's "Linda di Chamounix;" the gavotte from Massenet's "Manon;" "Pourquoi," from Delibes "Lakme," and "La fauvette avec ses petita," from Gretry's "Zemire et Azor."

The program also will contain songs by Bishop, Lotti, Rimski-Korsakov, Grechaninov, Grieg, Saint-Saens, La Forge and Densmore. The accompanist will be Giuseppe Bamboschek, one of the Metropolitan conductors. Dominico Iascone, flautist of the National Symphony, will play obligatti for the mad scene, Sir Henry Bishop's "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark" and Densmore's "The Voice and the Flute."

Sixth Park Talk Set.

Emergency conservation work in the State parks will be the subject of the sixth of a series of National Park Service broadcasts at 10 p. m. Saturday. Speakers will be Conrad L. Wirth, assistant director, and Herbert Evison, State park supervisor.

Cherry Fete's Full Program Is Announced

Sunrise Japanese Rites Will Open Festival on April 19.

Crowning of Queen and Historic Parade Are Other Features.

A sunrise Japanese ceremonial will inaugurate Washington's first annual Cherry Blossom Festival in Potomac Park April 19, after which a procession will wind around the Tidal Basin in tribute to the blooming trees.

The festival committee yesterday announced the complete program of events for the fete.

At 2 p. m. on the opening day of the festival, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, will be crowned Queen of the Cherry Blossoms. Fifteen minutes later a horse show will get under way on the Old Polo Grounds, near the Tidal Basin. The show will end at 5 p. m. A ceremony will precede the illumination of the cherry blossoms at 8 p. m.

Air Circus Planned.

Next morning, on April 20, an air circus, stunted by Army and Navy fliers, will occupy the spotlight.

The grand parade of floats depicting the history of the United States will get under way at 2:15 p. m. A troop of Colonial riders, clad in the costumes of America, under British rule, is expected to lead the procession. Following will be floats on which various stages of the progress of the Nation will be interpreted in color and pageantry.

Next will come the floats of various embassies, led by that of Japan. Each float will portray the national ideals and spirit of the country it represents. The line of march is down Pennsylvania avenue and eventually into Potomac Park, where the cherry blossoms are blooming.

Fireworks Display.

Illumination of the trees will take place at 8 p. m. and at 9 p. m. a firewroks display will take place at the Washington Monument.

Special sightseeing trips and tours of local stores will occupy the thousands of anticipated guests the last morning of the festival, April 21.

"The Mikado" will be staged in the Sylvan Theater of Potomac Park at 2 p. m., while at the same time a regatta will be under way in the Tidal Basin.

At 7:45 p. m. another parade of floats will proceed around the Basin, followed by a third illumination of the trees.

The festival, if properly advertised, will be worth more than $1,000,000 to Washington, Curtis Hodges, executive director of the Greater National Capital Committee, told the Washington Advertising Club at its weekly luncheon meeting yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel.

Tidewater Canners Name New Officers

Tappahannock, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—State Senator R. O. Norris, John Hinton, and Henry P. Taylor, of Walkerton, member of the code committee of the National Canners Association, spoke at a meeting of the Tidwater Canners' Association here.

Officers elected by the association included John Hinton, Reedville, president; G. B. Garner, Lewisetta, vice president; and J. A. Harris, Kinsale, secretary.

Amateur Star Victorious, 7 and 5

PINEHURST, N. C., April 3 (AP).—George T. Dunlap, slender National amateur champion, shattered all professional and amateur records for the Pinehurst No. 2 course today by turning in a spectatcular 63, eight shots under par, to win his second round match in the annual North and South amateur.

DUNLAP.

Putting with a wizardy seldom seen, Dunlap went out in 31, and back in 32, in eliminating Donald Parson, of Youngstown, Ohio, 7 and 5. He holed all his putts, requiring only 17 for the 18 greens, as he sank his approach on the fifth for a birdie 3.

Dunlap's performance stole the show today, but Halbert J. Blue, of Pittsuburgh, and August F. Kammer, jr., of Princeton, put on a battle that required four extra holes before the Pittsburgh veteran triumphed. Kammer, runner-up to Dunlap in the qualifying round, three-putted a couple of greens toward the end of the long struggle to lose his chance.

Another match went an extra hole before Jack Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., eliminated Arthur M. Wood, Princeton golf captain, one up.

Davidson Is Beaten.

R. A. Lester, of Orange, N. J., won over Judd Brumley, of Greenville, Tenn., by a one-up margin, while Arthur Lynch, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., scored a 3 and 2 victory over R. P. Davidson, of Washington.

Carding a 70, one under par, for the entire round, Dick Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn., had an easy task in trouncing T. Arthur Johnson, of New Rochelle, N. Y., 5 and 4.

Dick Wilson, of Southern Pines, likewise had an easy victory, eliminating Bayard Mitchell, of Philadelphia, 6 and 5.

Augusta and Valley Leagues May Unite

Harrisonburg, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Baseball fans of the Shenandoah Valley, where baseball still is the National pastime, both in and out of season, are beginning to wonder about the prospects of seeing league baseball during the summer months.

Everything is in the air regarding the status of the two leading circuits of last season—the Shenandoah Valley and the Augusta County Leagues.

The Valley League reorganized two months ago with Harrisonburg, New Market and Woodstock eager to again enter the loop. Bridgewater was doubtful then, and remains so now. The Augusta County circuit has not reorganized for the season and there are reports that Weyers Cave and Fort Defiance do not contemplate placing clubs in the field.

There has been a suggestion of combining the two leagues, with Harrisonburg, New Market, Staunton and Waynesboro in the new circuit. This would be a rather compact loop. From Waynesboro comes the suggestion of a league composed of that town, Staunton, Harrisonburg and Charlottesville. There is some objection because of the long over-the-mountain trip to the University City.

McMillan Test For Shikat On Mat

Bout May Be Show-Stealer on Tomorrow's Auditorium Program.

ALTHOUGH the Rudy Dusek-Jim Browning fracas is listed as the headliner of tomorrow night's groan and grunt entertainment at the Auditorium—and nobody doubts that it will be a worthwhile bout — nevertheless there is another match listed which promises to give the addicts in the stands plenty of thrills. It is a brevity between Jim McMillan and Herr Richard (Dick, to you) Shikat.

McMillan, the former great Chicago University football lineman, who made many of the holes through which Red Grange plunged to fame, has brought his tricks of the grid trade onto the mat with him. He has met all comers and tossed most of them, but will find that he is up against the real thing when he tackles Shikat. The latter lost his world title claims to Jim Londos some years back, but he was such a tough customer that the gorgeous Greek immediately scatched his name off of his "opponent list" and has never given the German a chance to win back his lost crown.

Shikat Must Do Best.

Invariably in his matches here, Shikat has taken on foes whom he outclassed, but, in order to give the fans a run for their money, has carefully refrained from doing his best. And, it might be added that Shikat is so good that he looks very bad when trying to lower himself into the class of these opponents. But Dick, who showed how good he was when he met and tossed Ray Steele here two seasons ago, will not have to be under wraps against McMillan, which means that quite a match is in prospect.

Comment regarding the Dusek-Browning embroglio would seem to be superfluous. The latter has been declared world champ in 14 States and, unquestionably, is good. Rudy craves a few title claims, and sees in this meeting a chance to get 14 in one fell swoop, so he is reported to be in serious training. He had the better of the go with Browning two weeks ago until declared the loser on what he claims was a quick count.

Other bouts on the card pit Hans Steinke against Willie Davis, the young and rough Virginia giant; Marshall Blackstock against Dr. Len Hall, and Sid Nabors against Scotty McDougall.

Handley's Trackmen Prep for Four Meets

Winchester, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—With six letter men from the 1933 squad out for this season's team, Coach Otis Sargent today began rounding his Handley High School trackmen into shape preparatory to entering four interscholastic meets this season.

Thrift, 440-yard; Crisman, shot put; Carpenter, discus; Miller, Flickinger and Johnson are the lettermen out for the squad. Others trying out include Linesburg, Fauver, Frye, Ramey, Gibbons, Stimmel, DeWitt and Clevenger. The Handley schedule includes:

May 4 and 5—State Interscholastic track meet at Charlottesville; 19, Cumberland Valley Athletic League meet, here. Participating schools, Waynesboro, Pa.; Hagerstown, Md.; Cumberland, Md.; Martinsburg, W. Va., and Handley.

Moorefield Plans May Track Games

Newspapers Will Sponsor Meet for School Teams.

Moorefield, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Newspapers here and at Petersburg will sponsor a track meet some time in May for the high schools of the South Branch Valley.

The meet will be a continuation of the annual St. John's Invitation, which has been held for the past three years at Petersburg, and the cup, emblematic of team championship, which was placed in competition two years ago by the St. John's College, will be in competition again this year.

At a recent meeting, plans for holding the fourth meet were laid and a preliminary survey made. It was voted to carry out about the same program as in the past, with the following events listed: Tennis match, 100-yard dash, shot put, high jump, 220-yard dash, discus throw, broad jump, 440-yard dash, javelin throw, pole vault, 50-yard dash for girls, baseball throw for girls and 440-yard sprint relay.

Moorefield High will be the defending champion. It has won two legs on the cup, and a win this year would give the Jackets permanent possession of the trophy. In addition, a cup will be presented to the runners-up, together with various other awards.

Runyan First, Nets $6,483 in Winter

Horton Smith Is Second With $5,231 Total.

Chicago, April 3 (AP).—Blazing over the continental trail with a par shelling game that captured six undisputed championships, tied for another and shattered three tournament scoring records, diminutive Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., beat out Horton Smith, of Chicago, in the struggle for gold in the winter golf tour, which closed yesterday.

Runyan, runner-up to Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., last year in money winnings, won $6,483 since the winter tour opened last November with the National Capital City open one of his triumphs. Smith, who capped one of golf's finest comebacks with his victory in the Augusta Masters show, won $5,231. Willie Macfarlane, the Tuckahoe, N. Y., Scot, finished third with winnings of $3,493. Other big money winners and their earnings were Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, $3,039; Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, British open champion, $2,787; Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee, $2,656; Wood, who recovered his form late in the tour, $2,555, and the veteran MacDonald Smith, big winner in the Californias raid, $2,406.

Navy Opens Season With Cornell Today

Annapolis, Md., April 3 (Spl.).—Ideal spring weather of the last two days enabled Navy baseball tossers to put in some good licks of practice in preparation for the season's inaugural against Cornell tomorrow afternoon, although the squad is much below early season form as weather elements have caused a number of setbacks.

Coach Frank Fenno said tonight that Sexton, mainstay of the plebe pitching staff last season, probably would draw the assignment against the Big Red team, while Chipman, who worked with the varsity squad last year, would be ready for relief work.

A. A. U. Ring Title Event Draws 157

Three-Day Tourney Starts Tonight in St. Louis.

St Louis, April 3 (AP).—The lure of glory and a gold plated medal tonight had drawn entries of 157 amateur boxers to the National Senior A. A. U. boxing tournament.

Beginning tomorrow night the cream of the Nation's Simon-pure glove throwers will start the long three-day battle for National championship. The chances for a medal and expenses, is the only direct recompense for the winners.

However, many a professional success learned the first lessons of his calling in the annual amateur tournament. Battling Battalino, featherweight; Fidel La Barba, flyweight, and Tommy Paul, also a featherweight, are former champions who started careers with amateur victories.

The tournament will be a battle without outstanding favorites as not a single defending champion is entered. Otis Thomas, Chicago Negro, won his right to participate, however, by defeating Max Marek, last year's light-heavyweight king.

New York Race Dates Are Assigned

163-Day Season Is on April 21 at Jamaica; Betting Not Yet Legalized.

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP).—Confident that the New York State Legislature will furnish relief by legalizing betting, the stewards of the Jockey Club today approved one of the most ambitious schedules in the history of the thoroughbred sport in the Empire State.

Starting April 21 at Jamaica, the ponies will run for 163 days, 12 more than last year, at the five courses. The season will close, as usual, at Empire City October 27.

Of the legislation expected to be voted on at Albany this week, one of the bills calls for legalizing oral betting, another provides for the control of the sport by a strong commission in cooperation with the Jockey Club while a third would give the State pari-mutuel betting in 1936.

Admission Fee Lowered.

At the same time the heads of the five racing associations agreed to give "Gus Fan" a break by lowering the general admission from $2.75 to $2.50. The latter will include the Federal and State taxes. The State tax will be 15 per cent if the bill sponsored by Senator John J. Dunnigan passes the Legislature.

The schedule:

Jamaica—April 21-May 15, October 1-13.

Belmont Park—May 16-June 9, September 3-15.

Aqueduct—June 11-July 4, September 17-29.

Empire City—July 5-28, October 15-27.

Saratoga—July 30-September 1.

Manlius Coach Dies.

Manlius, N. Y., April 3 (AP).—Capt. William E. Girton, 39, head football coach, commandant of Verbeck Hall and executive officer of the Manlius School, a boys' military institution, died today of heart disease. He was born at Nanticoke, Pa., February 7, 1895.

Beaver Dam In Surprise Golf Win

Congressional Is Victor; Woodmont and Manor in Draw Match.

CONGRESSIONAL Country Club's women got off to a flying start in the opening round of the District first team Navy's course by making a clean sweep of points in the battle with Washington Golf and Country Club. The eight Congressional players, paced by Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, captain, and Helen Dettweiler, collaborated successfully in scoring 12 points.

Beaver Dam's team sprang a surprise by scoring 7 points to 5 for Columbia, 1932-33 champions, although the latter team is greatly handicapped by the absence of Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, District champion; Mrs. J. A. Marr, and Mrs. Norman Frost.

Chevy Chase made a good start by defeating Indian Spring, 10 to 2. Kenwood, 1933 runner-up, with its team intact, won from Army and Navy, 8½ to 3½, while Woodmont and Manor ended their match in a draw, each scoring 6 points.

Good Medal Scores.

The Army and Navy course was unusually heavy, and a bit soggy in spots, and, considering the fact that there was little roll on the ball, a number of the women golfers reported particularly good medal scores. Mrs. Dowdall provided the best shooting with a 43—43—86, while her 19-year-old partner, Helen Dettweiler, runner-up for the District championship, did her bit with an 89. She and Miss Dettweiler won from Mrs. Hugh T. Nicholson, and Mrs. Douglas Tschiffelly, of Washington. Mrs. Nicholson, former District titleholder, playing her first competitive golf in several years, showed a flash of her old self by scoring a 93.

Miss Susan Hacker starred for Chevy Chase, being below the 90 mark when she and Mrs. Hume Wrong won from Mrs. Perry Hoover and Mrs. Don Scott, of Indian Spring, 2 points to 1. Miss Elizabeth Houghton, who will defend her title in The Washington Post match play with handicap tournament this month at Chevy Chase, shot in the low 90's. She and Miss Louise Sloytor won 3 points. Mrs. H. R. Quinter and Mrs. J. W. Bellar, Columbia's ranking twosome, won 3 from Mrs. Peggy Jones and Mrs. A. E. Fischer, of Beaver Dam.

Southern Md. Nines Plan 8-Club League

La Plata, Md., April 3 (Spl.).—Plans for the formation of a baseball league this season in Southern Maryland have practically been completed. Eight teams were represented at a recent meeting, including La Plata, Marbury, Bryantown, Bel Alton, Hughesville, Merchantsville and two from Indianhead. Rudolf Carrico was elected chairman.

Purcellville Issues Baseball Challenge

Leesburg, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—The Loudoun Light & Power Co. Baseball Team, of Purcellville, reorganized for the coming season, is seeking games prior to making up its schedule. It expects to start play the last Sunday in April.

Cochrane Rejoins His Detroit Team

Lakeland, Fla., April 3 (AP).—Mickey Cochrane has "fully recovered" from an appendicitis scare and has gone back to his job of manager-catcher of the Detroit Tigers.

His physician, Dr. G. C. Freeman, said:

"Physical laboratory and X-ray tests in Cochrane's case were all negative and he apparently is all right now. The cause of the pains in his side is undetermined, but he seems fully recovered."

Carnera Off On Saturday For Maine

Will Cut Wood for Four Weeks and Return to New Jersey.

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP).—The second successive day of spring warmth and sunshine, in addition to thawing out Manhattan's winter-worn joints, today brought forth new facts and figures on the June 14 duel of Primo Carnera and Max Baer.

Carnera, the huge champion, will attempt to catch up with his playboy challenger in the matter of training by heading into the Maine woods Saturday for four weeks of shadow boxing with an ax and some of the tall trees that abound in New England.

His exact destination is uncertain.

Due in April.

Baer, fresh from a winter of dusk-to-dawn flights through cabarets of the land and a joust with Hollywood, has been at Lake Tahoe, Calif., for two weeks.

The Californian is due here the middle of April and will complete his conditioning at Atlantic City, where he trained last summer before knocking out Max Schmeling.

Carnera visited at Dr. Bier's camp at Pompton Lakes, N. J., today and decided to work there on his return from Maine.

"It is my lucky camp," he said. "I train there last summer. Poof, I knock out Sharkey and am champion of the world."

Meanwhile the exact position in the picture of Jack Dempsey was still uncertain pending the arrival here next week of the old champion. The bout will be promoted entirely by Madison Square Garden. But in the contracts is a 7½ per cent share of the receipts allotted to Dempsey.

To Confer Soon.

To what extent the Garden will utilize this semipartnership with Dempsey, who stepped in here last summer as a rival concern and put on the Baer-Schmeling bout, depends apparently on the conference Jack will hold with Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Garden. It is considered certain that if the king belter of them all takes no more prominent part, he will at least supervise activities in Baer's camp at Atlantic City.

Revising estimates of probable gate receipts on the basis of reservations already arriving, Jimmy Johnston, Garden's boxing manager, decided today the match would draw closer to $700,000 than the $350,000 hazarded previously. However, Johnston "guessed" $100,000 as the probable gate for the Carnera-Loughran match in Miami, which drew less than $40,000.

Nats Humble Naval Base Nine, 14-2

Russell Strikes Out 7 Pensacolans, Prim Five, in Rout.

Dugas Nets Four Hits; Team Off Today on Trip Northward.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor, The Post.)

BILOXI, Miss., April 3.—The returns are still coming in, but at a late hour this evening a makeshift team of Nats was conceded to have beaten some strictly air-going aviators from the United States Naval Base at Pensacola, Fla., by a score of at least 14 to 2 in a baseball game played before a roaring mob of 122 fans from the Biloxi shrimp works.

The sailors landed here in three big seaplanes and the situation got out of hand immediately, what with Jack Russell holding them to one very scratchy hit in six innings and Ray Prim permitting 'em two hits in the last three innings.

The game proved nothing except that the Nats wasted a perfectly good afternoon when the fish were biting in the Gulf.

Strike Out 12 Men.

Among other things, Russell struck out seven aviators in six innings, and Prim whiffed five, setting three men down on strikes in the seventh, when the fliers were taking nothing but fliers at his crazy dipping curves.

Gus Dugas, the squat outfielder who is batting his way into the hearts of Manager Cronin and Clark Griffith, was taking things seriously this afternoon and banged out four clean hits in his first four times at bat, capping his efforts with a lusty home run into the right field corner in the fifth inning.

Previous to Dugas' homer, Dave Harris had hogged the batting spotlight with his slambang triple in the first inning, but Dave faded from the picture later in the game with two strikeouts against a couple of pitchers named Owens and Ingram.

The game was the Nats' last competitive effort before they shake the red clay of Biloxi from their feet, if possible, tomorrow afternoon and depart on the barnstorming trip home which carries them into the sacred precincts of Memphis on Thursday and Friday and into the sanctum of the Chicago Cubs on Saturday and Sunday.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

Jack Russell made his quota for the season with two clean hits today . . . He once hit a triple off Lefty Grove . . . And is still bragging about it . . . They showed the pictures of the Nats-Giants World Series at the local theater last night . . . Very appropriately omitting the first, second, fourth and fifth games . . . Weston Byng, the former Central High and Annapolis football and baseball star, played center field for the Pensacola Aviators today . . . And Pete Schreider, the former Maryland pitcher, was on the Aviators' bench. Joe Cronin saw the game from the bench in mufti . . . The first time this spring that he hasn't been in uniform . . . Moe Berg played first base . . . like a great catcher.

Mountain Elk Staves Off Stone Martin's Late Bid to Win at Bowie Before 7,000

Ogle's Horse Triumphant By a Neck

Winner Takes Command at Clubhouse Turn; Redress Third.

Nose In Captures First; Two Jockeys Escape Serious Injury.

By Walter Haight.

NAMED for some two-fisted drinking, the Bottoms Up Trophy, yesterday at Bowie provided some two-fisted riding and a thrill-producing finish which saw Mountain Elk take a neck decision from Stone Martin. The race, for the better class of claimers over a mile and 70-yard course, was the feature of the program and drew a field of five starters, all Florida campaigners. Redress finished third.

With the opening-day flare a thing of the past, Bowie settled back to normalcy and drew a crowd in the neighborhood of 7,000. For the second day, conditions were ideal for the sport. G. W. Ogle, whose Miney Myerson won the Inaugural Handicap, made it two features in a row with Mountain Elk.

Takes Command at Turn.

It was Stone Martin, under the guidance of Silvo Coucci, which went to the front at the start but Tipton, on Mountain Elk, soon had his mount well up on the leader. After the swing around the clubhouse turn, Mountain Elk took command, and straightening out on the backstretch, drew out to a two-length advantage. In the meanwhile, Redress, far back, moved up. However, Stone Martin and Coucci had something left. They slid gradually toward Mountain Elk and both boys went to the whip furiously. It was either's race at the sixteenth pole, but Coucci failed to get the necessary 2 feet out of Stone Martin that would have meant victory. Redress, with Albert Robertson batting away, closed with a futile rush.

Officials served notice that the saliva test is not necessarily confined to two winners a day when they ordered Singing Heart, which finished third in the first race, brought to the specimen stall. The other tested for stimulants were Salisbury, winner of the third, and Mr. Hyde, winner of the sixth.

Nose In Triumphs.

Although the crowd had to wait 12½ minutes in the opening race while a field of seven claimers surged all over the stall gate, it was rewarded with a thrilling stretch duel between Nose In and Meloy. Meloy had the lead for most of the route, but Earl Porter brought Nose In up rounding the turn and it was a neck-and-neck battle right down to the wire. Singing Heart, the favorite, wound up third after being fairly prominent all the way. Nose In, the property of the Home Stable, rewarded with a $17.80 mutuel.

The second race smacked of tragedy for a few seconds after Starter Milton gave a field of 11 juveniles the starting signal. Johnny Gilbert, astride the well-played Teeter Totter, was tossed among the flying hoofs, but managed to wiggle out after suffering a deep gash in his lower lip. He walked back to the jocks' room unaided but cancelled his remaining mounts for the day. The riderless Teeter Totter led the field down the stretch, but the payoff was on the Greentree Stable's filly, Basquine. Silvo Coucci scored his third victory of the meeting on the juvenile, a favorite. Ever True was second by a length and a half, with a fast-closing Aperitif third. The winner was a $6.40 pay-off.

Lowry Tossed Off.

Another jockey escaped injury in a mishap in the third race. Jimmy Lowry, who fainted in the jockey's room on opening day, was tossed off Jim Brown soon after the start. He fell clear, however, and like Gilbert, walked back. L. F. Ogle's Salisbury made it two straight for the favorite players by taking a length decision from Happy Anne with Landsman third and seven lengths away. Salisbury and Happy Anne alternated in leading, but Bobby Jones managed to pull the grey horse away in the stretch run. The winner was a $4.30 betting proposition.

Jockey Whitey Abel, who also is Trainer Abel, rode Black Target to victory in the fourth race to beat the odds-on favorite, Quickly. The race was strictly between the two with Quickly tailing off when the stretch run came. Abel was looking back during the last quarter and began pulling up at the edge of the mutuel board. Parity was third. Black Target paid $8.30.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The need for communications faster than the swiftest man or beast has spurred inventive minds for centuries and it has resulted in some strange devices. The American Indians of prehistoric times signaled one to another by means of smoke puffs. The Romans built towers a short distance apart on which men stood and shouted news of importance along the line. Signals have also been conveyed by cannon shot, by sunlight reflected in mirrors—even today this latter method is in use. The African natives communicate over long distances in a short time by beating code messages on drums.

Today the human voice can encircle the globe with the speed of electricty by telephone and radio. Teletype systems enable one to write a message in one part of the country on a typewriter keyboard, and have the same message reproduced at the same time a thousand miles away. Much of the news in this newspaper was transmitted in this way.

Napoleon, however, established one of the first permanent communications networks ever built. Signals in his system were transmitted by visual telegraph, a form of semaphore signaling. This system was invented by Claude Chappe in the late eighteenth century. Words and letters were indicated by the position of the arms on top of the signal towers, and in favorable weather messages could be sent between towers located more than 10 miles apart.

Hurler Fans 19 As Virginia U. Wins, 14-0

Rogers Gives Up Four Hits in Blanking Vermont; Burnell Routed.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Virginia's baseball nine took kindly to the offerings of Sandy Burnell, Green and Gold hurler, to register a 14-to-0 victory over Vermont here today in the first sporting event of Easter week at the University. Seven hits in the first three frames yielded the Cavaliers an even dozen runs.

Swartz went to the mound for the Green Mountain team in the fourth inning and held the Virginians scoreless except in the seventh.

While the Cavaliers were slapping Burnell's offerings to all corners of the lot, Olin Rogers, Orange and Blue southpaw, bore down on the Vermonters, fanning a total of 19 and yielding but 4 scattered hits. Only one hit went out of the infield.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NOSE IN $17.80, $10.10, $5.40; MELOY, $10.80, $5.70; SINGING HEART, $2.70.

NOSE IN kept within striking distance of the leaders in the early stages and, while gaining steadily on the outside, responded strongly when approaching the home stretch, and under vigorous pressure, outfinished MELOY after a hard drive. MELOY moved into command shortly after the start, was kept in the firmer footing for the entire journey, and then held on with determination when challenged. SINGING HEART secured racing room on the inside after the beginning. Was placed to severe punishment after the first 3 furlongs, but was unable to menace the first two. GRANNY'S TRADE was under strong pressure from the start, but could not better her position when stoutly ridden. RUSTIC CUBA, BURLEIGH and PENDING were unable to enter into contention at any stage. SINGING HEART acted fractionally at the barrier and was placed on the outside for the start.

SECOND RACE—Four furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:13. Off at 3:16½. Winner, Greentree Stable's br. f. (2), by Bud Terner—Basquase. Trained by McLilly. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:49.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BASQUINE, $6.40 $4.40, $3.20; EVER TRUE, $6, $4.50; APERITIF, $5.20.

*Field.

BASQUINE, rushed hard to reach a forward position directly after the start. Took command under strong urging at the stretch turn, responded willingly to strong pressure nearing the finish and held EVER TRUE safe. Latter had nice speed from the beginning but was unable to match strides with the winner when the real issue came. APERITIF, squeezed back midway of the turn when the riderless TEETER TOTTER moved to the front. Was taken to the outside thereafter and finished in resolute fashion. BACK FENCE raced forwardly while in tight quarters. He was going strongly at the end. COLOR BEARER lost ground at the stretch turn. He closed with good courage during the stretch drive. STROLLING MISS was unable to threaten at any stage. QUERY forced a swift early pace, but was used up chasing EVER TRUE and he tired in the closing furlong. TEETER TOTTER lost his rider with the start. Circled his field to take the lead and crowded some of the starters on the turn.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward foaled in Maryland. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:52½. Winner, L. E. Ogle's br. g. (6), by Greystel—Kitty Mount. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SALISBURY, $4.30 $2.50, $2.70; HAPPY ANNE, $2.70, $3; LANDSMAN $5.10.

SALISBURY assumed a brief early lead when rushed hard. Saved much ground entering the home stretch, came again after being displaced and was moving clear nearing the finish when keen under stout urging. HAPPY ANNE, restrained off the pace for the first 3 furlongs, swung around to the outside with a rush to gain command, but weakened badly during the stretch drive. She should show improvement off this race. LANDSMAN was strongly ridden from the start and was best of the others. LIGHT BREEZE worked her way up gradually, but was unable to threaten the leaders. CANTERET was wedged in between the leaders at the turn out of the back stretch, suffered from much interference, and could not recover after being taken up. IN CLOVER showed speed for the first half mile. JIM BROWN fell shortly after the start.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:25. Winner, Mrs. A. J. Abel's b. c. (4), by Black Watch—Taketee. Trained by A. J. Abel. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time 0:23 2-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:15.

FRONT	107	2	3	5°	5°	5°	5°°	Jones	18.30
ROZELL	105	3	6	6	6	6	6	Dabson	80.90

Two-Dollar mutuels paid—BLACK TARGET, $8.30, $3.10 $2.50; QUICKLY, $2.50, $2.20; PARITY, $3.

BLACK TARGET, following in close pursuit of QUICKLY, saved ground on the inside of the pacemaker to take command when reaching the turn, and then drew out into an easy lead in the final furlong. He finished with speed in reserve. QUICKLY hustled to the front at once, was steered into the better footing but was unable to keep pace with the winner when forced to a drive. PARITY was strongly handled while on the outside of the leaders, but could not make up ground when hard ridden. GENERAL LEJUNE was never able to better his position. FRONT and ROZELL were outrun throughout.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. The Bottoms Up Trophy. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:53. Off at 4:54½. Winner, G. W. Ogel's b. or br. (6), by Apprehension—Bantry Pass. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second $100; third $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15 3-5, 1:43 3-5, 1:49 1-5.

MOMO	109	5	5	5	5	4°	4°½	Stout	5.50
MANNERISM	111	1	2	4°	4°	5	5	Porter	9.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOUNTAIN ELK $7.30 $3.30, $2.50; STONE MARTIN, $2.50, $2.30; REDRESS, $2.80.

MOUNTAIN ELK, rated in near attendance of STONE MARTIN, assumed command when straightened into the back stretch, saved ground thereafter and under severe punishment, outstayed STONE MARTIN. Latter, taken under steadying restraint when displaced, responded willingly in the final five-sixteenths and was gradually wearing the winner down. REDRESS, far out of contention for the first 6 furlongs, swung to the outside and was gaining steadily approaching the finish. MOMO was always far back and could not threaten at any stge. MANNERISM began tiring after the first 6 furlongs.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:25. Off at 5:33. Winner, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's ch. g. (3), by John P. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MR. HYDE, $7.50, $3.60, $2.70; JACK LOW, $2.80 $2.30; THE TRIUMVIR $2.70.

MR. HYDE, on the outside from the beginning, challenged strongly when leaving the back stretch, shook off THOUGHTLESS to take command and had enough left to withstand JACK LOW. Latter, prominent from the start, moved up menacingly midway of the turn and was gaining slowly approaching the finish. THE TRIUMVIR, slower than usual to get settled in his stride, worked his way up on the outside after being in close quaters early, and came with a splendid rush. ROUND TABLE, forced wide from the beginning, reached contention with a rush but he had nothing left when the real issue came. CURLING was outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:00. Off at 6:02½. Winner, Mrs. R. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLO BAR, $11.30, $7 $3.80; PENCADER, $8.40, $5; BUB McFARLAND, $2.80.

POLO BAR, cleverly rated back of the pace, moved around on the outside entering the stretch and, standing a long drive gamely, was going away at the end. PENCADER, hung on well after forcing the pace. BUB McFARLAND badly outrun the first half mile, slipped through on the inside in the stretch and would have been second in another stride. JUST FUN weakened after going with the early pace. BANDERLOG had no excuse. GARLIC broke slowly and was always outrun.

Vince Dundee Defends Title Against Diamond

Newark, N. J., April 3 (U.P.).—Vince Dundee, world middleweight champion, and Challenger Al Diamond, of Paterson, N. J., were signed today for a title fight at the Paterson Armory on May 3. They agreed to 15 rounds.

This will be the first modern championship decision boxing bout ever held in New Jersey. Other championship fights have been held in the State, but decisions were not permitted.

Stocks Capture Moderate Gain In Brisk Sales

Metals Resume Popularity; Trading Volume Totals 1,348,455 Shares.

New York, April 3 (AP).—Stocks improved today after an irresolute start, tilting upward in the late dealings when the market became fairly brisk. Metals were again active.

The share market did most of its advancing in the last half hour. The cheerful comment on American smelting's earnings which stockholders heard from Chairman Brownell at their annual meeting, his forecast of higher copper prices as a result of the impending code, and the dividend resumption by Cerro de Pasco were developments of interest to the metal group which rose fractions to around 3 points net.

Rails and oils were firm. Traders in the latter presumably had an eye on tomorrow's Washington conference on a solution for the excess gasoline stocks problem; also the motoring season is opening up, which means larger sales. Carriers may have been impressed by an estimate at a 10.7 per cent increase in second-quarter freight shipments over a year ago.

Specialists Hold Attention.

A handful of specialty issues, including Texas Pacific Coal & Oil and Pittsburgh Screw & Bolt, received considerable attention, doubtless of the professional variety.

Motors were somewhat diffident until the late rally. Du Pont, Case, Bohn Aluminum, Procter & Gamble, Baldwin preferred, Safeway Stores and Schenley improved a point or two. Outlet Co. jumped 9 points in response to an extra dividend, but only a nominal amount of stock was involved. Market transactions totaled 1,348,455 shares.

In the past few days markets have heard some optimistic comment on business and banking conditions; there has been no spectacular response, but Wall street has seemed willing to be more cheerful. In addition, the financial community still has hopes that the Fletcher-Rayburn bill will be modified, current intimations being that such changes will be of a minor nature.

Status of Steel.

American Metal Market, commenting on steel affairs, says the industry is now "in the unfortunate position that while its costs are already up, it will have to supply material equal to four or five months of consumption at the old prices."

It adds: "While deliveries at expiring prices must be completed by June 30, customers will anticipate their July, and possibly August, requirements. By September there should be normal deliveries at the advanced prices, but meanwhile producers will simply have an extra loss." Contracting for second quarter deliveries has been permitted since March 1 at the old prices and buyers are presumably covered for the rest of the current period.

Foreign exchanges readjusted themselves after the Easter holidays and dollars sagged. Sterling's strength was attributed partly to the British government's budget surplus for the fiscal year ended March 31.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

By Ralph West Robey.

Regardless of what one may think of the suggested amendments to the securities act by the United States Chamber of Commerce he can not help but be impressed by the statistics they give on the volume of security issues. These figures offer conclusive evidence of the need for a revision of this measure. From the first it has been apparent that this is the case, but mere logical arguments have been of no avail in getting the Administration to take immediate action. For one reason or another it seems to be of the opinion that it is a matter of comparative insignificance whether it is possible to issue securties at this time.

In presenting its case the Chamber of Commerce compares the issuance of securities in the months immediately preceding enactment of the act with the volume brought out since the measure has been in force. The former period covers the first seven months of 1933. During this time the volume of corporate securities totaled $314,000,000. Of this, $202,000,000 consisted of the refunding of outstanding obligations. The balance was divided, $40,000,000 in bonds and $72,000,-000 in stocks.

Amount Dropped Sharply In Next Seven Months.

In the last five months of 1933 the total of corporate issues was only $67,000,000. Of this $19,000,-000 was refundings and $48,000,000 stocks. In January and February of this year there has been a total of corporate issues of only $24,000,000. Of this $7,000,000 was in stocks, $5,000,000 in refunding issues and the balance, or $12,000,-000, in short-term obligations which were privately placed with the result that they did not have to be registered under the securities law.

For the purpose of comparison it perhaps is easier to combine these last two sets of figures. This, then, gives us two seven-month periods. In the seven months preceding enactment of the securities act the total of corporate issues was $314,000,000; in the seven months following enactment of the bill it was only $91,000,000, a drop of slightly over 70 per cent.

That this decline in corporate issues is directly attributable to security issues is evident from the trend of noncorporate issues in the same period. During the seven months immediately preceding enactment of the act these noncorporate securities, aside, of course, from those of the United States Government, averaged $51,-000,000 a month. In the five months immediately following enactment of the securities bill noncorporate issues averaged $61,-000,000 a month, or an increase of over 20 per cent.

Objection Is Possible on Comparability of Two Periods.

The only potential criticism of such a statistical analysis of the effects of the securities act is that the two periods used are not comparable. To a degree this is true. In fact, from the point of view of security issues, it is doubtful if any two periods strictly are comparable. In this case, however, the error such as it may be is in favor of the securities bill.

The first three months of 1933 constituted a period of tremendous pressure on the financial system. It was not a time, therefore, when securities would be issued. The next four months witnessed a relief of the pressure of liquidation, but was a period of marked uncertainty over what was going to be done with the dollar and the consequent hesitancy on the part of individuals to make long-term committments. That such uncertainty has continued since the enactment of the securities bill at best no more than offsets a part of the earlier period.

The bare fact, then, is that we have a measure on our statute books which, rightly or wrongly, in practice is preventing the issuance of corporate securities. I do not see how there can be much question that the Chamber of Commerce is correct in saying that if this situation continues "recovery will be delayed, if not prevented." This does not mean that we should throw the door wide open, but merely that we should take a realistic attitude in attempting to correct, and prevent repetition of, abuses of the past.

Federal Bonds Lead Market In New Rally

Early Irregularity Ended by Firmness; Sales, $12,151,000.

New York, April 3 (AP).—Under the leadership of U. S. Government securities, bonds took a turn for the better today and finished with their first small average gain since last Thursday.

Early irregularity was followed by late firmness which enabled many issues to finish with gains of fractions to a point or more. The volume expanced on the upturn, transfers totaling $12,151,000, par value, against $8,993,000 yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced two-tenths of a point.

Federal Loan Recovery.

The recovery of the Federal department, which held net gains of two thirty-seconds to nine thirty-seconds of a point on a turnover of some $1,600,000, was generally attributed to forecasts that tomorrow's announcement of the treasury's April financing plans would be favorable.

Prime investment groups also were aided by pleasing inferences attached to the sale of a New York State issue of $50,000,000 to a banking syndicate at an interest cost of 2.8866 per cent, the lowest price it has ever paid for long-term credit.

Rail bonds were again the best of the corporation groups. Among the more active carrier gainers were some of Alleghany Corporation, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Great Northern, Louisville & Nashville, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern, Texas & Pacific, Union Pacific, Virginia Railway & Power and Western Maryland.

Postal Telegraphs Up.

Postal Telegraph 5s found an exceptionally large following, 251 of these changing hands at a net gain of 2½ points. They were up more than 3 at one time. Other utilities and industrials, up around a point or more, included United Drug, Liggett & Myers, International Telephone, Commercial Investment Trust and Brooklyn Union Gas.

Bonds of Consolidated Gas, Hudson Coal, Goodrich, National Dairy and U. S. Rubber eased.

Foreign obligations were quiet and moderately irregular. German government issues were slightly lower, as were those of Argentina. Bonds of Great Britain and Sao Paulo rallied a point or more.

Last-Minute Rally Helps Curb Market

Fractional Declines Erased in Late Trading; Sales, 288,000 Shares.

New York, April 3 (AP).—A last-minute rally helped the curb market out of an irregular rut today. A number of fractional declines were erased in the late buying, particularly in utilities. Small net advances were established in alcohols, oils and specialties.

The earlier dealings were very dull but the late buying flurry resulted in a turnover of approximately 288,000 shares, which about equaled the previous session.

Lerner Stores, Humble Oil (new) and General Tire & Rubber showed gains of more than a point each. Aluminum Co. of America failed to regain a one point loss. Fractional improvement was recorded by American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Fisk Rubber, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Hiram Walker, Standard Oils of Indiana and Kentucky, Schiff Co. and New Jersey Zinc.

Cotton Prices Rise Slightly In Late Trading

May Closes at 11.99 as General Market Gains 2 to 7 Points.

New York, April 3 (AP).—Cotton turned steadier today following early moderate declines. The market was influenced by firmness of foreign exchange and a late upturn in the stock market.

Demand was not large and came partly from trade, local and commission house sources. July contracts sold from 12.01 to 12.11 and finished at high, with the general market closing steady at a net advance of 2 to 7 points.

The market opened at losses of 2 to 4 points influenced partly by the indifferent showing of Liverpool cables following a four-day holiday abroad.

Liverpool was a moderate seller of March contracts here during the first hour causing that position to ease 9 points under the previous closing levels. Other months sold off to net losses of 4 or 5 points.

When the pressure in the far month tapered off, the market turned steadier on some trade price fixing. Firmness of sterling exchange brought in some local buying or covering during the afternoon and further advances were registered in the late trading on spot house buying and Wall street support, apparently influenced by a late rally in stocks. May sold up from 11.90 to 11.99 and October from 12.15 to 12.27, with final prices at practically the best levels of the day.

Traders found little in the news to stimulate the market and there was a disposition in some quarters to await the results of conferences expected this week to iron out the differences in the Bankhead bill as passed by the House and Senate.

Generally fair weather with warm temperatures prevailing over the cotton belt was regarded as favorable for new crop preparations.

Exports today, 15,683, making 6,198,655 so far this season. Port receipts, 10,492. U. S. port stocks, 3,112,317.

British Pounds Hold Strong; Dollars Bow

(Associated Press.)

The British pound sterling was unusually strong in terms of dollars and other gold currencies in foreign exchange markets yesterday.

Two reasons were advanced by dealers for the sudden upturn of the British unit—the excellent statement of the British treasury last week, which showed revenue reserves and demand of various continental interests for sterling.

The dollar closed 3¾ cents lower in London at 5.15¾ to the pound after opening at 5.13¾ in adjustment with the New York rate which had been established on Monday, when the British markets were closed. Other gold currencies likewise were lower against sterling, which continued in demand even after the official markets were closed.

In New York, where trading remains in progress several hours later than in London, the British unit closed 4½ cents higher, at $5.18¾. Gold currencies, which had been steady in early dealings as minor fractions above Monday's rates, reflected the heavy demand for sterling and advanced along with the British currency.

In Paris the dollar was slightly lower at the closing rate of 6.58 cents to the franc, and in New York the French unit closed .03½ of a cent higher at 6.61½ cents after holding within a fraction of the opening figure of 6.58 cents until the European markets closed for the day.

Trade Activity Holds to Last Week's Level

New York, April 3.—Improvement in car loadings, electric power production, and bank clearings were counter-balanced by declines in steel mill activity and the price index, with the result that the Dun & Bradstreet Weekly Business Activity Barometer remained steady at 66.3 for the week of March 28. This was the same as the preceding week's figure, but showed a rise of 5.2 points since the beginning of this year, and comparison with the corresponding week of last year, when the index registered 49.3, shows a gain of 34.5 per cent.

Following will be found the Dun & Bradstreet Business Activity Barometer and its components for recent weeks. (1928-1930=100):

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—A confident tone prevailed on the stock exchange today and business was moderate. The strength exhibited by gilt-edged securities on favorable revenue figures was the feature of the session. Home rails and gold mining shares were actively higher, while German bonds, industrials and transatlantic issues held steady. The market closed steady.

Paris—Firmness in the Wall street market helped give the bourse a better tone today when it reopened after the Easter holidays. Trading, however, was dull, and the market closed inactive and irregular.

Auto Products Exports Reach Peak Since '31

Value in February Totals $13,539,690; Cars Lead List.

Exports of automatic products from the United States during February reached the highest level recorded since June, 1931, and were valued at $13,539,690 compared with $11,239,962 for January and $6,520,379 for February, 1933, according to P. R. Mattix, of the Commerce Department's Automotive-Aeronautics Trade Division. Exports during June, 1931, were valued at $14,772,948.

The value of February exports, Mattix points out, represented gains of $2,298,728, or 20 per cent, over that of the preceding month, and $7,018,311, or 107 per cent, over the total for February, 1933.

Combined shipments of passenger cars and trucks during February were valued at $7,728,657, against $5,743,283 in January, an increase of $1,985,374, or 34 per cent. This improvement was due entirely to the substantial increase in passenger car exports, truck shipments being slightly under the January totals. The passenger car demand accounted for 8,781 units, having a valuation of $4,973,527, compared with 3,601 units, valued at $2,446,051, in January, and 5,491 units, valued at $2,823,856, in February, 1933.

Passenger Car Exports.

The export value for passenger cars exceeded the figure for any month since May, 1931, when the total was $5,414,515. Cars in the price class "not over $850" accounted for 8,181 units, valued at $4,205,278, increases of 168 per cent in number and 143 per cent in value over the January exports in this price class.

The Union of South Africa and Belgium retained their positions as the chief markets for American passenger cars during February, followed by Sweden and Japan, which countries occupied twelfth and tenth positions of importance, respectively, in January. Each of the 15 leading markets for American passenger cars, with the exceptions of The Netherlands and Venezuela, were much higher in their demands than in the opening month of the year.

Exports of trucks during February amounted to 6,031 units, valued at $2,755,130, showing a reduction of 1,522 units and $542,102 in value, as compared with 7,553 units worth $3,297,232, representing percentage decreases of 20 and 16, respectively. The exports of trucks for the month under review, however, were improved over the corresponding month of last year by 3,107 units, or 94 per cent, and $1,227,088 in value or 124 per cent, the February, 1933 totals being 3,107 units, worth $1,227,088.

Chief Truck Markets.

Belgium and Japan were the chief markets for American trucks, the latter country relinquishing the lead which it occupied in January and taking second place, while Belgium advanced from the second market position to that of leading purchaser for the current month. Purchases, in both instances, were considerably lower than in January. Australia, Union of South Africa and Brazil increased their requirements as compared with the opening month of the year.

Reduced demand for trucks in the low capacity classes occasioned the decline from the January figures, the 5,358 units "not over one and one-half tons" being 1,516 units and $502,957 under the January totals of 6,874 units worth $2,613,964. A certain percentage of the passenger car and truck shipments both to Belgium and Denmark are intended for re-export. Average export valuation for the month was $566 for passenger cars and $456 for trucks, compared with $679 and $436, respectively, in January.

Exports of miscellaneous products during February were valued at $5,810,033, compared with $5,496,679 in January and $2,469,435 in February, 1933. Items showing greater strength during February as compared with January included: Parts for assembly, $3,183,904 and $2,854,522; pistons, $25,770 and $22,925; starter and timing gears, $14,972 and $9,520; miscellaneous gears, $31,321 and $21,536; spark plugs, $80,719 and $71,795; truck springs, $35,258 and $26,584; parts for replacement, n. e. s., $1,616,430 and $1,562,091; bumpers, $3,158 and $2,575; accessories, n. e. s., $176,586 and $175,184; gas and oil pumps, $38,601 and $35,636; service appliances, n. e. s., $84,652 and $82,249; outboard motors, $13,322 and $11,258, and other internal combustion engines, $33,825 and $17,506.

U. S. Tobacco Sale in Bremen Is Increased

Imports of American tobacco into Bremen, Germany, during the first two months of the current year were notably in excess of receipts during the corresponding period of 1932, according to a report from Consul W. Al Leonard, made public by the Commerce Department.

Preliminary statistics show that imports of American tobacco into the German port, the chief tobacco-distributing center of Germany, during January and February, 1934, amounted to 5,755,904 pounds compared with 4,453,370 pounds in the corresponding period of 1932, an increase of 1,302,234 pounds, or approximately 30 per cent.

January imports of American tobacco reached the high figure of 4,387,284 pounds, due, the report points out, to the taking up by a local manufacturer of considerable quantities which had been ordered previously.

10 Per Cent Wage Increase.

Edgewater, N. J., April 3 (AP).—The Edgewater plant of the Corn Products Refining Co. announced a 10 per cent wage increase for about 600 employes. The raise was retroactive as of March 26.

Italian Sport Ably Assisted By Dopolavoro

Workmen's Amateur Opera Among Most Popular of Fascist Moves.

Rome (U.P.).—One of the most important institutions created by Fascism on the recreational and health side is the Workmen's After-Work Movement. The movement now counts 1,800,000 members, according to the latest statistics.

The organization has sections all over the country, even in the smallest villages. There are more than 18,000 branches. Some of the large cities have numerous sections. The different categories of workers, such as railroadmen, dock laborers, postoffice, telegraph and telephone officials, have their different sections and often have several subsections in cities of over 250,000 inhabitants.

The Workmen's After-Work Movement has different activities within its scope. Thus there are 6,500 sections which practice sport and about 6,000 which go in for excursions. Skiing owes a great deal of its last winter popularity in Italy to the Workers' After-Work Movement organizations.

Many Sports Included.

The sports in which the workers engage are football, swimming, light athletics, boxing, fencing, cycling, cross-country running and various winter sports.

There are 35,000 bands organized in connection with the movement, 800 choral societies, 2,200 orchestral societies which in one year gave 100,000 concerts and took part in fifteen national band competitions.

There is a dramatic section to the organization, for the Workers' After-Work Movement (called in Italian, Opera Nazionale Dopolavoro), has 1,350 theaters of its own or rented. The Dopolavoro Theater of the Railroadmen and Postal Workers in Rome is a modern structure fitted out with all the latest mechanism and contraptions of up-to-date theaters. The members of the organization put on plays and musical comedies among themselves. There are also numerous motion picture sections where films are hired from distributors and shown to members.

Traveling Opera Too.

The Dopolavoro has also a traveling open air opera company known as the "Chariot of Thespis" (Il Carro do Tespi), which tours the country districts in the summer months and gives first rate performances of opera to the rural population. Often big stars of the opera world give their services free for these performances. Last year Gigli sang gratis at some of the opera performances of the Rome After-Work Opera section.

Vocational guidance courses and courses in technical training for special trades and handicrafts also form part of the activity of the O. N. D., as it is familiarly called in Italy. Here the sons of members of the organization learn trades and take special courses in technical instruction.

Sport Growth Recent.

Generally speaking, it may be said that the O. N. D. has contributed to no small extent in making modern Italy the sport-loving out-of-doors nation she is rapidly becoming.

Where the young people used to spend their leisure in cafes, wineshops or billiard rooms, they are now to be found in gymnasiums, on the river or the sea, in the football field or at the stadium.

In the evenings they must largely be looked for in the various entertainment clubs and sections of the powerful O. N. D. organization which is one of the best things Fascism has done for the country.

Sayre N. Thompson Reported Improved

Culpeper Treasurer's Son Injured in Crash.

Culpeper, Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Sayre N. Thompson, 22, deputy in the office of his father, Gregg A. Thompson, treasurer of the town of Culpeper, who was taken to the University of Virginia Hospital, Charlottesville, Saturday morning, with injuries received in an automobile accident on the Orange-Culpeper highway, is reported improved.

He suffered deep facial cuts and shock. Weakness from loss of blood necessitated a transfusion.

The car was demolished in colliding with a tree after leaving the highway. Robert C. Lewis, owner of the car, and Robert Hudson, another passenger, escaped with minor injuries.

Three Virginians Face Prison in Auto Thefts

Terre Haute, Ind., April 3 (AP).—Lonnie Abraham, Richmond, Va., was found guilty in Federal Court here today of interstate transportation of a stolen automobile. Sentence will be pronounced April 14.

Joncie Creech and Lewis Bogie, accused with Abraham, pleaded guilty. Creek was sentenced to serve a year and a day at Chillicothe. Bogie was given a 15-month term. The latter also were from Richmond.

Mrs. Margaret Smith, 79, Buried at Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.).—Services were held here today for Mrs. Margaret Elizabeth Smith, 79, widow of George W. Smith, who died Sunday.

Post of Chief Clerk Accepted.

Salem, W. Va., April 3 (Spl.). Fred Diddle, of Salem, has accepted appointment as chief clerk in the State Treasurer's office in Charleston, and will assume his duties at once.

Radio Waves and Ripples

STONES that have built empires, unloosed tongues and marked a Nation's birth will be flung at the air waves in a new series of dramatizations over N. B. C. networks beginning tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Playing a more romantic part in history than you might suppose, bits of rock have kept marauding hordes out of China. A lone rock lapped by waves on the shore of Massachusetts Bay Colony welcomed our Pilgrim fathers to a bleak new existence. Erin's famous Blarney Stone, said to bestow a glib tongue to him who kisses it, will be told of first in the series.

Other "Stones of History," whose stories will be told, with appropriate musical background, are the Pyramids of Egypt that awed even the great Napoleon, the Great Wall of China, and several outstanding monoliths that cleave the clouds as skyscrapers.

Napoleon's soldiers, it will be recalled, discovered in 1799 the famous Rosetta Stone, which held the key to Egyptian hieroglyphics. Champollion, a scholar, deciphered the queer markings which told of Cleopatra and Ptolemy. The famous bit of basalt now lies for tourists to gape at in the British Museum.

Wade Arnold, of the N. B. C.'s staff, is writing the dramatizations. He also did the popular series, "Jewels of Destiny," recently heard on the same network.

IN the midst of a blustering, collar-wilting exchange of verbal fisticuffs on the Senate floor have you ever heard the famous last words:

"Includ this in the Record."

Well, it gets into the Congressional Record to prove that Congressman Puffenfuss was bravely "on record" as advocating shorter hours for flagpole sitters or something.

It occurred to N. B. C. brawny minds that you'd like to hear the famous publication in the throes of being printed. So tomorrow from the pressroom of the world's largest and best-equipped printing establishment, the Government Printing Office, George H. Carter, public printer, will describe the steps taken in printing of the Record. You will gather by now that this is to be a "printing" broadcast.

Carter was sworn in as public printer just 13 years ago tomorrow morning—10 a. m.—the hour of the broadcast. Microphones will catch the clacking of linotypes and the monotones of proofreaders and, of course, the "roar" of the presses. This must be right. They always "roar" in the moving pictures.

Ann Balthy, Maybelle and Evelyn Ross (top) . . . it's the Do Re Mi trio and the knees have it. You'll hear them tonight with Freddie Rich's Orchestra at 10:45 over WJSV. Grete Stueckgold (side), celebrated concert soprano, makes her debut on the air tonight at 9 p. m. with Andre Kostelanetz's Orchestra and Nino Martini.

Too bad that you won't hear the "roar" of Congressmen or the gentle swish of dust gathering on the hoary words that illumine countless pages of the sage document.

WHETHER it be in the garish atmosphere of the Waldorf-Astoria that pretends to be patrician or well up front at a Broadway first night or even in the sultry teeming maze of the lower East Side, you may expect to encounter one of America's most-talked-of writers. Swathed in furs or poured into a sinuous black satin gown, Fannie Hurst, the novelist, will be somewhere in the gathering.

Life...offering certain fulfillment of uncertain adventure mixed with futility and frustration. That's her dish. She graduated from the "Bertha, the Beautiful Sewing Machine Girl" school to pink cocktails and writers' teas. And how she hates her "dear public."

Fannie Hurst wilts when she is forced to make a speech...that is if a woman tipping the scales at some 145-odd can be said to wilt. She'd rather that people picture her as a cross between Gertrude Stein and Edna St. Vincent Millay...not as the over-heavy, coal-black-haired amazon that she appears to be.

So she will be at her best today before N. B. C.'s microphone, where her gushing public can't stare at her. Set your dial on WRC at 3:30 p. m. and Fannie will give you the low down on "Life."

Whitecaps.

WRC—Fannie Hurst, novelist, interviewed by Claudine MacDonald on Women's Review, 3:30 p. m.; concluding program of Powell's folk music, songs of the South, "Fanny Blair," "Virginianesque," "Come All Ye Fair and Tender Ladies," 4:45 p. m.; favorite ballads of bygone days, "Sweet Genevieve," and renderings of "Scandalized My Name," "Dinah," and fiddle rendition of "Hearts and Flowers," Pipe Club, 10 p. m.

WMAL—E. Arnot Robertson and Alec Waugh, English novelists, "Etiquette for Traveling Writers," 2:30 p. m.; Easter chorals, Westminster Choir, and "De Camptown Races," "Ma Little Banjo" and "A Fairy Story by the Fire," 6 p. m.; mounted police drama, "Dangerous Paradise," 8:30 p. m.; John Charles Thomas, Metropolitan Opera barytone, 9:30 p. m.

WJSV—May Robson, veteran stage actress, interviewed by Louella Parsons, 1:15 p. m.; W. R. Gregg, chief of U. S. Weather Bureau, explains recent weather on "Weather and the New Deal," 4:30 p. m.; radio debut of Grete Stueckgold, concert soprano, with Andre Kostelanetz's orchestra, singing Verdi's aria "Ritorno Vincitor" from "Aida," "The Last Rose of Summer," "Lover Come Back to Me," 9 p. m.; Freddie Rich's gang, Sylvia Freas, Fray and Braggiotti and Do Re Mi Trio, presenting "Your Love," "We're Not Dressing," "Orchids in the Moonlight," "Stormy Weather" and "Let's Fall in Love," 10:30 p. m.

Two weary announcers staggered back to their offices in the Earle Building Monday and whacked the dust from their tattered garments. Faint smells of sticky chocolate candy and popcorn clung to them. Flopping into a chair with the thermometer pointing to 83 . . . Ted Church, one of the culprits, breathed a long, delicious sigh.

"Eggs!" he said, "ye immortal gods . . . if anyone mentions eggs again I'll expire."

Ted can't be blamed. Nor can Bob Trout, who braved the White House egg-rolling festival with him. Both gentlemen, expert radio men, learned a thing or two yesterday when they waved microphones at children. In previous years the juveniles had balked at speaking into the strange instrument. But this time Ted and Bob were literally mobbed when they called for volunteers.

"Are you having a good time?"

"Yeah!" yelled a thousand lusty voices in a din that must have broken the ear drums of the engineers intrusted with toning down the broadcast. After individual kiddies had babbled their names Bob asked:

"And how many eggs have you got, little girl?"

"I've got t'elve and only got two now." She admitted that she had eaten the rest!

Walt Mason, Himself

Failing Sight.

Sad punishments the ancient wight is called on to endure; the saddest is the failing sight, for which there is no cure. His eyes were wonderful and fine upon a bygone day, and he could read the "Danger" sign that stood five miles away. And he could read the public prints without a sign of strain, the "locals" and the "Household Hints," and ads both safe and sane. His eyes were fine, a perfect fit, when he was hale and young, and he could read the sheriff's writ before that writ was sprung. When he was tired and gone to seed, inclined to heave some sighs, there always was a book to read with those trustworthy eyes. Perhaps it was his greatest bliss, this reading sage and seer, pursuing such a joy as this he read year after year. He took for granted those good eyes that never balked or struck; they were of course a priceless prize, but that was just his luck. But now he's old and when he reads he needs a high-power lens; he can not tell, as he proceeds, the rabbits from the hens. He needs a telescope to see the signs along the way; a sad and weary wight is he in life's bleak winter day.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Deductive Regrets — By Harry J. Tuthill

OH GEORGE I FEEL SO DISAPPOINTED AT THOSE FOLKS TAKING THAT NICE LITTLE BOY AWAY, EVEN THOUGH THEY WERE HIS PARENTS.
THEY'RE GONE, HERMAN!
THE IDEA OF MY WIFE GRABBING ME TO ASK QUESTIONS ABOUT WHY I GOT HOME LATE WHEN I SHOULD HAVE BEEN IN HERE EXPLAINING THINGS.
PARDON ME.
THE POLICEMAN LET ME READ HIS REPORT. HE MENTIONED YOUR NAME IN IT THREE OR FOUR TIMES.
GEORGE, THIS THING JUST ABOUT COOKS ME. I SOLVE A BIG MYSTERY AND ALL I GET OUT OF IT IS MY NAME SPELLED WRONG, I'LL BET, IN A POLICE REPORT.
I STILL DON'T UNDERSTAND, HERMAN, WHY YOU LET THE POLICE TAKE FULL CHARGE OF THIS THING.
I FOUND THE BOY'S PHOTO, AS I HOPED, AT A PHOTOGRAPHER'S. INSTEAD OF ANSWERING MY QUESTIONS, HE CALLED THE POLICE AND WANTED ME LOCKED UP FOR, AS HE CLAIMED, DISTURBING HIS PEACE.

SPALDON! ALWAYS GIVES ME THE EASY JOBS! YEAH HE DOES — IN A PIG'S EAR! ALL I GOTTA DO IS SNEAK IN THERE — AND LIFT THAT DAME'S FINGERPRINTS OFF THAT DRINKING GLASS! HUH!
ONE HOUR LATER
WELL, SHE'S HAD TIME TO GET TO SLEEP BY THIS TIME. NOW TO UNLOCK THE BATHROOM CATCH WITH THIS STEEL WIRE — HAH! THERE IT IS!
GAINING THE BATHROOM, THE CROOK DUSTS THE DRINKING GLASS WITH FINGERPRINT POWDER. THEN TAKES A SHEET OF CHEMICALLY-TREATED GELATIN FROM HIS POCKET AND PRESSES IT FIRMLY ABOUT THE GLASS.
THEN, REMOVING THE GELATIN HE PLACES IT BETWEEN SHEETS OF WAXED PAPER AND DEPOSITS IT IN HIS POCKET. AFTER WHICH HE WIPES THE DRINKING GLASS CLEAN AND PUTS IT IN ITS POSITION TO AVOID SUSPICION....
TESS TRUEHEART'S FINGERPRINTS HAVE BEEN LIFTED!

Employer Hit For Forbidding Jury Service

Justice Proctor Attacks Threat to Penalize Employes.

Because he wrote a letter to an employe notifying him that if he served on a jury he would be "docked" for the time he missed from work, A. J. Somerville, president of the Thomas Somerville Co., plumbing contractor, was lectured yesterday by Justice James M. Proctor in the District Supreme Court.

The employe, Norman L. Glasscock, 629 Florida avenue northwest, showed the letter to Justice Proctor to secure his release from jury service.

The jurist, engaged in picking the spring term jurors, directed that Somerville be brought before him.

Somerville explained that the letter was written in pursuance of company policy.

"A firm subscribing to such practices is not entitled to public patronage and confidence," said Justice Proctor.

He then accepted Glasscock for jury service.

Georgetown Records Two Distant Quakes

Georgetown University's seismograph showed a moderate earthquake, about 2,300 miles away in an undetermined direction, starting yesterday at 2:43:31 a. m., reaching its peak at 2.57, and ending at 3.25 a. m. A less severe quake apparently in the same place was registered about two hours later, says the Associated Press.

Outguessing One's Opponents.

When experts play against experts they are continually trying to outguess one another. Falsecards are made during the play, unusual and eccentric bids are fired back and forth and Penalty Doubles are often inserted just for the purpose of misleading the Declarer. Incidentally, these Doubles usually turn out disastrously for the Doubler if the Declarer is at all keen, as was the case in the hand below, played in a recent rubber game at Crockford's Club, New York.

South, Dealer
Neither side vulnerable

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1◇	1♠	2◇(1)	2♠
3♡(2)	Pass	4♡	Dbl.(3)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The fact that the Raise to two diamonds is made freely over an intervening Overall makes the bid sufficiently strong to correctly portray the strength of the North hand.

2—A daring bid, but justified despite the shaded suit after North's free Raise. South must make some effort to reach game, and with a hand which is not overly strong decides that five-odd of a minor suit is probably out of the question.

3—A very bad Double, particularly with five cards of the suit that partner has bid. East, a very well-known expert, decided from the bidding that North and South had only four hearts each and that therefore his partner must have four cards of the suit. The Double was made purely and simply to mislead the Declarer.

The Opening lead was the spade King, which was won with Dummy's Ace and on which a diamond was discarded from the South hand. The Declarer, knowing the East player's game quite well, realized the Double was of a type that East was wont to make, and arbitrarily decided that if anyone held four trumps it was the West player. He therefore led a low heart from Dummy and topped East's Knave with his Ace, and then immediately led the Ten of hearts, allowing this card to hold the trick. A low heart was now led from the South hand and won with the nine in Dummy, followed by the Ten of clubs from Dummy, which lost to West's King. West now returned another heart, and the King in Dummy won the trick. South now, from the bidding and the early play, had an almost perfect count on the hand, on the basis of which he led a low diamond from Dummy, and, when East played low, finessed the nine-spot, which won. The three top clubs were next played out, and on them were discarded the two remaining low diamonds from Dummy. A low diamond was now led to Dummy's Queen, and after East won this trick he was compspade. South discarded, and West won the trick with the Queen, but West was now forced to return a pletely helpless. He returned a spade, and Dummy's spade Knave won the last trick. Had East returned a diamond, South would have finessed against the Knave and made five-odd instead of just four.

An investigation of NRA industrial codes to determine whether Negro industrial workers are discriminated against was proposed yesterday in a resolution by Representative Celler (Democrat), New York, says the Associated Press.

Hearing Set Today On Mortgage Bill

Procedure in Foreclosing Would Be Altered.

Hearings on the King bill, revising District procedure in foreclosing mortgages, will be launched by a Senate District sub-committee at 2 p. m. today.

Hearings are not expected to be long. The District Commissioners have recommended that the bill be amended to permit greater elasticity in fixing the time of sale for foreclosed properties.

Under provisions of the measure, mortgages may not be foreclosed except through specified procedure, a part of which will give owners 90 days to safeguard their property without heavy penalty costs.

Young women are wearing

Dr. M. W. LOCKE
SHOES for Women

Smart they are, too . . . and you may take that two ways . . . for their "get-ups" are clever and chic . . . yet they're shrewd enough to know that no one can look smart . . . walk smartly . . . unless their feet are comfortable! Of course, older women KNOW that Dr. Locke shoes keep their feet in perfect condition. Business women . . . nurses . . . teachers . . . even our own saleswomen ask for "Dr. Locke" . . . the only shoes designed and approved by Dr. M. W. Locke, of Canada.

My Hair Looks Gorgeous..
When I've just left the beauty salon..BUT, with a

ZOTOS permanent
NO ELECTRICITY

...I can keep that "just waved" look!
...I can "handle it" all by myself!
...I'm not a "slave" to my hair!

After all, what's the sense of getting a permanent, if I can't look "permanently" as if I just stepped out of a "band box"? I find that THE PRECIOUS OIL USED IN ZOTOS leaves my hair Obedient to my Touch, no matter how long between shampoos. That's why all my friends say with me:—/

"GIVE ME A ZOTOS EVERY TIME!"
